By Ewan Macpherson

"Of all the cowardly desertions of principle I ever heard of in my life, Costigan"-

"Oh, you don't know what you're falking about, man," Costigan retorted, jamming his foot hard against the edge of the window sill and using the leverage of it to tilt his chair back on him its hind legs. "Just you wait."

Costigan was really taking the "calling down" of his friend very patiently for a man with the reputation of a quick temper. You might account for this patience, if you chose, by the intimacy between the two that had grown up in nearly three years of common detestation of the average boarding house, in dining together seven days every week at restaurants chosen by common consent, and in the occupation of furnished rooms in the same house, where they contended with the landlord as one man.

Lastly-here was the most important bond of union between Costigan and Muller-they had long since talked over together the great question of woman's proper place in the order of things and had cordially agreed that it was nowhere. Naturally, Muller felt aggrieved when he caught Costigan twice strolling in shady places with a blooming, brown haired young member of the reprobated sex, whose eyes had a dangerous way of smiling at one without losing a certain suggestion of sadness.

Muller waited a minute to ruminate on the possible hidden meanings of his friend's last saying. Then he veered around and with more asperity of tone and manner said: "If I don't know what I'm talking about, why in thunder don't you put me right? Is she a typewriter?"

"I regret to notice in you of late, Muller, an unpleasant use of vulgar slang. No, you did not get it from me. I avoid all-all such marks of-of toughness."

"That is, you have been trying to for the last three weeks-since you got stuck on this typewriter."

"'Typewriter' is not a description of any class of woman. It is the name of a machine. The lady you refer to is a typester. I met her-found her in a large insurance office down town."

"And after all you have said about women and marrying and all that sort of thing you went and fell in love with her, and- Oh, Costigan!"

"I repeat, Muller, that you don't know what you are talking about Fate brought us together."

"Whew!" Muller whistled aloud in consternation at these last words, as if to say, "Is it as bad as that?" And then, picking up the evening paper he had brought into Costigan's room, he retreated to his own.

But man is at best a plaything of fate. Muller, the morning after this conversation, was troubled and distrait. His fellow clerk at the office remarked that he looked "dopy." The senior office boy and factotum, who had his own way of interpreting signs, grinned and whispered that Mr. Muller must have fallen in love, and he even succeeded in spreading that view of the situation. And when Muller went out to "get a bite" he picked things up from the lunch counter in an indiscriminate way that made the attendants stare at him. At last he turned away from the counter blindly and ran into the person who happened to be standing next behind him; and, lo, it was a woman!

"I-I beg your pardon," he began, inexpressibly humiliated by the necessity of apologizing to one of that sex. He took refuge in a stooping attitude, collecting sandwiches from off the tiled

The inopportune female was down there just as fast as he was, only she was laughing. "Don't mention it"laugh-"accidents can't always be"more laughing-"I believe you've taken my sandwich by mistake. Mine was bee-bee"- The rest was lost in a hopeless outburst.

With about fifteen people waiting to get at that particular part of the coun- go into the deep forests, under exter which they were obstructing, and several dozens more watching and thoroughly enjoying the proceedings, Muller felt that he could not bear to remain on that tiled spot crawling long to be used in climbing the lofty about in search of demoralized sandwiches. He got up and faced the procured. The sap flows from gashes enemy. He recognized her. She was "the woman"-she who had entrapped Costigan-Costigan's "typester."

"Really, I'm extremely sorry for having got in your way, Mr. Muller."

Costigan must have told her all about gum. The finest gum, known as him. It was a splendid opportunity for Muller to display the courage of his convictions. The convictions were en, and is seldom exported because it there, but the courage was not to be found. He could only stammer:

"Oh, not at all. All my fault. You must let me get you some more beefwas it beef sandwiches you said?" Then he said within his heart that he was a liar and a hypocrite and that his moral degradation had begun as soon as he had run into this woman.

For her part, she actually seemed to enjoy the adventure, which struck Muller as downright brazen. "You see, I happen to be in a laughing mood today," she had the impudence to say, and she went on to ask him a dozen questions about his acquaintance with Costigan-how long it had lasted, and beat in confectioners' sugar until there whether they had ever met before Mr. Costigan came to New York.

But hostilities were prevented by the arrival of a caller for Mr. Muller. Muller went out from the inner office in a mood to make a most unfavorable impression on any chance visitor. It was Costigan.

"Oh, I san you," said Costigan. "Now what have you got to say?"

You saw us, did you? Well, what I have to say is that this young person got up so close behind me that I couldn't move without spilling a pint of coffee over her."

"Yes; but it was all your fault, you know, Muller. You said so yourself. Never mind, old man. You're forgiven. When I passed you, you two looked so affectionate that it seemed a pity to interrupt." Just then the first assistant office boy came out with his ears touch of exceeding smartness. Erpricked and caught a few words, which were duly reported a minute later. "I was coming, anyhow, to ask you a

"Yes. I told you you didn't know what you were talking about. Why didn't you wait and let me tell you last night? Do you know what made me join you in your hostility to the sex? Come over here and listen. My wife-yes, I thought you would startmy wife and I quarreled four years ago. We were divorced, and I was afterward told she had married another man, who-who isn't worth talking about. Now, don't you understand? Why, she has been here in New York, typing, for months and months. I found her by a mere accident-just mixture of fur softened by lace. like your running into her. She never married anybody else, and never would. She's going to marry me again, and you are going to be my best man."

Muller went back into the inner office smiling so sweetly that he was saluted with a general grin, but he held his peace. When he went to "the er?"

rys was so enamored of the sport of lars either of sable or chinchilla, with fox hunting as to ordain it to be a royal sport, and the red coat was worn in consequence. This, however, has been pointed at as absurd, as in those days scarlet was not a royal livery at all. One thing there can be no doubt about, and that is the scarlet coat is very popular for those who hunt regularly, and it must be confessed that it adds picturesqueness to the scene.

The question of color seems to be very much a matter of taste. It is looked upon as an indication of social position. In the abstract any one can don the pink if so desired, but it is considered out of taste to adopt that color if one does not liberally subscribe to the bunt fund. The black coat is considered out of taste to adopt that color and the ordinary mufti garment for those whose subscription is very small Indeed .- London Standard.

Gum Gathering.

In Yucatan the gathering of the famous chicle chewing gum is an occupation apparently full of romance, not unattended with considerable danger. Bands of men, known as "chicleros," perienced leaders, armed with heavy knives of special make, pails and ladles for the sap, and each provided with a strong rope more than eighty feet sapota trees from which the gum is cut in the bark. A camp of chicleros where the sap is boiled resembles in some respects an American maple sugar camp. After months of work the chicleros return from the forests "sicte," is collected from the fruit of the sapota, mostly by the native womis too well liked at home.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For Week Beginning Feb. 2. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle. Topic.-Christian Endeavor day. (Twenty-fifth

The Christian Endeavor movement is twenty-one years old today. It has reached its majority and is worthy the congratulations of all upon its past achievements and its future promise. Twenty-one years ago today Rev. that meeting? In the providence of God the movement there started grew to vast proportions. It became a worldwide movement and the name of its founder a household name throughout Christendom.

But what has Christian Endeavor done in twenty-one years? Doing has been its leading characteristic. It has been called "the church at work," and every line of church work has felt the influence of this great providential movement.

1. It has magnified loyalty - loyalty to Christ, to the church, to the Bible, to the midweek services of the church. Christian Endeavor, though so powerful in itself, has ever sought to lose sight of itself in order that it might be loyal to Christ and His church. Its motto is "For Christ and the Church," and its life has proved the appropriateness of its motto. In an age when there has been indifference, doubt and disloyalty the young people of Christendom have been kept loval. 2. It has magnified Christian service.

The Christian Endeavor movement has been a practical movement. It has enmine is thus blended with lace, for listed the young people of the church the demand for ermine increases. Like in Christian work; it has taught them light feather boas its whiteness is be- that they have been saved to serve; it coming to the skin, certainly of youth, has educated them not only to say and those who have lost "la premiere "Lord, Lord," but to do the will of the jeunesse" are content to soften the Father in heaven. Endeavorers have effect with a little black chiffon. It is fed the hungry, given drink to the astonishing, as years go on, how thirsty, clothed the naked and visited friendly is that touch of black chiffon! the sick and imprisoned. Only eternity Many young women have a rounded itself will reveal the tremendous work collar and lapel like that of a man's of this organization both in the church coat, made of ermine, which they slip and out of the church. That our thoughts may not be dissipated they need a central purpose That the soul may not float adrift it needs an anchor. Our thoughts take the direction of our works. So it is a proverb of wisdom which says, "Commit thy works unto the Lord, and thy thoughts shall be established." Our thoughts are committed to the same that our works are, and it is for the training of thought and inward character that works are supplied. The alternative would be, Commit thy works unto self, and thy thoughts shall be made selfish, continually meaner and unstable. The rescue and salvation of our thoughts and mind are the committal of our works to the Lord, doing them all as unto Him, consulting Him about all that we propose to do, that He may be the central authority of our deeds to whom the gathering of our thoughts shall be .- Friend.

Indecision.

Indecision is many a man's ruin. This is true spiritually as well as temporally. The soul's safety demands prompt action. Favorable opportunities for salvation must be seized at once. Gracious calls are to be heeded without delay. CATALOGUES, When the Spirit is working in a human heart, it is a risky and fearful thing to BY-LAWS, say: "Go Thy way for this time. CITY OFFICIALS.

Changes in Departments.

Monday is the day upon which the officials of 1901 go out of office and the officials of 1902 assume charge. It is natural to expect, with a new Mayor, that there would be more or less changes. Among the officials appointed however, their has been but few Commissioner Knowlton, Chief of Police Hayden, Chief Engineer Williams, City Engineer Flood and Overseer of the Poor Cunningham will succeed themselves.

Tax Collector Baker has packed his grip and will retire to private life on a Braintree farm. City Clerk Cleaves will barometer not much of a fall is exassume the duties of Tax Collector and pected James F. Harlow assumes the office of City Clerk.

appointments to which Mayor Bryant has not yet made public, are those of City Treasurer and Assessor for three years. These will probably be made public at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. There are also to be appointed a Board of Health and Board Sunday afternoon. of Managers of Public Burial Places.

Surprise Party.

A grand surprise party and house warming was given to Capt. Coombs and wife Thursday evening in sheir new house on Billings street, Atlantic. Some fifty of their friends attended,and the surprise to Capt. and Hrs. Coombs was of the genuine kind.

Most of the party were natives of Islesborough, Me., where Capt. and Mrs. Coombs were born and spent their will be held next Tuesday evening. younger days. A very pretty dinner set was presented to them which was highly appreciated.

A collation was served. Some fine vocal talent was present and a very eniovable evening was spent. About day break some of the older folks began to complain of feeling sleepy.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Havnes, Mr. and Mrs. Crowell, Mr. and Mr. George Dix, Mr A. L. Dix, Miss Jessie Dix, Miss Lula Dix, Capt. Fred Wayman, Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Strengthen Your Nerves

And Improve Your Diges. tion, Appetite and Color by Taking

Pept-iron

It abounds in just what the nerves and the brain need for strength—it is food for them, as well as medicine. It cures all degrees of nervous weakness or debility; tones the stomach and other digestive organs, creates appetite, perfects nutrition, cures pale ness, reddens the lips, cheeks and ears, and permanently benefits the whole system.

Men. Women and Children

Are alike deriving great and permanent good from this new iron tonic, combining (and so as to secure the best effects of which they are capable) the best digestives, nervines and nutrients, including pepsin, celery and the phosphates. It is a neutral, organic, non-astringent solution of iron—that is, it is neither acid nor alkaline in reaction, is readily assimilated. and does not cause constipation, however long taken; neither does it injure the teeth nor leave any inky or metallic flavor in the mouth. Peptiron is especially recommended for the cure and prevention of neurasthenia and anemia, nervous weakness and paleness: for overcoming the effects of mental and physical overwork, too much care, responsibility, anxiety or worry and all excesses; and for creating appetite and promoting natural sleep.

Doing Good. "I am taking Peptiron - have used about half a bottle up to the present time. I find it is doing me good, as I am much better. I can recommend it highly to others, as I have to my neighbors, and they are inquiring how to get it. Being a new medicine they have not seen it advertised." CHARLES I. KNIGHT, Saxonville, Mass.

Peptiron Is prepared by C. I. HOOD CO., Lowell, Mass., from the formula originated by Mr. Hood after years of careful study and observation, and has behind it the reputation of this eminently skilful and successful pharmacist. Price, $1. Note.-Peptiron is guaranteed to do what we say; if it does not, money will be refunded

This generous offer, made at a moment like this with such frank simplicity, deeply touched Prosper.

"Thanks, Raoul." he said, with emotion; thank you! But unfortunately all the money in the world would be of no use now."

"Why so? What are you going to 40? Do you propose to remain in Paris?"

"I know not, Raoul. I have made no plans yet. My mind is confused." "I will tell you what to do." replied Raoul quickly. "You must start afresh.

Until this mysterious robbery is explained it will never do for you to reamain in Paris." "And if it is never explained?"

This advice offended Prosper's pride, but he said nothing. He was thinking of what the stranger had said to him.

"That was very stingy on his part," he said. "Why did he not offer the whole? Offers cost nothing. But I have no doubt that this pretty boy would cheerfully give 10,000 francs to put the ocean between you and him." "He, monsieur? Why so?"

"But that is the truth, monsieur. I

"Never!" he exclaimed, with excitement. "No, never will I voluntarily set eyes on that wretch!"

This resistance did not surprise M. Verduret.

"I can understand your feelings toward him," said he, "but at the same time I hope you will change your mind. For the same reason that I wished to see M. de Lagors do I wish to see M. Fauvel. It is necessary, you understand. Are you so very weak that you cannot restrain yourself for five minutes? I shall introduce myself as one of your relatives, and you need not speak a word."

"If it is absolutely necessary," said Prosper, "if you wish"-

"It is necessary. Come on. Hurry and fix yourself up a little. It is getting late, and I am hungry. We will breakfast on our way there.'

Prosper had hardly passed into his bedroom when the bell rang again. M. Verduret opened the door. It was the porter, who handed him a thick letter. | real anything."

"This letter," said ne. "was let this morning for M. Bertomy. I was so flustered when he came that I forgot to hand it to him. It is a very odd looking letter, is it not, monsieur?"

It was indeed a singular epistle. The address was not written, but formed of printed letters, carefully cut from a book and pasted on the envel-

"Oh, ho!" cried M. Verduret. "What is this?" Then, turning toward the porter, he said, "Wait till I return." He went into the next room and closed the door. There he found Prosper, who had heard the hell ring and was anxious to know what was going on. "Here is a letter for you," said M. Verduret.

Prosper at once tore open the envelope. Some bank notes dropped out. He counted them. There were ten. Prosper's face turned purple.

"What does this mean?" he asked. "We will read the letter and find out," replied M. Verduret. The letter, like the address, was composed of printed words cut out and pasted on the paper. It was short, but explicit: My Dear Prosper-A friend who knows the horfor of your situation sends this succor.

M. Verduret smiled with satisfaction. At last you begin to open your eyes. You begin to understand. Yes, there are people who hate you because of the evil they have done you. There are people to whom your presence in Paris is a perpetual menace and who will

"A messenger, who said he was paic for bringing it."

"Do you know him?"

"I know him well." "Go and bring him here."

After the porter had gone M. Verduret drew from his pocket his diary and compared a page of it with the notes which he had spread over the table.

"These notes were not sent by the thief." he said.

"Do you think so, monsieur?"

"I am sure of it-that is, unless the thief is endowed with extraordinary penetration and forethought. One thing is certain-these notes are not part of the 350,000 francs which was stolen from the safe."

"Yet," said Prosper, who could not explain this certainty on the part of his protector-"yet"-

"There is no yet about it. I have the numbers of all the stolen notes." "What! When even I did not have

Verduret continued talking to himself, as if he had forgotten Prosper's presence:

"Then, as this package did not come from the thief, it is plain that it car only come from the other person who was near the safe at the time of the robbery, but could not prevent it, and now feels remorse. The probability of two persons assisting at the robbery, a probability suggested by the scratch, is now changed into undeniable certainty. Therefore I was right."

Prosper, listening attentively, tried which he dared not interrupt.

"Let us seek," went on the big man "this second person whose conscience pricks him and yet who dares not re Comden (S. C.) Messenger. For sale by all

He read the letter over several times, scanning the sentences and weighing

"Evidently this letter was composed by a woman. Never would one man doing another man a service and sending him money use the word 'succor.' A man would have said loan, money or some other equivalent, but succornever. No one but a woman ignorant of masculine susceptibilities would have naturally made use of this word to express the idea it represents. As to the sentence 'There is one leart,' and so on, it could only have been written by a woman. Now let as see if we can discover whence the printed words were taken to compose these sentences."

He approached the window and began to study the pasted words with all the scrupulous attention which an antiquarian would devote to an old, half effaced manuscript.

"Small type," he said, "very slender and clear, well printed. The paper is thin and glossy. These words have not been cut from a newspaper or a periodical. I have seen type like this. l recognize it at once. Didot often uses it. So does Mme. de Tours."

He stopped with his mouth open and eyes fixed, making a strong appeal to his memory.

Suddenly he struck his forehead. "Now I have it!" he cried, "Now I have it! Why did I not see it at once? These words have all been cut from a prayer book. We will look at least, and then we shall be certain."

He moistened one of the words pasted on the paper with his tengue, and when it was sufficiently softened be detached it with a pin. On the other side was printed a Latin word-Deus.

"Ah, ha!" he said, with a little laugh of satisfaction. "I knew it. Father Taberet, if he were here, would be pleased to see this. But what has become of the mutilated prayer book? Can it have been burned? No, because a heavy bound book is not easily burnart, be assured, that shares your sufferings. ed. It is thrown in some corner"

M. Verduret was interrupted by the porter, who returned with the messenger from Pigalle street. "Ab. here you are." said the big man encouragingly. Then he showed the envelope of the letter. "Do you remember bringing this letter here this morning?" "Perfectly, monsieur. I took particular notice of the address. We don't often see anything like it."

"Who told you to bring it, a man or "Neither, monsieur: it was a porter."

This reply made the perter laugh very much, but M. Verduret did not even smile.

"A porter? Well, do you know this colleague of yours?" "I never even saw him before."

"How does he look?" "Neither tall nor short, He wore a green vest and had on his medal." "Your description is so vague that it would suit every porter in the city. But did your colleague tell you who sent the letter?" "No, monsieur. Putting 10 sous in my hand, he said: 'Here, carry this to 39 Chaptal street. A coachman on the boulevard handed it to me.' Ten sous! I am sure he made more than I."

This answer seemed to disconcert M. Verduret. So many precautions taken in sending the letter disturbed him and disarranged his plans.

"Do you think you would recognize the porter again?" "Yes, monsieur, If I saw him."

"How much do you gain a day as a porter? "I don't exactly know, but I have a good stand. I suppose I make from 8 to 10 francs a day.'

"Very well, I will give you 10 francs a day if you will go about and look for the porter who brought this letter. Every evening at 8 o'clock come to the Archangel, on the Quai St Michel give me a report of your search and receive your pay. Ask for M. Verduret. If you find our man, I will give you 50 francs. Will you do it?"

"I think I will, monsieur." "Then don't lose a minute. Go on." Although ignorant of M. Verduret's plans, Prosper began to comprehend the sense of his investigations. His fate depended upon their success, and yet he almost forgot this in his admiration of this singular man. "Monsieur," said Prosper when the porter had left the room, "do you still think you see in this affair the hand of a woman?"

"More than ever, and a pious woman, too, and a woman who has two prayer books, since she could mutilate one to write to you."

"And you hope to find the cut book?" "A great deal of hope, thanks to the opportunity I have of making an immediate search, which I will set about

The columns were ordered to converge toward Mount Puros, a watershed about thirty miles from the west and fifty miles from the north coast of Samar. Simultaneously with this move troops were ordered to make a demonstration all over Samar in order to prevent the enemy fleeing to the south and east. The expedition "cleaned up," so to speak, an approximate total of 50 insurgents killed, 20 prisoners taken, 4 rebel strongholds and 20 barrios destroyed, 500 sacks of rice and 50 carabao captured.

The column from Mauo, under Captain Jackson, had for its sole purpose the capture of Lukban. It consisted of twenty Ilocano scouts and fifteen men

It was found necessary to bridge the first channel, which was done by fastening one end of a log to the shore, the other to the rock. A rope of bojuck, a strong vine, was stretched as a hand rail, and on this log, submerged several inches by the force of the current, the channel was crossed. The other two channels were big fellows belping the little ones.

On the next day, Nov. 17, the leeches made their appearance in force. These little pests are found only on the mountain slopes, never in the valleys. They are about an inch and a quarter in needle, and when they walk they hump from the grass and bamboo bushes and quickly enter leggings and shoes through the laceholes and fasten themselves upon the legs, usually about the ankles. They absorb blood until about the size of a man's finger, when they loosen their hold and drop off, leaving an open wound which bleeds for hours. A HUB STREET TRAGEDY

Two Men Dead as Result of a Trifling Remark

Contined on the Street, Where One -Pursued by a Crowd, He Puts a Buliet Into His Own Brain

Boston, Feb. 1.-Driven to desperation by the insulting language of a man whom he met for the first time yesterday afternoon in the barroom of the Shakespearean inn, on Beach street, in the central part of the city, John Bonette, a carpenter, 33 years old, shot and instantly killed George McGibbon, 30 years old, and then took his own life, before he could be prevented by the crowd that had pursued him. It was between 4 and 4:30 o'clock, when a dozen men were standing about money in payment. Noticing that the have been opened than expected. glass had not been properly rinsed, he spoke to the bartender about it, but the latter did not notice the remark.

sneer: "You'd better go to the Parker house if you're not satisfied here." This and blows, during which one of the men, the sidewalk the men were seen to face record. each other and exchange words, but what they said could not be heard.

Bonette's face was white with rage and at last he whipped a revolver from his pocket and fired at McGibbon full in the face. McGibbon fell back on the sidewalk dead, the bullet having entered his right eye and lodged af the base of the brain. All that had transpired had not occupied more than two min-

Bonette gave one look at the prostrate form, then turned and ran around the corner into Washington street, pursued by a crowd. Before they could seize him, Bonette turned about, faced his pursuers and pulling the weapon to his right temple, sent a bullet through his own brain, death being instantaneous. Captain Cain and a special detail of police were just leaving the station close by for duty in connection with the teamsters' strike, and the crowds that collected about the scene were quickly dispersed and the bodies of the victims were removed to the station house, where they were viewed by the medical examiner.

Many hundred people in the immediate vicinity heard the pistol shots and witnessed the suicide of Bonette. McGibbon was married and lived at 19 Warrenton street. He was a laborer, but had not been working yesterday and had been drinking heavily.

Bonette was a member of Carpenters' dustrious. Several recent pay envelopes were found in his pocket, but no from America. The Daily Mail calls at reads as follows: paper giving his home address, and the police have not as yet learned it.

Emancipation In Marriage. Though there can be no emancipation from marriage, this is not saying that | ing gild their lips. there may not be emancipation in mar-one sided contract in which the woman agrees to obey or to serve. To consent to make oneself another's subject or servant is unworthy of a human being even if done freely. In law we do not allow one person to sell himself into slavery to another. The contract is null and void. There is no reason in morals why a woman should put herself at the beck and call of a man. Any true marriage is a relation of equals. It is a relation in which the freedom of each is respected by the other. It is a relation of mutual service in which force is never used, in which command is never heard. If the wife is obliged to submit to her husband, that is barbarism, no matter who, what rite, what Bible, what law, sanctions it. Authority may be excused over children, it may be justified in the state, but to the extent it is exercised between partners in the marriage relation the beauty, the sacredness, of the relation is gone.

Cast Off Clothes.

Don't throw away the cast off clothes of the "grown ups." The economical woman should be wise enough to study out the possibilities of old cloth, and when she has once learned the art of making over she can keep her children nicely clothed with a very small outlay of money. Among the many useful articles which can be made from men's suits when they are past renovating is a nice suit for the small boy or a stylish jacket for the little girl.

A dress that is partly worn will still contain ample material for a small dress, and if one has no natural talent for making pretty new garments from old material it is an art that can be acquired and is well worth the trouble. especially in a household of limited

Drooping Plumes.

One of the most melancholy spectacles is a hat bedecked with gray, drooping and forlorn ostrich feathers that were once snowy white and now look quite as though life were not worth living since their curls had disappeared. The Evening Lamp.

Many housekeepers think that to turn down a lamp saves oil. In point of fact, it does nothing of the kind. The same amount of oil is consumed, only that which is not burned in a flame passes off as gas. You can notice this at once on entering a room where a lamp has been turned low for any length of time. Besides the disagreeable odor the gas is most injurious to flowers or plants that may be near it. If little light be required, a small lamp with a small wick should be kept turned up to its proper height.

Memorial to R. D. Blackmore.

The English fund for the memorial to R. D. Blackmore, author of "Lorna Doone," had reached the sum of $1,000 late in December, and more contributions were at that time expected from Blackmore's many readers in America. The fund will be devoted to the erection of a tablet upon the interior walls of Exeter cathedral, says Harper's Literary Gossip. It is fitting that the world should perpetuate the memory of the author of a book like "Lorna Doone," which is always loved and always in demand year after year. One of the most attractive editions of the book is that which has the beautiful photographic illustrations by Clifton Johnson. Mr. Johnson was the pioneer in this kind of illustrating. His photographs for "Lorna Doone" were made in the Doone country itself, which he thoroughly explored for the purpose, If you have a house for sale or to let or Richard Nicholson and Frank Major were miles over the moors which Blackmore tramping with his faithful camera for has made tamous.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The record of big business done at Keith's famous Boston playhouse during the engagement of Eugene Sandow, the "physically perfect man," has never been surpassed since the theatre was opened, and considering the fact that it has been at a time when all the other places of amusement were presenting extra strong attractions, it is nothing short of phennomenal. It is not strange, therefore, that Sandow should have had his time extended another week, and that for six days, beginning on Monday. Feb. 3, he will exhibit his splendid muscular development and perform astenishing feats of strength. The program, otherwise, will be an exceptionally attractive one, including such well-known artists as Homer Lind, late principal baritone of the Metropolitan English grand opera company, who will be seen in a new version of the French classic, "Gringoire," written for him by Willard Holcome, and with ballads and incidental music by Julian Edwards; the Baileys, "real coon" comedians, singers and dancers; H. M. Lorrett, a clever comedy juggler; the Five Noses, | musical specialists; the Lozelles, noted acrobats and equilibrists, and Keith's cycle whirl, which will be shown for the last times. Positive announcement is made of the coming of James J. Corbett, ex-champion pugilist, the week commencing Feb. 10.

PARK THEATRE. "Merecco Bound" is creating a sensation in Boston at the Park Theatre, and well merits the good things that are being said of it. The story is sufficiently strong and is an excellent vehicle for the fun with which the play abounds. The management of the cosy Park Theatre is being thanked and congratulated on all sides for hav ing given Boston the opportunity of seeing this stupendous and marvelous production before it opens in New York. The scenery is exceptionally realistic, the costumes rich and becoming, the music charming, the comedians exceedingly funny, the dances clever, the songs bright and catchy, the situations laughable, and the exceptionally large chorus is composed of the most beautiful girls available. The professional matinees on Thursday afternoons are attracting all the pretty girls from the other playhouses in Boston, and the management has been prevailed upon to continue giving matinees on Thursdays 209 Washington SA., Boston, Mas and Saturdays.

LOSS PLACED AT $2,000,000 Over a Hundred Men Killed by Ex-

Conflagration Started in Uphoistery Department of Dry Goe & Store at d Spread With Remarkable Rapidity -Origin Not Yet Ascertained

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 3,--In the hard est gale of the winter Waterbury struggled last night with a fire that destroyed a large area of the business section of the city and threatened to wipe it out completely. The blaze started in the upholstery department on the third from of the store of the Read & Hughes Dry goods company at 108 to 120 Bank street, and that store as well as many acjoining buildings were reduced in a few hours to smoldering embers. An estimate of $2,000,000 as the amount of the property loss on buildings and contents was considered conservative by insurance men. A wide swath was cut by the flames through the very heart of the business portion of the town, extending from the corner of Grand and Leavenworth streets to Bank street and thence across South Main street to Brook street. The fire also burned up and down Bank and South Main streets on both sides, doing enormous damage. The origin of the conflagration is not known. The fire was not discovered till it had gained tremendous headway. At 6:15 p. m., A. L. Lyall and E. T. Crooker and A. K. Burnham were in the store. When they left there was no smoke nor smell of smoke on the main

Fifteen minutes later flames were seen to burst with great force from the windows of the third floor and almost simultaneously from the basement. Before any body could rigg in an alarm the whole interior of the building was a mass of flames. When the fire department reached the scene, flames were pouring from every window of the building and it was evident that the structure was doomed at d was imperilled. The first building to catch from the

Reid & Hughes company store was a tall structure occupied by the Salvation | that institution, where he had been serv- posed that the meeting should be held Army barracks and a Turkish bath. A moment or two later the flames leaved back to the eastward across Bank street and wiped out the Ryan and Fitzmaurice block. Cannon & Webster's drug store, Davis' cigar store and the store of J. B. Mullings & Sons.

They burned rapidly through to South Main street, jumped across that street, shriveling the buildings like paper. At the same time the flames caught the temple and travelled from the Salvation Army building to the rear of the Franklin house on Grand street and the entire block, consisting of handsome five-story buildings, with 30 tenements and the large and commodious quarters of the Waterbury American, were in ruinsibefore midnight.

At 1 o'clock conservative esti nates placed the loss at $2,000,000. In despair of being able to subdue the flames by the usual methods the use of dynamite was suggested, but the idea was afterwards abandoned because it was feared the burning embers thrown up by the explosion would carry the flarres to distant sections of the city.

Shortly after midnight the fire, which had apparently been brought nearly under control, broke out in new places, and the efforts of the local firemen, combined with the ald given by the fire fighters and apparatus from Hartford, Torrington, Bridgeport, New Haven and Naugatuck, seemed poweress to stay its progress. The blaze was wiping out the business portion of the city, all the fire being confined to that section, though residential parts of the city were in danger by sparks driven by the furious wind.

In the panic caused by the fire there were many rumors of accidents and fatalities, but at the Waterbury hospital it was said that no accidents of deaths had been reported there.

It is reported that numerous thieves were operating in houses whose occupants had left them to view the blaze. A number of arrests were made. The fire at 2:30 was under control, with moderating wind. The flames were not out by any means, thoughtley were confined within the area already burned. The manner in which the flanes leaped from one building to another and even acroess streets was appalling and drove terror to the hearts of the spectators, for it seemed that no earthly power could check them.

As the special trains arrived bringing assistance to the Waterbury department, willing hands unloaded the apparatus and hurried it to the scene of the ire. Several times during the evening it looked as though the firemen nad finally

They objected to running fancy forts are being made to arouse the weaves on two looms, but did not strike against making "grays," as the undyed weave is designated.

Failing to convince the Messrs. Weeden that the double-loom system should be abolished, the strikers, through the Textile union, sought to pull out all the single-loom hands. To this end a mass meeting was held, which lasted until early midnight, and when a ballot was taken on the strike proposition, the single loom weavers, by a margin of nly two votes, decided not to strike, balloon across the river Scheldt. It was tacitly understood that if the strikers could pull out the double-loom weavers in the several mills operated by the company, thereby crippling it by naking it impossible to fill orders, independent mills would not object to sub. criptions being taken in aid of the strikers, and that as fast as doubleom weavers could be pulled out they would be furnished single loom work in independent mills. The scheme was to precipitate this move just as the big ouyers were coming into the market to urchase goods for next fall wear, for if the trust could not guaranty delivries because of a strike, independent mills would jump in and get the cream of the business.

The trust officials were made acquainted with the details, and intended scope of the proposed coup, and were watching to make a flank movement, and to spring a mine. This they did

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

Begun by National Civic Federation In Behalf of Teamsters

Boston, Feb. 3 .- The chief event of interest in connection with the teamsters' strike is the visit to this ciy of Ralph M. Easley of New York, secretary of the National Civic federation, who was sent by Chairman Hanna at the request of the Allied Freight Transportation council to investigate the strike.

Mr. Easley had interviews on Saturday with President Lincoln of the Chamber of Commerce and Charles F. Adams, representing real estate interests and the public at large, and later met labor leaders at the rooms of the state board of arbitration.

The strike and the causes leading up to it were discussed in all their detail and Mr. Easley was able to secure a pretty full idea of the situation, upon which he will submit a report to the members of the executive committee of the Civic federation. Mr. Easley 1eturned to New York Saturday night, but returned to Boston today to continue his investigations. Although the members of the Allied Trades unions are undoubtedly extremely restive and many of them would gladly obey an order to strike in sympathy with their brother workmen of the Teamsters' union, wiser counsel prevails and there is a general disposition to defer such action until the injunction petition of the R. S. Brine Trausportation company has been decided by the court, or until the efforts of the Na- to me." tional Civic federation to bring about a settlement have been exhausted.

Prince's Boston Itinerary

Boston, Feb. 3 .- The official program for the reception and entertainment of Prince Henry as the guest of the city of Boston was given out by Mayor Collins yesterday. The prince will be due here at 10 a. m., on March 6. The party will be driven under military escort to Hotel Somerset, where high officials will be presented to the prince. A little later the prince will call upon the governor. After leaving the state house the prince will visit the public library, where he will call upon the nayor. Afterwards the party will be driven to the residence of Mrs. John L. Gardner, and leave there at 1 o'clock for Cambridge. In the afternoon the prince will be at Harvard, returning to

Boston for the evening banquet. Labor Trouble Smoothed Over

Taunton Mass., Feb. 3.-The strike which has been in progress for a v.eek past at the Ames sfreet station of the Old Colony Street Railway company in Brockton has been settled, a murual agreement having been reached yesterday. The wages will remain the same as before, but the hours of labor are re duced from 12 to 10 and will be cut to nine hours after April 1. The Boycott placed by the labor unions upon the Old Colony Street Railway company will be raised immediately.

Five Arrests For Larceny

Boston, Feb. 3.-Upon complaint of the Boston and Maine railroad, which has suffered considerably by the theft of miscellaneous freight, Chief Inspector Watts' men arrested Walter E. Nourse, John Peterson, Edward P. Alpine, John Ward and Henry A. White against whom are preferred charges of arceny of goods of an aggregate value of $1700. White was an employe of a grocery firm. The others under arrest were employes of the railroad company

CHAPTER VIII.

HEN Raoul de Lagors spok of M. Fauvel's extraordinary dejection, he had not exag-20%0 gerated. Since the fatal day when, upon his denunciation, his cashier had been arrested the banker had been a prey to the most gloomy melancholy and absolutely refused to take any interest in business affairs. He who had always been so domestic did not mingle with his family except at meals, when he would swallow a few mouthfuls and hastily leave the room. Shut up in his study, he would see no

The day of Prosper's release, about 3 o'clock, M. Fauvel was, as usual, seated in his study, with his elbows resting on the table and his face buried in his hands, when his office boy rushed in with a frightened look.

"Monsieur, the former cashier, M. Bertomy, is here with a friend. He says he must see you on business." The banker started.

"Prosper!" he cried in a voice choked by anger. "How does he dare"-Then remembering that he ought to control himself before his servant, he waited a few moments and said in a tone of forced calmness: "Ask them to walk in." If M. Verduret had counted upon witnessing a strange and affecting sight, he was not disappointed. Nothing could be more terrible than the attitude of these two men as they stood confronting each other. The banker's face was almost purple with suppressed anger, as if about to be struck by apoplexy. Prosper was pale and motionless. They stood glaring at each other. M. Verduret curiously watched them with the indifference and coolness of a philosopher who in the most violent outbursts of human passion merely sees subjects for study. Finally, the silence becoming more and more threatening, he decided to break it by speaking to the banker.

"I suppose, monsieur, you know that my young friend has first been released from prison."

"Yes," replied M. Fauvel, making an effort to control himself-"yes, for want of sufficient proof."

"Precisely, monsieur, and this want of proof, as stated in the decision of 'not proved,' ruins his prospects and compels him to leave here at once for America."

At this information M. Fauvel's features relaxed as if relieved.

There was no mistaking the resentful, almost insulting intonation of the words "going away." "It appears to me," continued M.

"Ah, he is going away," he said

Verduret, "that Prosper's determination is a wise one. I merely wished him before leaving Paris to come and think-no, I could not think-that you follow you to the end of the world. pay his respects to his former chief." The banker smiled bitterly.

"M. Bertomy," he replied, have spared us both this painful meeting. I have nothing to say to him, and of course he can have nothing to say

This was a formal dismissal, and M. Verduret, understanding it thus, bowed to M. Fauvel, accompanied by Prosper, who had not spoken a word. When they reached the street, Prosper recovered the use of his tongue.

"I hope you are satisfied, monsieur," he said in a gloomy tone. "You exact ed this painful step, and I could only acquiesce. Have I gained enything by adding this humiliation to the others?" "I have," replied M. Verduret. "I could find no way of gaining access to M. Fauvel save through you, and now

I have found out what I wanted to know. I am convinced that M. Fauvel had nothing to do with the robbery." "Oh, monsieur," objected Prosper.

innocence can be feigned." "Certainly, but not to this extent. And this is not all. I wished to find out if M. Fauvel would be accessible to certain suspicions. Now I can say Prosper and his companion had stopped to talk more at their ease near the corner of Lafitte street, in the middle of a large space which had lately been cleared by pulling down an old house. M. Verduret seemed to be anxious and was constantly looking around as if he expected some one. He soon uttered an exclamation of satisfaction. At the other end of the vacant space he saw Cavaillon, who was running bareheaded and so excited that he did not even stop to shake hands with Prosper, but said to M. Verduret:

"They have gone, monsieur."

"How long since?" "About a quarter of an hour ago." "The deuce they did! Then we have ot a minute to lose." He handed Cavaillon the note he had vritten some hours before at Prosper's "Here, send him this and then return at once to your desk. You might be missed. It was very imprudent in you to come out without your hat." Little Cavaillon ran off as quickly as he had come. Prosper was stupefied. "What!" said he. "You know Cavaillon?" "So it seems," answered M. Verduret, with a smile. "But we have no time to talk. Make haste." M. Verduret suddenly stopped before a door bearing the number 81. He led the way up the steps and stepped on the second noor before a door over which was a large sign-"Dressmaker." A handsome bellrope hung on the wall, but M. Verduret did not touch it. He tapped with the ends of his fingers in a peculiar way, and the door instantly opened as if some one had been watching for his signal on the other side-a woman of about forty. She quietly ushered M. Verduret and Prosper into a neat dining room with several doors opening into it.

"Well?" he said by a look. She bowed affirmatively. "Yes."

"In there?" asked M. Verduret in a low tone, pointing to one of the doors. "No," said the woman in the same tone; "over there in the little parlor." M. Verduret opened the door pointed out and pushed Prosper into the little parlor, whispering as he did so:

"Go in and keep steady." But this injunction was useless. The instant he cast his eyes around the room into which he had been pushed without any warning Prosper exclaim-

"Madeleine!" It was indeed M. Fauvel's niece, looking more beautiful that ever. Standing in the middle of the room near a table covered with silks and satins, she was arranging a skirt of red velvet embroidered in gold-the dress she was to wear as maid of honor to Catherine de' Medici. At sight of Prosper the blood rushed to her face, and her beautiful eyes half closed, as if she were about to faint. She supported herself by the table to keep from fall ing. Her weakness lasted but a moment, and the soft expression of her eyes changed to one of haughty resentment. In an offended tone she

"What has induced you to be watching my movements? Who gave you permission to follow me, to enter this house?"

Prosper would have given worlds to said:

explain what had just happened, but he was powerless and could only remain silent. "You promised me upon your honor," continued Madeleine, "that you would never again seek my presence. Is this the way you keep your word?" "I did promise, but"-

He stopped. "Oh. speak!"

"So many things have happened since that terrible day that I think I am excusable in forgetting for one hour an oath torn from me in a moment of blind weakness. It is to chance-at least to another will than my own-that I am indebted for the happiness of once more finding myself my heart bounded with joy. I did not would prove more pitiless than strangers have been; that you would cast me off when I am so miserable and heartbroken.'

Had not Prosper been so agitated he could have read in the eyes of Madeleine-those beautiful eyes which had so long been the arbiters of his destiny -the signs of a great inward struggle.

It was, however, in a firm voice that she replied:

"You know me well enough, Prosper, to be sure that no blow can strike you without reaching me at the same time. You suffer, I suffer with you."

"You drove me away," said Prosper, and to obey you I told every one that I had left you voluntarily. You told me that an invincible obstacle had arisen between us, and I believed you, fool that I was! The obstacle was your own heart."

As white and motionless as a statue. Madeleine stood with bowed head before the storm of passionate reproach. "I told you to forget me."

"Forget!" exclaimed Prosper excitedly. "Forget! How can I forget? Is it in my power to stop by an effort of will the circulation of my blood? Ah, you have never loved! To forget, as to stop the beatings of the heart, there is but one means-death!"

"Good heavens, this suffering is be yond endurance! Prosper, if you only knew"-

"I know but one thing, Madeleine, and that is that you no longer love me and that I love you!"

He was silent. He hoped for an answer. None came. But suddenly the silence was broken by a repressed sob. It was Madeleine's maid, who, seated in a corner, was weeping.

Prosper had been so moved at finding Madeleine that he had not noticed her. He turned in surprise and looked at the weeping woman. He was not mistaken-this neatly dressed waiting maid was Nina Gipsy.

Slowly and almost unconsciously Madeleine had put on her wraps, which ready, she approached Prosper.

'We both have need of all the courage we can command. You are unhappy, Prosper. I am more unhappy. You have to shed a tear. While my heart is face. You can seek consolation in the fidant but God."

Prosper tried to make a reply, but his pale lips refused to articulate. He was stifling.

"I wish to tell you." continued Madeleine, fnat 1 nave forgoften nothing. But, oh, let not this knowledge give you any hope. There is no hope for us. But if you love me you will live. You will not add to my already heavy burden of sorrow the agony of mourning your death. The day may come when I can justify myself in your eyes. And now adieu, adieu!"

She kissed his forehead and rushed from the room, followed by Nina Gip-

Prosper was alone. He seemed to be awaking from a troubled dream. He tried to think over what had just happened and asked himself if he were losing his mind. When M. Verduret entered the little parlor, he strode toward him and in a harsh, threatening voice said to him: "Who are you?"

The fat man did not show any surprise at this burst of anger, but quietly answered: "A friend of your father. Did you not know it?" "This is no answer, monsieur. I have surrendered my will to a stranger, and now"-"Do you want my biography-what I have been, what I am and what I may be? What difference does it make to you? I told you that I would save you. It is essential that I save you." "Madeleine has ceased to love me, and of what importance is anything else?"

His heartbroken tone aroused M. Verduret's sympathy, and he said in a kind, soothing voice: "Then you suspect nothing? You did not fathom the meaning of what she said?" "You were listening!" cried Prosper fiercely. "I was. It was a presumptuous thing to do, perhaps, but the end listen, because it has enabled me to

"She does, but no human power can tear the secret from her. She sacrifices you. But, then, she almost has the right, since she first sacrificed herself. Prosper was convinced, and it nearly broke his heart to leave this little parlor where he had seen Madeleine. "Alas," he said, pressing M. Verdu ret's hand, "you must think me a fool! But you don't know how I suffer." For a moment Prosper was silent, then he said: "I have finally decided. My honor is near you. Alas, the instant I saw you a sacred trust for which I must account to my family. I am ready to Dispose of me as you judge proper." That same day Prosper, faithful to his promise, sold his furniture and wrote a letter to his friends announcing his intended departure for San Francisco. In the evening he and M. Verduret installed themselves in the Archangel.

THIS WEEK IN CONGRESS Lengthy Debates Will Consume Much

Time In Both Branches Washington, Feb. 3.-This promises to be an interesting week in the Louse. The oleomargarine bill is a special continuing order for today and after it is disposed of, which probably will be tomorrow, the bill for the repeal of the war revenue taxes will follow.

While both sides are unauimous in favor of the repeal of these taxes it is the intention of the Democrats to open up the whole tariff question during the debate on this bill and they will make a strong fight for ample time for discussion. The question of Cuban reciprocity is also likely to be debated at length, as members on both sides of the house are anxious to define their positions.

The friends of the oleomargarine bill have no doubt of its passage.

For the most part the senate will didive its time this week between the Philippine tariff bill and the bill increasing the salaries of members of the federal judiciary. The salary bill will be considered in the morning hour of the senate each day until it is disposed of, while the Philippine bill will continue to have right of way as the unfinished business after 2 o'clock each day.

The salary bill will be the subject only of running debate, but a number of set speeches will be made on the other meas-

It is not probable that the debate on the Philippine bill will be concluded during the week. The friends of the judicial salary bill hope to conclude its consideration at a comparatively early

Reports of Damage and Wreckage From Nova Scotia as Far, South as and-Barges Are Astray

Halifax, Feb. 4.-Sunday night's storm was the wildest in Nova Scotia for years and reports received here indicate that an immense amount of damage has been done. The gale reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour and the tides were very high. Many marine lisasters have been reported, but so far no loss of life is recorded.

Shipping has suffered severely and numerous fine vessels have been wrecked. It is roughly estimated from the information at hand that the damage to sailing vessels alone will amount to at least $50,000. It is estimated that the damage at Lunenburg alone will amount to at least $25,000. Fourteen vessels have been seriously damaged. Some of them are high and dry on the beach, while others were in collision.

The British steamer Mira, Captain Muir, is ashore near Yarmouth, and is a total wreck. The steamer left Boston Saturday morning, bound to Louisburg, C. B., with a small quantity of general cargo, and at 3 o'clock resterday morning she struck the ledge and stove a big hole in her bottom. The steamer began to make water immediately and the captain and crew of 35 men, seeing that their ship was loomed, made preparations to leave her. The water poured into the engine room, putting out the fires, and the steamer egan to settle fast. The crew, however, stood by the steamer until ('aylight, rockets being fired in the meantime. The shore folks, on seeing the against of distress, quickly came to the assistance of the ill-fated steamer. the steamer was quite near the land and the lines were run from the foremast to the shore and the crew were sent ashore in a basket. Captain Muir attributes the loss of his ship to the strong gales and adverse currents, as a short time before she struck he sighted what he thought was Cape Sable light. Along the Middle Atlantic New York, Feb. 4.—The gale which death and disaster to sailors and their Reports of loss of life are confined to the eastern end of Long Island, whence comes the news that several bodies have been washed ashore. If was not known what vessels the men who lost their lives came from. Wreckage stews the shore in the vicinity of the Bellport, L. I., life sating station and one body came ashore east of this station. One barge was thrashing about near Forge river station. The finding of other bodies was reported later from the same point.

The crews of the sea-going tugs John E. Berwind and E. S. Atwood had a most narrow escape from going to the bottom with their craft. Nothing was known of their paight until the arrival of the German steamer Barcelona, whose crew rescued the tug men. The tugs were absolutey helpless and gradually sinking when the Barcelona hove in sight and took the half-frozen crews aboard. Within half an hour after this the two tugs went to the bottom with the dunnage of the men. Reports from the south Jersey coast and Delaware river points indicate that vessels exposed to the gale weathered the storm fairly well. Two vessels are ashore a short distance north of Atlantic city, N. J., and two steamers are reported aground in Delaware bay, about 50 miles below Philadelphia.

Thinks Tow May Be Safe

Newport, R. I., Feb. 4.-Tug Richmond, which left New York with barges Antelope and Belle of Oregon, bound for Providence, put in here yesterday afternoon without her tow. Captain Oliver. while anxious about the barges, does not think they are wrecked. He lost the barges at 10:15 Sunday night, about 10 miles east of Fire island. The wind was then west northwest, blowing fiercely, and it was not possible to get another hawser to the tow. The tug then came here.

Barges Lost In Gale Fall River, Mass., Feb. 4.-Tug Cuba of the Staples Coal company of Taunton arrived here last night and reported the loss of her two barges, Mafanzas and Cardenas, off Block island Sunday night during the heavy gale. Each barge had 3000 tons of coal on board, and they were manned by a crew of five each. The Cuba cruised around all night hunting for the lost barges, but no trace of them could be found.

What is of vastly more importance is whether a democracy can execute the laws which it makes itself. Apparently there are people in New York and in the rest of the country who incline to think it cannot. That is the most important thing about all this contention .- New Bedford Standard.

Publicity is whatever we choose to make it a bane or a blessing. But commonly it works good rather than evil, for publicity is exposure to the of $300,000. Passed. light. The publicity which is so much deplored, and which is sought by candidates for social promotion and popular favor does vulgarize life. It gives a tawdry effect to society and amendments to the ordinance establishmakes the men and women who seek it seem cheap and unreal. But, doing this, it shows by contrast the excellence of modesty and simple worth, For the rest publicity is a great detective and friend of the truth. For our national problems we need to know all that is to be known. Indeed, in time everything will be known. STRUGGLE ON IN EARNEST bixty-Five Hundred Operatives at

Olneyville Out of Work Providence, Feb. 4.—The lockout in the four large mills of, the American Woollen company in Olneyville took effect yesterday, in pursuance of the order issued by the officials to meet the action of about 150 weavers who were endeavoring to precipitate a general strike against the double-loom system. About 650 operatves in all depart nents are idle as a result.

There has been no sign of disturbance among the strikers or the locked out employes. The officials of the Textile union, anticipating a prolonged struggle, are planning to carry the strife to the mills of the American Woollen company n other cities, particularly the Washington mills in Lawrence, Mass. It is their intention to tie up as completely as possible the mills of the American Woollen company at a time when its entire output is needed to supply the orders for fall goods.

Much concern is felt by the former employes and the merchants in Olneyville. Fully 10,000 persons are dependent upon the woollen mills for sustenance, and the shutdown means a weekly loss of over $50,000 to the employes with consequent stagnation of business.

Disastrous Weather Abroad

London, Feb. 4.-Reports of damage caused by the wind and snowstorms on the continent and in Great Britain continue to be received. Carriage and street car traffic in Madrid has been stopped. Some of the towns in northern Spain are isolated and fruit trees have been destroyed. Many : illages in Switzerland are cut off from communication. There is now more snow in Venice than at any time during the past 25 years. The lower portion of Rome is flooded. Several more wrecks off the British and French coasts are reported and the crews of some of these vessels have been lost. Numerous ships are northern part of Great Britain. Several steam trawlers have not been heard from for a month.

junction Proceedings Boston, Feb. 4 .- The result of nearly three days' conference over the teamsters' strike between the state board of arbitration, delegates of the National Civic federation, the Teamsters' union and counsel of the R. S. Brine company, against which the strike has been directed, was summed up in a statement issued last night by the state board, in which the teamsters are urged not to take further action until the result of the injunction proceedings in the superior court is made known.

Judge Braley of the superior court yesterday afternoon heard the strikers' side of the case, which was a direct conis the sign of The Good seek, but he will take good care to tradiction to the testimony of the employes of he R. S. Brine company. Instead of hindering the drivers of that company in their work the witnesses, all union men, said that they did everything possible to assist the Brine drivers in getting about the city. They had used no epithets, thrown no bricks or stones or blocked the Brine teams. The hearing was continued until today.

The Brine company had about onefifth of its teams on the streets yesterday and each day sees an increase in the number. It is expected that the decision of the court wil be rendered before the end of the week.

Mrs Soffel Had Assistance

Pittsburg, Feb. 4.-If she lives, in addition to answering to the charge of aiding prisoners to escape, Mrs. Soffel will be confronted by charges of furnishing the Biddles with firearms and aiding the felonious assault upon the jail guards and the officers who effected the capture in Butler. Mrs Soffel is already taking steps to defend herself. The prison board is satisfied Mrs. Soffel had as sistance within the prison walls.

LANSDOWNE SUSTAINED

In His Reply to the Dutch Peace Proposition

ENGLAND FIRMLY OPPOSED

To Intervention of Any Foreign Power In South African War-Burghers In the Field Are at Liberty to Open Negotiations If They So Desire

London, Feb. 5.—The morning papers re unanimous in applauding Lord Lenslowne's dignified and courteous reection of what is regarded as a rather ingenious attempt on the part of the Dutch government to draw Great Britain into making peace overtures to the capitals besides The Hague.

The Daily News, representing the pro-Boers, admits that the reply of Lord Lansdowne is irreproachable in style: nd temper, congratulates him on the vindication of the "old diplomacy," and fervently prays that any further negotiations may remain in the same lands.

The Times says that Lord Lansdowne has given the only possible answer to the curious Dutch proposal. "The decision of the government," says The Times, "shuts the door to dangerous possibilities of intrigue and reduces the Boer emissaries who fled their country to their proper level of insignificance." The reply of Lord Lansdowne to the communication of the Netherlands, on the subject of peace in South Africa, outlines the proposition of the Netherands government and says: "His majesty's government have given it their best consideration, and while entirely appreciative of the inotives of humanity which led the Netherlands government to make this proposal, they feel they must adhere to the position adopted and publicly announced by them some months after the commencement of hostilities by the Boers, that it is not their intention to accept the intervention of any foreign power in the South African war.

"Should the Boerdelegates themselves desire to lay a request for a safe conduct before his majesty's government there is no reason why they should not do so. But, his majesty's government, obviously, are not in a position to express an opinion on any such application until is not at present clear that the deleor have any voice in their councils. If this be so, it is evident that the quickest and most satisfactory means of arrect communication between the leaders of the Boer forces in South Africa and the commander-in-chief of his majesty's forces, who has already been instructed to forward immediately any offers he may receive, for the consideration of his majesty's government.

"In these circumstances, his majesty's government have decided that if the Boer leaders should desire to enter into negotiations for the purpse of bringing war to an end those negotiations must take place, not in Europe, but in South Africa.

It should, moreover, be borne in mind that if the Boer leaders are to occupy time in visiting South Africa, in consulting with Boer leaders in the field, and in returning to Europe for the purpose of making known the results of their errand, a period of at least three months would elapse, during which hostilities would be prolonged and much human suffering, perhaps, needlessly

Efforts May Be Renewed

The Hague, Feb. 5 .- Opinions here differ concerning the action of Dr. Kuyper. Many persons think the Dutch premier was ill-advised in making the proposal before feeling his ground. The evening papers recognize the courtesy of Lord Lansdowne's re-ply and indicate that efforts toward mediation will be renewed at a more favorable period.

Financial Condition Improved Kingston, Jam., Feb. 5 .- At the opening of the colonial legislature yesterday Governor Hemming anounced, for the first time in many years, a slight surplus in the transactions of the year. The improvement in question is due, in a great measure, to the growth of the fruit trade between Jamaica and the United States and England.

WATERBURY FIRE LOSS

Taken In Stories of Incendiarism Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 5 .-- The talk of incendiarism as the cause of the conflagration which swept through the business section of the city Sunday night is pronounced rubbish by owners of the buildings where the flames first broke out. George F. Hughes, head of the dry goods firm of Reld & Hughes, in v:hose building the original blaze started, says that the outbreak of the fire was undoubtedly due to defective electric light wiring. The second fire, which originated in the billiard room of the Scovill house, is now pronounced due to smouldering flames in goods from the burning buildings stored there.

The ruins on Bank and South Main streets are still burning spasmodically. announced their intention of rebuilding at once. "We are knocked down, but not counted out," says Mayor Kilduff.

As more accurate figures become will not be as heavy as was first believed. A prominent insurance nan, whose firm had written policies on nearly every one of the burned buildings, is positive that the loss will not exceed $1,500,000. The fact that tenants of buildings some distance from the spot where the fire started were able to save much of their property materially reduces the first estimate.

Anti-Catholic Resolutions

London, Feb. 5.-At a great united Protestant demonstration held here last night resolutions were passed against the confessional and the celebration of mass within the church of England. The resolutions pledge resistance to attempts to change that portion of the royal declaration in which the sover ign pledges the rejection of the so-called "distinctive errors" of the church of Rome. They also urge the government to enforce the law concerning the exclusion of monks and Jesuits from Great Britain.

Captain's Body Washed Ashore New York, Feb. 5 .- The body of another victim of the wreck of the barges, the debris from which has been floating ashore along the Long Island seacoast, floated ashore near Smith Point yesterday. The body was identified as that of Captain C. L. Miller of the barge Antelope. This establishes without doubt that the Antelope was one of the barges wrecked. The Antelope was one of the three coal laden barges bound for Providence, in tow of the tug Richmond.

Dowie Will Give Up $250,000 Chicago, Feb. 5 .- On the announcement in court yesterday by the counsel in the Dowie-Stephenson suit for receivership of Zion Lace Industries that an agreement had been reached by the parties to the suit out of court, Judge Tuley dismissed the suit. Arizona Marshalship Will Go to Ben Daniels

PRISON RECORD WIPED OUT

Rough Rider-President Personally salaries of cabinet officers from $800 Interested In Appointment to an to $12,500 a year. During the re-Office Requiring Physical Courage

Washington, Feb. 5.-The discovery of a prison record of Ben Daniels, whom | tinued in the house and the prospect Most of the heavy property owners | President Roosevelt recently nominated, whose buildings were destroyed have and whose nomination the senate unanimously confirmed, for marshal of Arizona, comes rather late to make any difference in the prospects of the apobtainable, it is evident that the totalloss | pointee. As a rule, President Roosevelt will have nothing to do with jail birds; this country praying for the suspension but this is subject to modification.

One of his theories of life is that a and asking that an opportunity be given man may live down an unfortunate for a discussion of the situation bepast; and another is that the code of con- tween the government and Philippine duct which rules in a community of one civilization may be both inoperative and ineffective in a community of a different civilization.

An editor who had been imprisoned for blackmail and libel in Washington of state for delivery by United States he would promptly refuse to consider for even a doorkeeper's place; whereas a reformed highwayman might be made a collector of customs at a particularly perilous point on the Mexican border. His aim is to avoid putting square pegs into round holes, and the converse. In Ben Daniels' case it is doubtful whether the president knew of the prison episode; the senate committee probably did not. Daniels' enemies appear to have concealed it till the appointment had actually been made and the commission prepared, perhaps with a view of putting the president "in a hole." The president knew, and frankly stated to the senators who discussed the nomination with him, that Daniels had been a faro dealer and other things which would unfit him for appointment as marshalin Boston or New York or Philadelphia; but the demands of a marshalship in Arizona are largely for physical courage which nobody will dare question, nerves of steel, knowledge of all sorts of human nature, personal acquaintance with most of the "bad" men of the territory, their habits. associations and haunts, and a fashion of square dealing when his word is pledged. As a rough rider, the president had put Daniels repeatedly to the test and found him never wanting, and his splendid military service was deemed to have thrown a veil over any of his shortcomings in the past. He is the kind of a man who, if sent to do a thing, counts

The selection was personal with the president, and in the teeth of the advice of sundry politicians. It was made on the strength of Daniels' agreement to let cards and liquor and dublous companions severely alone as long as he remains in the public service.

It is not generally known that, after the confirmation of the nomination, the president wrote Daniels a personal by which the vessel might be identified. letter, in which he said that he had given, as president, a pledge for Daniels' good behavior, and that all the return he (the president) asked for this mark of his esteem was the best administration as marshal that Daniels was capable . f giving the people of Arizona.

It was a thoroughly friendly but earnest letter, and gave the new appointee some excellent advice, among other things urging him to put himself at once in touch with some of the highest and best federal officers of the territory, whose influence the president knew would be for good. The only contingency which would be druggists.

The Superintendent of Schools of more apt, or who are nor injured by home study could reach the High school in advance of the other section. An objection to this might come from the parents of dull or indelent pupils, for ambition is not always bounded by ability, but there seems to be good sound reason for the suggestion and it deserves the attention of the board. Home study is objected to because it is at a forcing process that many believe to be detrimental. If, on the other hand, those whom it will not injure and those who have a thirst for knowledge that slow processes will not supply, can have the opportunity to advance, we see no reason why they may not be gratified .- Lynn Item.

Eliminated In War as Far as England Is Concerned

Now 97 cts. THE AMBITION OF KRUGER

Declared by Salisbury to Be Responsible For Sorrow and Desolation-England Has More to Fear From Irish Than Her South African Foes

London, Feb. 6 .- Premier Salisbury unveiled a life-size marble statue of the late Queen Victoria at the Junior Constitutional club last night. Speaking at a ownner after the unveiling the premier referred to the recent Dutch note. saying that, for himself, he was unable to imagine the object of the Dutch government, for whose friendly feelings he had the greatest admiration, but he could not see the precise object they hoped to gain by this curious step. It was clear that the Dutch had no authorization from our enemies on the continent, since from the moment this action on the part of the Netherlands government was announced these enemies vied with each other in declaring the Dutch action to be undesired. Her majesty's government certainly knew nothing of the Genesis of this movement. "There is no longer any question of sentiment," continued Lord Salisbury. We have entered upon a matter of busi ness which we must push through. What we are now seeking is security. Any peace which recognizes fully the rights of the sovereign and gives us semade from curity for the empire we should accept, not only with willingness, but with de-

"It is useless to tell us to behave so as to leave a pleasant recollection in the minds of those with whom we are fighting. The only result that can compensate for the sacrifice of blood and treasure is that, for the future, there shan be securinty in that part of the empire upon which the ambition of Mr. Kruger has poured this abundance of sorrow and desolation." Lord Salisbury said he had no misgivings for the future and that he believed the war had made the country more confident in its external policy more convinced that its opinions would receive due consideration from the committee of nations.

But when the present strain Lad passed away, continued the speaker, there would still remain duties which could not be shirked. The existence of hostile feeling in Ireland was a signal that the efforts upon which depended in no light degree the glory and coutinuance of the empire must not be relaxed. "The maintenance of our position in Ireland is the most vital object the empire has, and it can only be attained by strenuous exertions," said the premier.

The premier asked if the Irish people loved the government better than they did formerly, and replied himself that they did not. He said that the feelings of hostility which had been expressed were more uncompromising than any expressions which had ever issued from the lips of Parnell or O'Connell. An Irish government, with power to accumulate arms and ammunition, would constitute a more serious threat than had the Boers. While the orthodox leader of the Liberal party had declared Limself in favor of home rule, said the speaker, the semi-orthodox leader of that party, whose utterances were harder to interpret, while he had not pledged himtrary might be inferred.

The premier concluded with saying that the conspicuous duty of the unionists was to maintain a permanent june tion between England and Ireland, and that it was by sustaining this junction that they would maintain the greatness of the constitution and the splendor of the British empire.

Delegates Claim Plenary Power The Hague, Feb. 6.-As an outcome of conferences held here the Boer delegates have issued a communique thanking the Dutch government for its efforts towards bringing about peace in South Africa. The delegates affirm they possess plenary powers still in full force, and declare that the reply of Great Brit ain to the Dutch note proves that the only object of the former country is the extermination of the Boer nation.

How Spain Hoped to Check War With United States.

ENGLAND NOT CONSULTED

Because She Could Not Stand Aloof From Common Action by Europe-Austria's Intervention Proposal Rejected at St Petersburg

Paris, Feb. 6 .- The following statement is made by an official who held a very high position during the early days | When he was made cognizant of it, he of the Spanish-American war and it is undoubtedly authentic:

"The Spanish government believed that Queen Victoria would support any step taken with a view to preventing the war and coming to the aid of the queek regent. It attributed at that time, perhaps, too great an importance to the intervention of the queen in the cumcils of the British government. It was not ignorant of the fact that Mr. Chamberlain was in agreement with Lord Saliscepted. The plaintiff testified that no Madrid government the idea that any mission of pacification would be well received by England. English tociety entertained the most hostile spirit towards the United States. It had not been able to forget the Venezuela affair and in Lendon it was thought the proper thing to support the Spaniards. "Thus the principal diplomatic effort of Spain was brought to bear on the central European powers and more parteularly Russia. It was not thought that England would take the initiative in its favor, but being convinced that England would not dare to stand aloof from a common action undertaken by Europe to bring about peace, Spain thought before everything else to win

This reply quickly undermined the friendly disposition that France and Germany had at first shown towards Spain, and the pacific action of the powers, instead of being exercised collectively and of great moral authority, reduced itself to individual advice,

"The Austrian emperor, for family motives, had taken the initiative in pro-counselling Spain to make concessions. "England was not, therefore, called upon to declare itself. The sympathies of certain statesmen in the Conservative cabinet were certainly for the United States, but they were not required to display them. They afterwards insinuated that their role had been to hold Europe in check to the advantage of the United States. As is seen from the fore going they did nothing of the kind."

President Roosevelt has received a protest signed by a number of well known women against the method of enforcing the custom laws in New York relating to the examination of the baggage of returning tourists.

Orift of Opinion.

It is very noble to go to the re lief of a relative who is in financial distress but to take other people's money for the purpose is something an honorable man should never even by the company's fire department think of. The excuse of the Superintendent of the City Hospital of Worcester, for his venality, does not place him in an enviable light. But who could have embezzled $8,400 and no one know anything about it? The auditor says the Trustees claimed to be a law unto themselves, and the Mayor avers the department handicapped for water, that they refused to give any information. In that case they ought to bear alarm to call the superintendent of the a part of the responsibility. - Lynn Water department,

A contemporary speaks approv ingly of the act of the mayor of another city, who dropped an unmarried man from the police force and put a married one on in his place. This is the first intimation that a man who is unmarried has no right to hold a job if a fellow who has a family is after the work. Merit must, in the opinion of at least one mayor and one newspaper, give way to the crying question of the hour: "Is he married, and how many youngsters are there in the family?' It is a great thing to have a family, sometimes. The fact that a man has a wife and children is the argument raised that every day saves a number of men from jail. The new scheme is, it appears, to allow a man precedence over another in getting work because of the fact that he isn't single. Possibly if it were understood that there was to be nothing but starvation for the single men there might be a great boom in matrimony. "Get married or you don't eat" would be a strong argument in favor of matrimony .- Brockton Enter-

The reports of the untold agricultural richness of the islands have not been exaggerated, but the development of the island resources depends largely on the labor supply. Not 1 per cent of the ablebodied Filipinos will work steadily. A Filipino will work for two or three weeks, then, having a little money, will quit work and remain away, utterly regardless of the interests of his employer. Not until he is reduced to a state of absolute want will be return to work. To this rule there are a few exceptions. House servants, coachmen kind work steadily and faithfully for the same employer for years.

"In the opinion of many people who understand the labor situation in the Philippines the industrial development of the country depends upon the introduction of Chinese and Japanese labor. A white man cannot work in the Philippines with any comfort. The climate aborer cannot do heavy work in the ablebodied male Filipinos who will not turn their hands to labor of any kind except when it is absolutely necessary to keep the wolf from the door. This is not, in my judgment, a war condition. this out of them.

due to the fact that it is impossible for to perform heavy labor."

BANNER YEAR FOR GIFTS.

All Previous Records of Public Donations Outstripped In 1901. In the history of public gifts and bequests which have been bestowed or became operative in the United States during past years all previous records have been surpassed by the year 1901, with a total of $107,360,000. Here is a table showing the amounts ontributed during the last nine years: Total. $421,410,000 -New York Times.

Miss Clara Barton Today.

Miss Clara Barton, president of the American division of the Red Cross society, is an interesting little woman, slender and under medium beight and looking years younger than her actual age by reason of her fresh complexion, alert manner and a pair of kindly, sparkling brown eyes, which can never from a vestige of gray, she wears parted, brushed low at the sides and rolled smoothly back over the tips of her

Color and Room Schemes, The secret of success in artistic house furnishing is the harmonious blending of wall and floor covering with the woodwork rather than indiscriminate following of the latest style For instance, red wall covering is fashionable and combines most effec tively with woodwork in dusky Flemish oak, but is thoroughly unsuited to golden oak, which calls for a dull, soft blue in burlap or cartridge paper.

Fried In Oil.

If fried foods disagree with you and you are longing for some favorite dish which is forbidden because of its being fried, try cooking it in olive oil. This, as you know, is a vegetable fat and therefore not likely to hurt one. Parsnips or carrots fried in olive oil and salted and peppered to taste are delicious. The oil gives a different flavor to food, but be sure you have good oil.

"After charging twice what his food and rooms are worth he tacks on a further charge for service, another for lights, another for bath, another for fire. In short, my experience of country inns in England-and I can speak with some authority-is that I pay as much a day at a shabby little country inn of England, where the food is poor and ill cooked, the attendance inferior and the beds poor, as would at a good hotel in such towns as Springfield, Mass., or the very best in Switzerland or Germany. Indeed, it must have struck the average American that the incomparable Baedeker hardly ever finds it possible to recommend an English hotel."

SENATORS WARMED UP

ARMY WILL NOT RETURN

Until It Comes Back Victorious-Opponents of Administration's Policy Have Their Say-All Thoroughty Loyal and Doing Their Duty

Washington, Feb. 7 .- For four hours vesterday the senate had the Philippine tariff bill under discussion. The measure was completed, so far as the Philippine committee is concerned, all of the committee amendments being adopted. Several other amendments, however, will be offered.

Toward the close of the session the liscussion became heated. In response to a resolution, the secretary of war ransmitted to the senate the sedition laws enacted by the Philippine commission and they were read in full.

Mr. Hoar expressed his astonishment that such laws should be enforced by the government authorities.

Mr. Foraker had read from the re vised statutes of the United States the laws of congress relating to the crime of treason and similar offenses against the government, and said that the acts passed by the Philippine commission were almost identical in their language with the laws enacted by congress in the days of the fathers of the republic and that there was nothing unprecedented or unusual about them.

Mr. Foraker said that the senator from Massachusetts (Mr. Hoar) seemed to have no objection to the law enacted by congress merely because there was little likelihood of its being violated in this country, although he had questioned at first whether such a law had been enacted under any authority of the United States. For the protection of our government in the Philippines, the Taft commission had applied that law to the Philippines he said.

Mr. Hoar, again interrupting Mr. Foraker, and directing attention to the declaration in the senate chamber of Thomas Corwin of Ohio, during a debate on the Mexican war, that if he were a Mexican he would welcome the Americans with bloody hands to hos pitable graves, inquired if the people o Ohio did not reverence the name and memory of Thomas Corwin.

Mr. Foraker replied that the people of Ohio did love to recall the memory of said, that in the great emergency he had made a profound mistake.

In response to a question from Mr. Patterson Mr. Foraker said there was not a single word in the sedition laws adopted by the Philippine commission which would enable the authorities to touch any man who was loyal to the United States. In this reply he referred particularly to an act, which provocate any policy inimical to the gov-ernment of the United States or its control of the islands.

Mr. Tillman said that he had seen a statement from General Chaffee that practically the entire Philippine popuation was imbued with a hatred of Americans. "In view of this statement" said he, "must we continue this infamous tyrannical, British, South African"-then hesitating a few seconds, he continued: "I'll stop right there because I can't find a word hot enough to apply to the situation."

"I want to say to the senator and to the senate," retorted Mr. Foraker, with great vehemence, "that our a my will never come back from the Philippines until it comes back victorious. This may as well be understood now as at any future time."

Mr. Hoar concluded the debate of the afternoon, and in the course of his remarks paid a brilliant tribute to Thomas Corwin, who, in the face of a hostile senate, had uttered the sentiment which he had quoted earlier in the day. He declared that the great questions now before the country could be discussed temperately and calmly. It was a great question whether this powerful republic should crush the life out of a republic modelled after our own government it was a great question how the slaughter of both Filipinos and Americans was to be stopped.

"Men as good as I am, wiser than I am," said he, "differ from me upon these questions. I do not believe the distinguished senator from Ohlo wants to do injustice to any one. Some men however, show their love of the flag by protecting it against violence and some show their love of the dag by by the Bangor and Aroostook road for keeping it pure and as a symbol of jus- an indicated price of $220,000. The proptice. The one is an honorable thing and lerty so surrendered includes all franthe other is an honorable thing. Those who are resisting the present policy of our government in the Philippines are quite as loyal as those who are supporting it." The difference of opinion which had arisen among the people, he said, in conclusion, was the "legitimate result of this miserable Philippine busi-

If there is one individual in Washington who has a pet scheme who did not endeavor to present that scheme to Mr. Carnegie the other day, the hotel manigement wants to see him. It is believed he would be a rare specimen.

All kinds of people tried their best to see Mr. Carnegie, from the man who wanted a loan of $5 to the fanatic with a marvelous invention which only needs a thousand or so to make it the greatest thing in the world. They were persistent, too, as people of this class usually are, and would not take no for an answer when they asked if they could see the object of their search. Several stayed about the hotel nearly all day in hopes of catching Mr. Carnegie as he entered or left the building. They were, without exception, poorly dressed and bore unmistakable traces of fanaticism. None succeeded in seeing Mr. Carnegie, and they were compelled, after being refused an audience three or four times, to depart into the blizzard. One old man was particularly in sistent. He must have been something over fifty, and his clothes looked almost as old as himself. He wore a brick colored overcoat, frayed into streamers at the bottom and almost collarless. In lieu of buttons it was tied together in one or two places in front with heavy twine. His head was cocoanut shaped. A red bandanna handand a dark, straggling beard covered his face and looked as if it had not been combed for a year. He gripped a worn out umbrella in one hand and other. The latter, he explained, contained his great invention, about which he wanted to see Mr. Carnegie. transmission of messages would seem to have been reached in the wireless telephone system which has recently been developed by Professor A. assessment in addition, making the ural electrical currents in evidence One of the unusual receipts was water expenditures just $15,324.26 in slightly below the surface of the earth at any point that may be selected, and by this invention currents of this character are utilized to cause a flow of electricity between two instruments stationed above the surface of the earth. The only underground mechanism employed consists of small zinc wire screens which are buried in shallow holes, one at the sending station and the other at the receiving station Above these are tripods supporting transmitting and receiving apparatus such as is employed in ordinary telephony, a wire affording connection in each case with the buried screen When the electricity from a storage battery is turned on, sounds of all kinds may be sent through the transmitter and heard in many instances even more distinctly than were a regular overhead telephone employed.

The Collins invention in its simplest form is adapted to sending a message but one way-that is, it is not possible to utilize a receiver as a transmitter and reply to a message received, but the transmitter and receiver are each equipped with an annex for performing the opposite function, so that to all intents and purposes this new telephone is not different from the instruments already in use.

The Gray Hair Microbe.

Dr. Metchnikoff, who is an authority on the microbe theory, claims, according to a Paris telegram to the London News, to have discovered why our hair turns gray. The change from red, auburn, brown, black or golden is due he says, to a bacillus that devours the coloring pigment and which he calls the pigmetophagus. Like all infinitesi mal creatures, this microbe proliferates with an activity approximating to perpetual motion, and it is a voracious feeder. The strong vital resistance of youth keeps it down. Should Be From the Customs, Because of the Small Amount Derived From Land Tax-Wants Big Reduction of Our Philippine Imports

Washington, Feb. 7.-Governor Taft appeared before the senate committee on the Philippines yesterday with the intention of taking up the senate Philippine tariff bill and of devoting his attention to the revenue and tariff conditions of the Philippine islands, but before beginning with the subject he replied to a number of questions by Senator Carmack bearing upon subjects heretofore covered by the governor in his testimony before the committee. Getting down to the tariff question

Governor Taft said there never had been a land tax in the islands and he attributed this immunity to the influence of the friars, who had large holdings, and to the owners of large hacierdas. The commission had imposed a land tax. There had been opposition to the system, but this was disappearing. The income from this tax would be small for a time, because of the fact, due to the retarded development of the country, that only 5,000,000 acres f the £5,000-000 acres of agriculturel land in the Philippines is held by private owners.

Replying to inquiries, the witness said the Spaniards had a method for acquiring government lands similar to our homestead system, but advantage had ed interminably long. Prosper tried not been taken of it because of the complications of Spanish metaods. He also said there had been much of fraud on land matters and he urged that in the disposal of the public lands of the should be recognized.

Judge Taft said that the assessable taxable property in Manila would not "You will see me at your room about exceed $30,000,000. This, he added, this time tomorrow night. It was necessary at all times to guard against the plague and there are from 15,000 to 20,000 lepers in the entire archipelago.

These conditions, he explained, rendered it necessary for the central government to bear part of the expenses

Taking up the subject of general taxation he said the commission is making an effort to make the customs tariff the only source of revenue "ard while," he said, "we should be glad to -have free trade with the United States, in order to insure the progress of agriculture, we cannot but feel that if it is fair to collect a tariff on goods coming into the Philippines from the United States, it is only fair to provide for a tariff on Philippine articles coming into

He said that the tariff adopted by the ing to from 15 to 30 percent, reduced to an advalorem system, and that the effort had been to place the higher tariff on luxury and the lower on necessities, thus reversing the Spanish system.

Replying to a question as to the effect of the removal of the export duty on hemp exported from the Philippines, Governor Taft said that nothing could be done to change the conditions in that respect. "We can sell all the hemp we can raise," he said. "The effect of the provision would be greater on sugar. apprehend that the anxiety of foreigners to secure the hemp product of the Philippines has led to the furrishing of much of the sinews of war of the Explaining the reason for the adoption of the specific system, Governor Taft said this had been done in order to save both time and expense. "Wherever Chinamen are found," he added, sanuggling is a fine art."

A New Irish Leader

Belfast, Ire., Feb. 7 .- The r.ost stunning blow which British rule in Ireland has received since Parnell's day was dealt yesterday, when the east division of County Down returned James Woods, an opponent of the government, to parliament, and defeated the government candidate, Colonel R. H. Wallace. It is looked upon as a revolution in Irish ways been a stronghold of Orangemen. The revolution has been brought about by the great strength of the new move ment in favor of compulsory buying out of the Irish landlords. The most en thusiastic leader in this movement is T. W. Russell. Today 'tussell is looked upon as one of the greatest men in the Irish Nationalist party.

No Joke For Passengers

New York, Feb. 7 .- First delaying the New York Central's "crack" train from Chicago for half an hour in order that his private car might be property heated, and then running off with the engine in order that he might not be late in getting to Buffalo-these were the tricks William K. Vanderbilt played on the passengers of the Lake Shore limited Railroad men are telling the story with great merriment, but the passengers who arrived two hours and 10 minutes late failed to see the joke.

Dynamite Carelessly Handled

New York, Feb. 7 .- Dyna lite caused a panic again yesterday in the vicinity of the fatal upheaval of 'an, 27, and while no one was killed, for a time excitement ran high and the presence of ambulances to convey the two wounded to hospitals gave rise to the report that another terrible disaster had occurred. The scene of the explosion was Park avenue, but a short distance from the big disaster. It was caused by careless use of dynamite

O'Neill's office was small. He did not need a larger one. Young lawyers seldom do. There are several good reasons why they don't, but that has nothing to do with this story.

The office was also an inside onethat is, it looked out on a court, a great well-like space bounded by four and the book, until then only dreamed walls-not blind, blank walls, but walls fairly bristling with staring, impudent

Behind those windows myriads of busy men and women worked at schemes by which they hoped to enrich themselves and, sometimes, inci. ed more ignorant of his meaning than dentally to impoverish others; schemes they really were. "I wish she'd move her desk," he muttered half angrily one day as he found himself as usual watching instead window working so busily that she could find it together." had no time to discover that opposite her was a young man whose valuable time she was wasting. Or if she had, thing that he had condemned the satyr she had never revealed the fact. But the ways of a maid with a man are not always simple and she may have been wiser in her generation than he perhaps, there was a difference.

fore he was fearful that it might come to pass, so he cried out hastily, as if anxious to propitiate some jealous eavesdropping god who might take of the saint, whom his friends call him at his word: "No, I don't. I'll take it all back, dear little saint." In fairy they share is colloquially known as tales men have been granted thoughtless wishes to their own undoing and she was the princess of his fairy tale.

Why, then, did he call her the saint? He hardly knew. He certainly could not have told why if asked. Yet he felt that it suited her better than any other name he might have used. Perhans it was because she never seemed conscious of him-saints have a way of ignoring poor mortals; perhaps because she parted her dark hair, Ma. of that name, akin to the llama. In donna wise, over her rather pale face eighteenth century romances we often in a fashion that added solemnity to read of garments made of paduasoy, its youthful seriousness; perhaps be. which was simply a smooth kind of cause the man who sometimes stood silk originally made at Padua, soy or near her, dictating letters to her, looked such a sinner that by the law of contrast he made one think of saints.

"Old satyr!" he growled at him as, watching from the shallow depths of his bare little office, he saw him lay a too familiar hand on the girl's shoulder. "I don't like his polygamous eyebrows. By Jove! What a scoundrel!" For the satyr had suddenly stooped and kissed the saint.

O'Neill saw the start which showed how unexpected the caress was, could almost hear the frightened exclamation with which she sprang to her feet. In another moment she stood with her hat on, covering her typewriter, and then she was gone.

The young lawyer was hot with rage, fiery with righteous indignation. He flung himself into the corridor and started around in blind zeal to do something, anything. The need for action was strong within him. But before he made the first turning he felt how impotent he was, for he realized instinctively that the saint would shrink from the publicity of a scene.

But he was determined that she should work no more for that man if cup and said in brisk tones: he could help it. Doesn't a saint belong to the one who worships? And have not men of all times and of all nations come forth gladly to death rather than have their idols desecrat-

COMING OF HENRY OF PRUSSIA THE UPPERMOST THEME.

How Bob Evans Met the German Sailor Prince-Pranks of the Roosevelt Youngsters - Disappointment of Sightseers.

[Special Correspondence.]

Washington, Feb. 4. — The coming visit of Prince Henry of Prussia is of course the principal theme in Washington society, official and otherwise, and elaborate preparations are being made for it. That he will have a most cordial welcome at the White House is assured. It is the desire of the president to show the distinguished visitor every honor befitting a prince of the royal blood and as the personal representative and kinsman of the German emperor, but at the same time to have the ceremonies as simple and unostentatious as possible, conforming to our democratic traditions.

The selection of Rear Admiral Evans to receive the prince in the harbor of New York is regarded as especially appropriate. Rear Admiral Evans speaks German and could address the visitor

HAVING FUN IN THE WHITE HOUSE. and his staff in their own tongue, though this is not essential, as Prince Henry speaks our language fluently. They are, however, personally acquainted and are said to have a decided admiration for each other.

Rear Admiral Evans became acquainted with Prince Henry in a rather unusual way. It was at the celebration of the opening of the Kiel canal some years ago. Evans, then a captain was there in command of the cruiser New York, which took part in the naval demonstration. At the reception given on board the German flagship Captain Evans scraped an acquaintance. American fashion, with a German officer in captain's uniform whom mittee.' he did not know. The incident greatly pleased the prince and led to something more than passing friendship, which makes Rear Admiral Evans' selection for the pleasant duty he is to perform especially opportune.

The old adage, "When the cat is away the mice will play," is exemplified at the White House as well as in less notable households. The Roosevelt youngsters are full of pranks and lose no opportunity for fun.

velt are absent there is a furious ringing of elevator and call bells from all quarters. The first time that this occurred the ushers and attendants rushed wildly about seeking the cause. It developed that each of the children had selected a bell and was operating it to see whom it would bring. The other day when the elevator bell rang one of the attendants from the front door rushed back and started up. When between floors, a door was opened above, cutting off the current, and the elevator stuck. The operator was about to call for help, when laughing faces looked down upon him, and he was tauntingly asked, "Do you wish to go up or down?" "Are you in a hurry?" "Which floor do you wish to stop at?" and a dozen other questions. After imploring, beseeching and finally threatening, he heard the door softly closed and then a scurrying of children's feet. Many sightseers who come to the White House grounds to get a glimpse of the president as he goes for a walk are frequently disappointed. They see him, but do not recognize him, which is quite as disappointing as if they did not see him at all. While they are expectantly waiting the doors are suddenly thrown open and a heavy set man, with short, close fitting coat, felt hat, tan gloves and shoes, steps on to the portico and, walking hurriedly, passes to the driveway and out through the west gate. The sightseers look up for an instant and then move away The president, as he is, is not their idea of what they expected to see. They do not recognize him, and he is gone before they have time to inquire of the friendly policeman when the president will come out and to receive the reply that he has already gone.

Taft Urges Discrimination Toward the Philippines

CONTRACTS ARE EXPLAINED

Asks For Power to Pass Corporation Laws-Would Purchase Lands of Friars, That They Might Be Encourage to Seek Other Fields

Washington, Feb. 8.-The senate committee on Philippines yesterday continued its consideration of the question of the revenue of the Philippines islands, Governor Taft being still on the

Referring to his previous statement that sentiment was the main reason for asking a substantial reduction of the rates of the Dingley law so far as they apply to the Philippines, he said the idea he had meant to convey was that the Philippine commission welcomes every evidence of a desire on the part of the American people to aid the Philippine people. He believed that any such evidence of discrimination would aid the Philippine administration in its work. That in time such a concession as was proposed would be of vast benefit to the farmers of the islands—and practically all the inhabitants were farmers-be did not doubt. He was sure the political effect would be good, but that there would be any immediate substantial effect he did not think was true.

Speaking of the new revenue bill passed by the Philippine commission, he said that, so far, the effect is conjectural; but that it was hoped the amount under the impetus it would give to the trade would soon equal the returns secured under the old law, which was $9,000,000 or $10,000,000.

Governor Taft explained the contracts which had been let for harbor immade from provements, involving an expenditure of $3,000,000. Contracts had been let for the construction of 20 launches for the transportation of mail of provincial officers. He had asked for bids from San Francisco, he said, but they were Governor Taft asked for power to pass general corporation laws. Most of the enterprises there now, he explained, are controlled by English capital.

Governor Taft said there was nothing more important for congress to do than to authorize the purchase of the lands held by the friars. Nothing gave the Filipinos so much trouble as the friars. It was hoped that the friars would go to other countries if their lands were purchased, but there was no power to evict them.

Governor Taft brought up the matter relative to the treason statute of the Philippine commission. In Hopes of Finding Him Provincetown, Mass., Feb. 8.-Henry Marshall, who disappeared Tuesday For Ultimate Success of the night from the Cook House at the edge of the sand dunes, is still missing. The mystery connected with his disappearance has given rise to the rumor that Marshal has been the victim of foul play on the part of parties unknown. The men with whom he spent the first part of the night are convinced that Marshall's death was caused by freezing on the sands, or that he wandered into East Harbor pond and was drowned.

It is safe to say that every square rod of the sands portion has been scanned by hunting throngs, but this cannot be said of the forest area, which is thickly covered with a growth of brush and brier of jungle density, almost impenetrable. Little of the wooded section was covered except by to the dunes.

German Birthday Cakes.

The custom of having a birthday cake is widespread in Germany. I know it for certain that it is prevalent in the province of Saxony, in Hanover and the mark of Brandenburg. Ass many lights as the one whose birthday it is has years are stuck around the cake, or the Torte, a thick one in the middle, called the Lebenslicht, the light of life. For persons advanced in years: one candle must do duty, as otherwise too many would be required, or a skillful lady expresses the exact number of years in Roman figures (XX, L). When Moltke completed his seventieth year during the campaign of 1870-71, Crown Prince Frederick William, later on Emperer Frederick, presented him with a cake adorned with

But Madeleine was the object of universal admiration, beautiful and queen ly in her costume of maid of honor, which seemed to have been especially invented to set forth her superb figure.

Forgotten by the crowd, the clown had taken refuge in the embrasure of a window, where he kept his eyes upon a couple not far off. It was Madeleine, dancing with a splendidly dressed doge the Marquis de Clameran. He appeared to be radiant, rejuvenated and to all appearances triumphant. At the end of a quadrille be leaned over his partner and whispered compliments with the most unbounded admiration. Incommoded by the stifling heat, Ime. Fauvel had sought a little fresh air in the grand picture gallery, which, thanks to the talisman called gold, had been transformed into a fairylike garden, filled with orange trees, japonicas, laurel and many rare plants. The clown saw her seated near a grove not far from the cardroom. Upon her right was Madeleine. On her left stood Raoul de Lagors, dressed in a costume of Henry III.

"I must confess," muttered the clown young scamp is very handsome."

Madeleine was very sad. She had plucked a camellia from a plant near by and was mechanically onlling it to pieces as she sat with her eyes downcast. Raoul and Mme. Fauvel were sitting together in conversation. Their faces were composed, but the gestures of one and the trembling of the other betrayed preoccupation and a serious discussion. In the cardroom sat the doge, M. de Clameran, so placed as to have full view of Mme. Fauvel and Madeleine, although himself concealed. "It is the continuation of yesterday's scene," thought the clown. "If I could only get behind those camellias, I might hear what they are saying." He pushed his way through the crowd, but as he reached the desired spot Madeleine arose and took the arm this heartrending scene, which should of a bejeweled Persian. At the same serve as a warning to us all." ment Caoul went into the cardroom

"Ladies and gentlemen, this very conversation, and friends and enemies | morning I obtained a license from the authorities of this town. And what ty of approaching the banker, some to for? Why, gentlemen, for the purpose assure him of their sympathy, and oth- of exhibiting to you a spectacle which has already won the admiration of the four quarters of the globe. Inside of this booth, ladies, is about to commence the representation of a most remarkable drama, acted for the first time in Peking and translated by our most celebrated authors. Gentlemen, you can take your seats. The lamps greeted her friends. Her beauty had are lighted, and the actors are changing their dress."

No one would have supposed her to be forty-eight years tledrums

"Now, ladies and gentlemen," he resumed, "you wish to know what I am doing outside if the piece is to be performed under the tent. The fact is, gentlemen, that I wish to give you a foretaste of the entertainment which you may enjoy by paying the small sum of 10 cents. You see this superb picture? Very well. It represents eight of the most thrilling scenes in the drama. Ah, I see you begin to shudder. And yet this splendid picture gives you no more idea of the acting than a drop of water gives an idea of the sea or a ray of light of the sun.

"Do you know this clown?" asked an enormous Turk of a melancholy Punch "No, but he can imitate a trumpet splendidly.

"Oh, very well indeed! But what is he driving at? The clown was endeavoring to attract the attention of Mme. Fauvel, who since Raoul and Madeleine had left her had abandoned herself to a mournful reverie. He succeeded. The showman's shrill voice brought the banker's wife back to a sense of reality. She started and looked quickly about her, as if suddenly awakened from a troubled dream. Then she noticed the clown.

"Now, ladies, we are in China. The first picture on my canvas, here to the left"-he pointed to the top daub-"represents the celebrated Mandarin Li Fo in the bosom of his family. This pretty woman leaning over him is his wife, and these children playing on the carpet are the fruits of a happy marriage. Do you not inhale the odor of happiness emanating from this speaking picture, gentlemen? Mme. Li Fo is the most virtuous of women, adoring her husband and idolizing her children. Being virtuous, she is happy, for the wise Confucius says, 'Virtue is better than vice.' '

Mme. Fauvel became interested. She left her seat and approached nearer to the clown.

"Do you see anything on the banner melancholy Punch of his neighbor. "No. Do you?"

The fact is that the daubs of paint on the canvas represented one thing as well as another, and the clown could call them whatever he pleased.

"Picture No. 2!" he cried after a rolling of drums. "This old lady seated before a mirror tearing out her hair. especially the gray ones-do you recognize her? No, you do not. She is from his post of observation, "that the the fair mandarine of the first picture. I see tears in your eyes, ladies and gentlemen. Ab, you have cause to weep, for she is no longer virtuous, and her happiness has departed with her virtue. Alas, it is a sad story! One fatal day she met on the streets of Peking a young ruffian, fiendish, but beautiful as an angel, and she loved

> During this tirade he had turned about till he faced the banker's wife, whose countenance he closely watched while he was speaking.

"You are surprised, gentlemen," he continued. "I am not. The heart never grows old, and the most vigorous wallflowers flourish on old ruins. This unhappy woman is nearly fifty years old-and in love with a youth! Hence

"Really," grumbled a cook dressed in white satin, who had passed the evening in earrying around menus which no one read, "I thought he was going to amuse us."

"But," continued the clown, "you must go inside of the booth to witness the effects of the mandarine's folly. At times a ray of reason penetrates her diseased brain, and then the sight of her anguish would soften the most unpitying. Enter, and for the small sum of 10 cents you shall hear sobs such as the Odeon never echoed in its haleyon days. The unhappy woman realizes the absurdity and inanity of her blind passion. She confesses to herself that she is madly pursuing a phantom. She knows but too well that he in the vigor and beauty of youth cannot love a faded old woman like herself, who vainly makes pitiable efforts to retain the last remains of her once enchanting beauty. She feels that the sweet words he once whispered in her charmed ear were false. She knows that the day is near when she will be left alone, with nothing save his mantle in her hand."

As the clown addressed this voluble description to the crowd before him he narrowly watched the countenance of the banker's wife. But nothing he had said seemed to affect her. She leaned back in her armchair perfectly calm and occasionally smiled.

"Can I be on the wrong track?" muttered the clown uneasily.

M. de Clameran joined the circle. "The third picture," the clown continued, "depicts the old mandarine after she has dismissed that most annoying of guests-remorse-from her bosom. She promises herself that interest shall supply the place of love in holding the seductive youth. It is with this object that she invests him with false bonors and dignity and introduces him to the chief mandarins of the capital of the Celestial empire. Then, since so handsome a youth must cut a fine figure in society, the lady must needs to sacrifice all of her possessions for his sake-necklaces, rings, bracelets, diamonds and pearls-every jewel she possesses. The monster carries all these to the pawnbrokers on Tientsi street and then has the cruelty to refuse her the tickets, so that she may have a chance of redeeming her

The clown thought that at last he had fulfilled the conditions. Mme. Fauvel began to betray signs of uneasiness. Once she made an attempt to rise from the chair, but it seemed as if her strength failed her, and she sank back, forced to listen.

"Finally, ladies and gentlemen," continued the clown, "the richly stored jewel cases were emptied. The day came when the mandarine had nothing more to give. It was then that the young scoundrel conceived the project of carrying off the jasper button belonging to the Mandarine Li Fo. a splendid jewel of incalculable value, a badge of dignity. It was kept in a soldiers night and day. Ah, the manthe innocent soldiers would be accused and crucified, as is the custom in Peking, and this thought restrained her. But her lover besought her so tenderly that she finally yielded to his entreaties, and the jasper button was stolen. The fourth picture represents the guilty couple stealthily creeping down the private stairway. See their frightened look—see"

He abruptly stopped. Three or four of his auditors rushed to the assistance of Mme. Fauvel, who seemed about to faint. The clown felt his arm roughly seized by some one behind him. He Lagors, both of whom were pale with anger.

"What do you want, gentlemen?" he asked, with his most gracious air. "To speak to you," they both answer

"I am at your service." He followed them to the end of the picture gallery, near a window opening on a balcony. Here they were unobserved except by the man in the Venetian cloak, whom the clown had addressed as "monsieur the count." The minuet having ended, the orchestras were taking a brief rest, and, the company pouring into the gallery, it became very crowded. The sudden faintness of Mme. Fauvel had passed off unnoticed save by a few, who attributed it to the heat of the room. M. Fauvel had been sent for, but when he came hurrying in he found his wife having as much control over his tem-

PRESIDENT'S SON SICK

the wife of the president, left Washington yesterday afternoon for Groton, Mass., where their son, Theodore Jr., is seriously ill of pneumonia. The first information to reach the president and Mrs. Roosevelt of the illness of their son was received at the White House by telegraph at 9:20 yesterday morning. The message was signed by the president of the college where the boy is a pupil and stated in effect that a slight indisposition had developed into an acute and sharp attack of pneu nonia, and that he was seriously ill.

The latest information received at the White House from the president's son was that his condition was a little more favorable. The president feels encouraged to hope that it may continue so, and that the necessity for a visit to Groton may be avoided. The school at Groton has been closed for two weeks because of the prevalence of pneumonia, and serious colds. Just how many cases of pneumonia there are the school authorities will not state. All of them, however, are due to the fad young Roosevelt introduced of going bareheaded.

The illness of Theodore, Jr., has changed the president's plans considerably, and it is possible that he n:ay cancel his trip to the Charleston exposition. Should the boy become werse, there is no doubt that he will cancel his plans and go to his bedside.

Stallions Fought to the Death

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. S .- Two Percheron stallions imported from England fought a duel to the death on a fast stock train on the Union Pacific. Washington, Feb. 8 .- New England, through her delegates in congress, flatly condemns the recent attitude of the ways and means committee with respect to Cuba, and unequivocally declares for tariff concessions to the island, both as icy. There is not a senator from a New England state who is not an outspoken and ardent advocate of the administration's scheme for helping the Cubans.

If there is a New England representative who disagrees with his senators on this point he is not making public his views. Senators l'latt of Connecticut, Gallinger of New Hampshire and Proctor of Vermont, all Republicans, have said that they believe the Cnited States is bound in honor and as a matter of self-interest to help Cuba; and at three senators have further declared that they take this position without yielding a particle of their devotion to the cause of protection. Lord Kelvin once made some interesting calculations of the probable total amount of gravitation matter in the visible universe. He showed that if 25,-000,000 years ago 1,000,000,000 masses, each equal to our sun, had been distributed through a sphere about 18,-000,000,000,000,000 miles in radius they would now have acquired velocities about equal to those known to be possessed by the stars visible to us. Therefore it is probable that the total amount of gravitational matter in the visible universe does not differ much from that of 1,000,000,000 suns.

GOVERNOR RESIGNS Handicapped In Prosecutions Because of Action of Military Manila. Feb. 10 .- The governor of the town of Cagayan, province of Misamis, has resigned, claiming that the military authorities there do not recognize his authority in refusing to receive his writs of habeas corpus.

Some months ago, many of the leading officials of Misamis province were arrested because they tendered a banquet to an insurgent colonel, and because it was proved that they had also contributed funds to the insurgent cause. At that time General Davis requested that the province be transferred from civil to military control. The military authorities in Misamis refused to allow the prisoners to be represented by a lawyer sent by the civil commission from Manila for that puroose, claiming the arrested officials to be prisoners of war. Later General Chaffee instructed General Davis to release the prisoners in question and notified the civil authorities when and where they could arrest them should they desire to do so. But the fact that their offense was committed before the passage of the law of sedition makes further action in the matter improbable, General Chaffee deeming it inadvisable that civilians should be tried by a mili-

Gloucester, Mass., Feb. 10.-Precedng the annual memorial services for the sailors of Gloucester lost at sea the past year, at the McClure chapel of the Seamen's society last night, the congregation walked from the chapel to Atlantic wharf and with bowed heads heard a prayer by Rev. Mr. Rider and then saw 69 boquets thrown into the sea by children of the Loyal legion, a boquet for each sailor who had left the port and not returned. Then the gathering sang a hymn and returned to the chapel for the memorial services. The boquets were furnished by the Women's Christian Temperance Union. This preliminary service was inaugurated for the first time and the solemnity with which it was carried out caused many a strong man to weep.

Terrible Conflagration

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 10.-A great fire swept through Paterson yesterday and in its desolate wake are the embers and ashes of property valued in preliminary estimate at $10,000,000. It burned its way through the business section of the city and destroyed a majority of the finer structures devoted to commercial, civic, educational and religious use, as well as scores of other

There was but small tribute of life and injury to the conflagration, but hundreds were left homeless and thousands without employment. A relief movement for the care of those unsheltered and unprovided for has already been organized and Mayor Hinchecliffe says that Paterson will be able to care for her own without appealing to the charity of other communities and states.

The great manufacturing plants of the place are safe and the community temporarily dazed by the calamity has already commenced the work of reorganization and restoration. The fire came at midnight Saturday, and was only checked after a desperate fight that lasted until late Sunday afternoon. Every city and town within reach of Paterson sent firemen and apparatus to the relief of the threatened ity, and it took the united efforts of them all to win the battle. A northerly gale gave the conflagraion its impetus and carried its burning brands to kindle the blaze afresh at other points. The firemen made stand after stand before the wall of fire, but were repeatedly driven back and when victory finally came to them they were exhausted. An estimate made from a general inspection of the smouldering ruins placed the number of dwellings and apartment houses destroyed at 500 and imber of families left withou shelter at 1000. A re-estimate when order succeeds confusion may alter those figures either way. The fire began at the power house of the Jersey City, Hoboken and Paterson Traction company. It was in the car shed that it commenced and it was burning fiercely when one of the employes detected it. The firemen tried to hem it in, but it burned unchecked down into the business district. Every piece of fire mechanism in the city was called out, but fire and gale were masters. There were efforts to rescue furniture and stock, but the speed with which the fire moved gave the rescuers but little time. Property was often moved to a place of presumed safety only to be eventually reached and destroyed. The warning to many was but brief and they were forced to flee, scantily clad. into streets glazed over with ice and swept by the keen wind of vigorous

The business section of the town lyng between Prospect, Broadway, Paterson and Market streets, was wiped out completely. The residence portion destroyed extended from Pearl street to Market street and from Straight street to Carroll street. The city hall, all the national banks, five churches, the high school and all the principal business houses and public buildings were in the ruined section.

What started the fire is not certain but it is thought one of the feed wires running into the car barns was responsible. From the car barns the by and these were burned before the first call firemen reached the scene. LODGING HOUSE BURNED Eleven Persons Lost Their Lives In a Fire at St Louis

Snow Squal Off Halifax Halifax, Feb. 10.-The Allan line steamer Grecian, Captain Harrison, from Liverpool, ran ashore five miles from this city at 3 o'clock Sunday norning and now lies on the rocks on the western shore full of water. The steamer had 300 tons of general cargo, and one passenger. No lives were

The Grecian left Liverpool on Jan. 25 and after a stormy passage she reached St. Johns, where a quantity of cargo was discharged. She left St. Johns on Thursday evening, and fine weather was experienced all the way. Off this port, at 2.30 yesterday morning, at Chebucto Head, Pilot Flemming boarded her.

The weather was then clear and the harbor lights were plainly visible. Suddenly a thick snow squall set in and everything was obliterated from view. After she had gone about two miles soundings were taken. After covering another mile the man on the lookout shouted "land ahead." The engines were reversed and the steamer was sent full speed astern. She had not gone more than 90 yards when the stern crashed against a monster rock, known as the "holy stone." A great hole was torn in the steamer's stern and she rebounded forward and went on another bed of jagged rocks, which ripped up several of the plates on her bottom. The Grecian was over a mile out of the regular channel, which is marked by buoys and lights, and seafaring men cannot understand how she got in such a position soon after having taken bearings from Chebucto Head.

PRESIDENT AT GROTON

His Sick Son

PATIENT IS COMFORTABLE

No Change For the Worse and Was Overjoyed at Visit From Father-President May Not Return to Washington Until Late In the Week

Groton, Mass., Feb. 10.-Although President Roosevelt, upon his arrival at the Groton school yesterday afternoon, did not find his son, Theodore, Jr., alarmingly ill with pneumonia, still the lad's condition was not sufficiently reassuring to warrant the president's immediate return to the national capital. The boy, with two other schoolmates, Horace B. Potter of New York and William Gammell of Providence, both having pneumonia, lie in large, airy rooms on the second floor of the college

Mrs. Roosevelt has been with her son or two days, and he greeted the president cheerily. It was stated that his condition is unchanged and that he is olding his own well.

The school has been dismissed and the 150 boys have scattered to their homes upon an enforced vacation. All three of the sick boys are having the est medical attendance

The president's stay here is indefinite. Ithough it is not believed that it will prolonged much after Wednesday, nless the boy's condition takes a turn for the worse. The president has thought it well to stay here, until he has ome assurance of his son's recovery.

The president arrived here at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after an neventful trip of 14 hours from Washngton. The train pulled into the South station in Boston at 12:45 p. m., yesterday, but was immediately hauled out from the station and around the city through Cambridge to the Grand Junetion station of the Boston and Maine railroad. The run from Boston to Ayer Junction was made in a little over 40 minutes, and there the car was swiftly transferred to the Worcester, Nashua and Rochester division of this road, the train arriving in Groton at 2:30 p. m.

The president was delighted to find that the boy's head was very clear and that he was overjoyed to see his futher. President and Mrs. Roosevelt, together with Secretary Cortelyou, are being entertained at the house of Willlam A. Gardner, one of the instructors

Nothing unusual happened during the evening. The president, Mrs. Roosevelt and Secretary Cortelyou went for a short walk after dinner around the school campus. One by one the lights n the infirmary went out and at 11 o'clock only a dim light was showing at one end of the building. Shortly after that the announcement was made that the boy was resting quietly and that his condition was unchanged. It appears that quite a number of the boys have contracted colds during the past three or four weeks, probably from strenuous exercise and lack of caution afterwards. It is said that it has been the habit of some of them to play handforced the vaults of the Lemon Banking | ball in the closed court and then, while perspiring freely, to dash across the campus to the gymnasium clad only in the lightest of clothes. Only four, however, contracted pneumonia, although one case resulted fatally. The other boys contracted severe colds, but were able to return to their homes when school was dismissed last week.

Mr. Faxon Happy and Promises to suppress liquor selling and shall Further Tips to Police.

Never has there been such a wholesale raid upon illegal venders of intoxicating liquors in Quincy as on Sunday. The police under Chief Hayden started a few minutes past noon and from that hour until after 6 o'clock a wagon was kept busy transporting the liquor seized to the Police station. The liquor was in cases, barrels, bottles and jugs and when the police finally completed their labors the corridor of the little police station under City Hall was little room to reach the doors of the

For several years the corridor leading from the City Clerk's office to the rear of the building has been clogged up with ballot boxes, a safe, ash pan, etc., so that if a person unacquainted with City Hall should attempt to pass through there in the dark he stood a filled full of goods, and there was but good chance to get the skin taken off of his shins. Last year, however, this door way was closed and a bookcase placed against it, so that it could not be opened. This obliged the young lady clerks to pass through the City Messengers's office, there and they were smoking it was anything but pleasant for the young ladies who often times had to go through blinding smoke and take chances of being tripped up by some of the chairs or feet that were sprawled about. Things finally became so disagreeable that the young ladies would go out doors on the front of the building when business called them to another part of the building rather than run the gauntlet of men in the City Messenger's office.

Mayor Bryant was not long in getting onto this state of affairs and the result is that the door so long barred is now open again, and the young ladies are happy once more.

MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE Strong Circumstantial Evidence Results In Conviction of Greenleaf

Laconia, N. H., Feb. 10.-George H. Greenleaf, an inmate of the Merrimack county almshouse, was found guilty of murder in the first degree of Mrs. Nancy Jane Folsom, by the jury this morning. The jury retired to consider the evidence at 8 o'clock Saturday night. It reached a verdict at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. The jury was told that the court would be in readiness at 12.30 this morning, when Greenleaf was brought from the jail to the court room. He heard the verdict with no outward

Mr. Martin, senior consul for Greenleaf, called the attention of the court to the exceptions taken during the trial. The justices held a brief consultation and then ordered a recess. The jury was discharged, and Greevieaf reconducted to the jail. The assembling of court at such an early hour is thought to be without precedent in the jurisprudence of New Hampshire.

Mrs. Folsom was murdered on the road from Boscawen to Pennacook on Oct. 23 last. She was in her team on the way to the depot to get her daughter at the time. She had been killed by a blow on the head, apparently inflicted by a rock, which had fractured her skull. Suspicion early pointed to Greenleaf, who lived at the almshouse, and he was arrested. The state's case was on circumstantial evidence based on three strong featuresblood stains on Greenleaf's clothing, his absence from the almshouse about the time the murder was committed and certain expressions towards Mrs. Fol-

Alleged Forgery of Certificate

Boston, Feb. 10.-Joseph T. Mitchell of Medford was arrested Saturday night, charged with forging a corpora tion certificate and uttering the same the complainant being O. E. Lewis The arrest is the result of the incorporation of the Boston and Lynn Steamboat Express company, of which Mitchell is treasurer. A certificate was issued in July, 1900, bearing the name of Lewis as one of the incorporators. Lewis claims that his name was forged by Mitchell. The state is also interested, since a charter has been granted upon an alleged forged document.

Church Destroyed by Fire Centerville, R. I., Feb. 10.-Fire broke out in the Methodist church here yesterday during the session of the Sunday school. A neighbor saw smoke coming from the roof and told the school superintendent of his suspicion that there was a fire. The scholars were sent out without knowledge of the fire. The blaze soon broke through the roof and the structure was burned, only the walls being left standing. Buildings in the neighborhood were frequently afire, but the damage to them was not great. The church was insure for about $6000.

Murder In Italian Colony

Providence, Feb. 10.-In the Italian colony here Saturday night, Natale Tonelli was shot by his brother-in-law, Geromi Pennuzzi, at the home of Tonelli. Pennuzi entered the room as Tonelli was eating his supper. Without a word of warning Pennuzzi commenced shooting, four shots taking effect in the region of Tonelli's heart and he died in a few minutes. Family affairs is said to have been the motive for the crime. Pennuzzi made his es-

"Upon my word," he said as if speaking to himself, "this is the strangest thing I ever heard of! How can my drama of the Mandarine Li Fo have any allusion to Mme. Fauvel, whom I don't know from Adam or Eve?"

"Do you pretend," said M. de Clamemisfortune?" "A misfortune?"

M. de Clameran made no reply. A nudge from Lagors had calmed him as if by enchantment. He seemed to regret having uttered the significant words drawn from him by excitement. "Very well," he finally said in his usual haughty tone. "I must have been mistaken. I accept your explanamaking any explanation." "Monsieur"- began De Clameran.

"Allow me to finish, if you please If unintentionally I have offended the wife of a man whom I highly esteem, he is her protector; not you. Perhaps von will tell me he is too old to demand satisfaction. If so, let him send one of his sons. One of them is here. You asked me who I am. In return l ask you who are you-you who constitute yourself Mme. Fauvel's champion? Are you her relative, friend or ally? What right have you to insult her by pretending to discover an allusion to her in a play invented for amusement?"

There was nothing to be said in reply to this. M. de Clameran sought a means of escape.

"I am a friend of M. Fauvel," he said, "and this title gives me the right to be as jealous of his reputation as if it were my own. If this is not a sufficient reason for my interference, I must inform you that his family will shortly be mine." "Ah!"

"Next week, monsieur, my marriage with Mlle. Madeleine will be publicly announced."

This news was so unexpected, so startling, that for a moment the clown was discomfited. But it was only for a second, and, bowing with deference, he said, with covert irony:

"Permit me to offer my congratulations, monsieur. Besides being queen of the ball tonight, Mlle. Madeleine will have a dowry of half a million, I

A warning look from Raoul checked the forgemaster from using an epithet which would have led to an affray or at least a scandalous scene.

The clown stood with a sardonic smile and after a moment's silence stared M. de Clameran steadily in the face and said coolly:

"I was the best friend, monsieur, of your brother Gaston. I was his adviser and the confidant of his last wishes."

These few words fell like a clap of thunder upon De Clameran. He turned deadly pale and recoiled with his hands stretched out before him, as if shrinking from a specter. He tried to answer, to protest, but the words froze on his lips.

"Come, let us go." said Lagors, who retained his equanimity. And he dragged Clameran away, supporting him, for he staggered like a drunken man and clung to the walls to prevent falling.

"Oh, bo!" exclaimed the clown. He himself was almost as much astonished as the forgemaster and stood stock still, watching the latter as he slowly left the room. It was with no decided object in view that he had ventured to use the last mysteriously threatening words, but he had been inspired to do so by his wonderful instinct, which with him was like the scent of a bloodkound. "What can this mean?" he muttered. inquired. "Yes and no, monsieur the countno, because I have not completely an, "to be ignorant of M. Fauvel's achieved the object I had in view when I asked you to be admitted here tonight; yes, because these two rascals "I refer, monsieur, to the robbery of behaved in a manner which dispels all

"I do not complain, monsieur the count. On the contrary, I bless chance, or, rather. Providence, which has just revealed to me the existence of a secret that I did not before even suspect." Five or six guests approached the count, interrupting the speakers. He went off with them after giving the clown a friendly nod. The latter instantly threw aside his banner and started through the crowd in pursuit of Mme. Fauvel. She had left the gallery. He found her sitting on a sofa in the large salon, engaged in an animated conversation with Madeleine. "Of course," muttered the clown, "they are talking over the scene. But what has become of Lagors and De Clameran?" He soon saw them wandering among the groups scattered about the room and eagerly asking questions. "These honorable gentlemen are trying to find out who I am. Keep it up, my friends. Ask everybody." They soon gave it up, but were so preoccupied and anxious to be alone in | jured. order to reflect and deliberate that, without waiting for supper, they took leave of Mme. Fauvel and her niece, saying they were going. The clown saw them go up to the dressing room, take their cloaks, descend the grand staircase and depart.

"I have nothing more to do here," he

And, completely covering his dress with a domino, he started for home. He lit a eigar and, walking up St. Lazare street, crossed the Notre Dame de Loretto and made for the Faubourg Montmartre. Suddenly as he entered Ollivier street a man emerged from a place of concealment and rushed upor him with raised arm. Fortunately the clown had a catlike instinct, which enabled him to protect himself against immediate danger and keep a sharp watch about him. He had seen, or. rather, divined, the man crouching in the dark shadow of a house and had put himself on guard, spreading out his arms This movement certainly saved his life. Anger more than pain made him cry out; "Ah, you villain!"

his blow miss, the assassin Faubourg Montmartre.

"That was certainly Lagors," said the clown, "and Clameran must be somewhere near.'

He began to suffer from his wound. He stood under a gas lamp to examine it. It did not appear to be dangerous. but the arm was cut through to the bone. He took his handkerchief from his pocket and tore it into four bands and tied his arm up with the dexterity of a surgeon. "I must be on the track of some great crime, since these villains are re solved upon murder. When such men are only in danger of the police court they do not gratuitously risk the chance of being tried for murder."

He could not stay where he was. By enduring a great deal of pain he might still use his arm, so he started after his enemy, taking care to keep in the middle of the road and avoid all dark corners. Although he saw no one, he was convinced that he was being followed. When he reached the Boulevard Montmartre, he crossed it and as he did so distinguished two shadows which he recognized. They crossed the same street when he crossed, a little higher up.

"I have to deal with desperate men," he muttered. "They do not even take

He continued his way up the boulevard and, without turning his head, was sure that his enemies were thirty feet behind him.

"I must get rid of them somehow," he said to himself. "I can neither return home nor to the Archangel with these devils at my heels. They are following me to find out where I live and who I am. If they discover that the clown is M. Verduret and that M. Verduret is M. Lecoq, there is an end to my plans. They will escape abroad faces. with the money, and I shall be left to console myself with a wounded arm."

He could show the letter and the mutilated prayer book, he could reveal the existence house at Vesinet, he could display his wounded arm. Raoul would be compelled to confess how and why he had assumed the name of Lagors and to what end he was passing himself off for a relative of M. Fauvel,

IS NOT LIKELY TO RECOVER

Had Been Under Surveillance of Boston Health Authorites, Who Finally Lost the Trail-Fellow Townsmen Angry at Having Been Exposed

Boston, Feb. 10.-Dr. Immanuel Pfeiffer is ill at his home in Bedford with a serious case of smallpox, and the house has been quarantined by the town authorities. The doctor is a very earnest opponent of vaccination and has declared that he has been frequently exposed to the disease.

On Jan. 18 he wrote to Dr. Durgin, chairman of the Boston board of health, asking permission to inspect the quarrantine smallpox hospital at Gallup's island, for the purpose, as stated, of scientifically looking into the disease in all of its various forms, and "with close observation to get such facts as will enable a physician to diagnose smallpox cases with as much certainty as possible."

Dr. Durgin knew Dr. Pfeiffer to be a registered physician and made no objection to granting the request, whether it should prove to be that of an honest physician with honest purpose, or that of an unprotected (by vaccination) representative of the anti-vaccinationists. Dr. Durgin, however, determined to keep close observation of Dr. Pfeiffer, for the protection of the public, and he was strengthened in this decision by the fact that Dr. Pfeiffer apparently exposed himself as fully as possible on his visit to the island. Therefore, a mild watch was kept on Monday, when he was not found at his office nor was he visible as formerly in public places. Dr. Pfeiffer's visit to the island was on Jan. 23, and as the development of smallpox incubation is from 12 to 14 days, Monday was about the time when the disease might be expected to ap-

by the health board officers up to last pear. That fact caused the board of health to increase its efforts to find the doctor. Inquiry at his office brought forth the positive statement that he had gone to Philadelphia for business and recuperation. Everybody there ridiculed the idea that the doctor had smallpox, and were positive in the assertion that he was not in Boston.

Meantime a police officer who knew Pfeiffer said he was sure that he had seen him in Charlestown square, Thursday. So suspicion increased that the doctor had been stricken and was attempting to conceal the fact.

It was the bounden duty of the health department to ascertain the fact, and, if the apprehensions of its members and officers should prove true, their obligation was to isolate the patient in some way in order that the public might be protected from contagion. So the search was continued. The janitor of an apartment house in Charlestown, near City square, some what frequently visited in the past by Dr. Pfeiffer, was summoned, and although he did not know the doctor's name, the janitor recognized a photograph of the man. According to the janitor's story, the doctor appeared weak, was muffled up, carried an extension bag, and was accompanied by a woman from the back door and up a back street. Two persons were found who saw a man and woman enter a hack on the back street. Then came a hunt for the hack, and it was found. The doctor was driven out to his home that evening, where he has been since.

There is a great deal of excitement in the town, the people being intensely indignant at the fact that Dr. Pfeiffer should come out and thus expose, not only his own family, but other members of the community, instead of reporting himself to the Boston board of health and submitting to its rules for the protection of the public.

Sympathy for him is entirely lacking in the neighborhood, and the epithets applied to him are neither mild nor elegant.

Which Would Pratically Exclude American Competition In Manchuria Brings Forth a Strong Protest From Washington and Foreigners

Washington, Feb. 11.-Negotiations between the United States government strike called at once, but the executive and the government of Russia relative to Manchuria are progressing with the exhibition of a great deal of energy on our part, though the exchanges are in he Russian government in this matter ning of the negotiations. A treaty was drawn up originally between Russia and China, providing for the evacuation of Manchuria by the Russian troops, who have been in military possession of the country since the early days of the Boxer outbreak.

This treaty contained a great many ather complex guarantees in Russia's favor, but a singularly objectionable proviso was one placing the Russo-Chinese bank in practical control of the commercial and material interests of Manchuria. It was quickly perceived that the provision, if executed, practically would exclude Americans from competition a Manchuria, which is very valuable as a market for our manufactured cottons. Therefore, Russia's attention was directed to our existing rights under treaty with China, and also to her own promises made directly to the United States government during he early days of the Russian occupation of Manchuria.

Apparently our representatives were ouching the Russo-Chinese bank was vithdrawn from the treaty and that onvention, save in some minor repects, was regarded as unobjection, hat the Russian government has drawn up a secret agreement with China, conferring upon the Russo-Chinese bank all the powers contained in the original treaty proviso. Therefore the United States government has renewed its obections, not only addressing itself to the Russian government, but making a very strong protest to the government lependently, though it is a matter of ommon knowledge that other great ommercial powers, whose interests in Manchuria are almost as considerable as our own, have addressed similar representations to both China and Russia.

Secretary Cortelyou, who was the only neans of communication with the sick room, made the announcement of the oy's serious condition, although he said then it was not alarming. He also said that there was no immediate change, but only the natural progress of the disease. In conclusion he anounced that the disease had spread and involved both lungs. This unfavorable turn warned the president that the most skillful medical treatment was necessary, and so he called to the aid of Drs. Shattuck and Warren his family physician, who is well acquainted with the boy's physique. The president clung closely to the infirmary all day, merely walking over through the trees to the Gardner house for his meals. Mrs. Roosevelt remained meals there, and it is understood that both the father and the mother were beside or quite near the sick boy the greater portion of the time.

WEEK OF FIGHTING Heavy Losses Recorded by Both British and Boers

London, Feb. 11.-A report from Lord Kitchener shows last week to have been the liveliest week, with the heaviest losses on both sides, for several months past. Lord Kitchener gives the Boer casualties a total of 69 killed, 17 wounded, 57 surrendered and 574 taken prisoners. The British captured 480 rifles, one pompom and the usual grist of munitions and live stock.

The most serious British loss during the week was the capture of 60 donkey wagons, convoyed by 160 troops. At a point 30 miles from Beaufort West, Cape Colony, the enemy swooped down on the donkey wagons and cut up the convoy before assistance arrived. They were able to remove only 12 of the wagons and burned the rest. In this engagement the British lost 2 officers and 11 men killed and 1 officer and 47

Assorted Voices.

It is a well known fact that voices differ greatly according to nationality and geographical position. Thus, in Russia one hears male voices which are absolutely unique in the lowness of their compass. The Italians, on the other hand, are notable for their fine tenor voices. Some Asiatic nations, according to Engel, sing in shrill notes by straining the voice to its highest pitch. Others delight in a kind of vibrato or tremolando. Some sing habitually in an undertone, others in a nasal tone. Lichtenstein, in describing the singing of a Hottentot congregation in South Africa, observes that among all the singers, consisting of about 100 Hottentots of both sexes, there was not one man with a bass or baritone voice. All the men had tenor voices The Chinese voices seem to bear some resemblance to the weak character o Chinaman sing from his chest.-Gen-

Vice President and Cashier Are Involved In Queer Dealings

Detriot, Feb. 11.-Vice President Frank C. Andrews of the City Savings bank, which has been in the hands of State Banking Commissioner Maltz since yesterday morning, was arrested last evening and arraigned on the charge of having "wilfully, fraudulently and knowingly" secured from the bank, without security, and without the knowledge of the other directors, the sum of $1,158,000. He was released on $10,000 bail and his examination was set for Feb. 21. Cashier Henry R. Andrews, through whom F. C. Andrews is said to have secured the money by means of overdrafts and certified checks, is seriously ill at his home, with nervous prostration.

In addition to a total indebtedness to the City Savings bank of $1,158,000, to secure which Andrews has signed over to the institution all his real estate and securities, which will total about $1,-000,000; four local banks and a trust company hold his checks, certified to by Cashier Andrews, to the amount of $662,000.

Unfortunate speculations, especially heavy purchases of Amalgamated copper stock, are believed to be responsible r Andrews' ruin, Last night Andrews resigned as police commissioner and Mayor Maybury appointed George Fowle as his successor.

Although no warrant has yet been issued for Henry R. Andrews, an officer is stationed at his home as guard. In addition to the nervous prostration he had a severe attack of heart trouble The City Savings bank was the depository for the funds of the county auditors, their balance there being more than $150,000, and F. C. Andrews was arrested on a complaint sworn out by Auditor Christian. The warrant was served on Andrews, who is commissioner of police, by two of his detectives, in the office of the Detroit Trust company, where he had been in consultation with officers of the bank holding his certified checks.

England's Tribulations

London, Feb. 11.-The staunchest conservative organs this morning publish angrily satirical editorials on the poor figure the government cuts over Wei Hai Wei. Lord Selborne denied in the house of lords yesterday that financial reasons had anything to do with the government's decision to withdraw the British troops from Wei Hai Wei, but when he was asked to. publish the papers in the matter, he replied that some of the reports were confidential.. The morning papers also express great dissatisfaction with the war office for its management of the meat contracts in South Africa. The subject was discussed in both houses vesterday.

Figured In Famous Trial Topeka, Feb. 11.-Joseph A. Douglas was killed last night at his home in Lyndon by falling from a load of corn. Mr. Douglas was was the witness in the historical Armstrong murder trial in Illinois when William Armstrong was cleared by Abraham Lincoln. CHAPTER XI-CONTINUED.

On the other hand, in acting thus hastily he was insuring the safety of the principal villain, De Clameran. What proofs had he against him? Not he would act alone, as he had thus far of his suspicions. Having reached this membered that Gaston died suddenly decision, the first step to be taken was to get rid of his shadowers. He walked rapidly up Sebastopol, stepping out boldly, and, reaching the square, he abruptly stopped. Meeting two sergeants of police, he asked some insignificant questions. The maneuver had the result he expected. Raoul and Clameran stood perfectly still about twenty steps off, not daring to advance. Twenty steps! That was as much start as the clown wanted. While talking with the sergeants he had pulled the bell of the door before which they were standing, and its sound apprised him that the door was open. He stepped into the house. A minute later the sergeants had passed on, and Lagors and Clameran in their turn rang the bell. When the porter appeared, they asked who it was that

TAFT'S SALARY OF $20,000

Hardly Sufficient to Maintain His Royal Residence-Governor's Criticism of a Speech by Hoar Brings Protests From Republicans

Jo- lay for school buildings. It was necessary, he said, to make salaries from 20 to 25 percent higher than in the United States. In this connection Senator Culberson made inquiries concerning the salaries and allowances of the commissioners of the archipelago. "Is each of the commissioners paid $20,000?" he asked.

"No," was the reply. "When we first went out the commissioners were each paid $10,000 and the chairman $12,000 and in addition there was an allowance of $5500 to each for expenses, making the total $15,000 and $17,500 respec tively. When I was appointed civil governor I was allowed $5000 for my legislative duties and $15,000 for my duties as an executive, making $20,000. The other commissioners were allowed $5000 for their legislative services and $10,000 for their executive duties, making $15,000, all in gold." "Is each allowed a private secretary?"

"And you also have a large clerical force?" "You would think so if you should step into our offices; you also would get an idea of the necessity for

There are 14 ponies in the stable, eight of which I own, and I also keep three carriages. The grounds are extensive, but they are lighted by the city of Manila as any other park would be.

"Are the other members of the commission provided with residences? "They are not. All of them pay rent, and I can assure you that I would much prefer to pay mine to being required to live at Malacanan and keep up that establishment. If I may be allowed a word personal I would say that of my $17,500 salary last year I had only $1500 left at the end of the year, and I am sure that if my illness had not prevented my entertaining to a desirable extent there would have been nothing left of the $20,000 now paid. General Wright and Judge Ide have assured me they could save nothing. Indeed, money goes so fast," said the governor, "it seems to melt."

Governor Taft's former testimony to the effect that the Filipinos are not industrious and asked whether this condition would render necessary the inportation of Chinese. Governor Taft said there might be some reason for taking the Chinese laborers to undeveloped provinces. In general he thought the effect of the admission of the Clinese would be to monopolize nearly all the avenues of trade, but it was more difficult to say what the effect would be on the labor of the islands. "Has the commission ever recoinmended the admission of the Chinese?"

asked Senator Lodge. The reply was an emphatic negative. In answer to questions from Democratic members of the committee Governor Taft said the Philippine commission had been criticised from both sides. "But," he went on, "I think that in the main, the effect of our position has been to convince the people that we are there to aid their development and that our mixed a color ever, that much fear is aroused over on his palette the prospect of the exploitation of the that can vie | islands by the American people."

WASHINGTON'S TURN

To Contribute a Chapter Concerning Intervention In Spanish War.

PAUNCEFOTE MERELY AN AGENT

From Austria.

Washington, Feb. 12 .- In view of the statements and contradictions, more or less official in character, coming from the principal European capitals respecting the attitude of the powes individually towards the United States just preceding the Spanish war, the officials here feel a natural reluctance to being drawn into the controversy. It is with can be had on this subject.

and ministers here called upon President McKinley on April 7, 1898, in the effort to prevent war.

The matter now in controversy is what happened after that call and the question at issue as presented in the latest phase in the European dispatches is, did Lord Pauncefote undertake to secure the support of the other European powers in an attempt at forcible restraint upon the United States?

Sifting all the facis the conclusion reached here is that Lord Pauncefote's activity in the direction of intervention has been generally misunderstood. It is known that the Austrian minister was untiring in his efforts in behalf of Spain. The United States government has never cherished the least illeeling on that score, realizing that the blood ties between the Austrian and Spanish reigning houses sufficiently ex-used such an attitude. In the course of these efforts Mr. Hengelmuller turned to Lord Pauncefote, as dean of the corps, and sought to have him, as such dean, see what measure of support could be secured for another and more forcible representation to the United States as to the undesirability of war.

no such proposition would carry, but he Austrian minister as to submit his propasition to the other representatives of the European powers. The result burned to a crisp. stifled Lord Panncefote's indement of the outcome and it was probably the inquiries he made in this proceeding, and not any proposition originating with himself, that led to reports from the ministers and ambassadors here to the European chancellories.

If that hundred miles of shore front of unsurpassed natural attractiveness could be freed from the swarms of mosquitoes that make it almost uninhabitable in summer, its value would be increased twentyfold. By reason of its extensive and lovely sea front, its good roads, its trolley systems and its situation in the very focus of American civilization, New Jersey is destined to become the playground of the Union, the state to hesitate to spend $10,000 out of a surplus of millions in a promising attempt to remove this obstacle would be idiotic.

PATERSON AS IT WAS. Fire Stricken City Noted For Its Silk

Paterson, N. J., which has just been laid waste by a terrific fire, has, according to the last census, about 106,-000 inhabitants, but recent growth has probably increased this a couple of thousands. The principal industry is silkmaking, which gives it the name of Silk City, says the New York Times. There are about forty mills of sufficient size to be classed as such. Besides these there are many small plants employing from four to twenty persons which work on the various lines of the business. The dyeing is largely done in these small shops. More than half the population depends upon the silk trade.

The Barbour Thread works and the locomotive works are the other two important sources of employment. Only a few months ago the city was threatened with the loss of the Rogers Locomotive works when their former owner suddenly closed them, declaring that he was rich enough. The works, however, were saved to the city and are now running to the limit, as are the works of the American Locomotive company, which are almost as important as the Rogers works.

The city lies on both banks of the Passaic river, which at the west end drops into one of the finest falls in the country. Until the last few years the water pouring over the falls was a sight worth seeing, but the diversion of the river's waters at its head for potable purposes for Newark has diminished the flow. The city contains a large foreign born population. Within the last few years the silk mills have largely filled up with men from southern Europe. Of the old class there is a very strong mixture of Scotch and

In Praise of Ping Pong.

Who cares to play at cricket? Who cares to kick a ball, To suffer hacks at hockey Or chance a nasty fall?
Far better don your slippers, Enjoy your cigarette; Play ping pong in the parlor Across a little net. In cycling there are tumbles

And puncturable tires, And if you hunt, perhaps you come

In rowing there are blisters That possibly may chafe, But ping pong in the parlor Is absolutely safe. The river has its dangers; The picnic has its snares; The motor car may run away

Or butt you unawares. It is a consolation No parent will deny That ping pong in the parlor Would never hurt a fly.

A cropper on the wires.

Our prowess in athletics May pass to other lands And later generations see Our cups in foreign hands, Yet still the might of England Shall everywhere be known; At ping pong in the parlor Our sons shall hold their own.

Then twirl your tiny rackets And pat your celluloid; Be careful that your quick returns
The coffee cup avoid.
Flick hard, ye men of sinew, And pirouette in style! The ladies of the parlor Are watching all the while.

PEACE SOCIETY'S PETITION.

Would Have Congress Promise Independence to the Filipinos.

Boston, Feb. 12 .- The directors of the American Peace society sent to congress the following petition in favor | Philippine commission, which he said of the ultimate independence of the Philippine islands:

"The board of directors of the American Peace society respectfully petition congress to declare by resolve that the United States will grant independence to the Filipinos as soon as they shall establish and prove their ability to maintain stable civil government.

'We believe that such a declaration, similar to that made in relation to Cuba just prior to the Spanish war, would meet the approval of the great majority of the American people, would prove to the world the unselfish purposes of our country, would restore peace to the Philippines at an early day, and thus prevent the further sacrifice of life and property in what seems likely, under existing conditions, to be an indefinitely protracted and bitter conflict."

HORSE SET PLACE AFIRE.

New York, Feb. 12.-A runaway horse dashed through the window of a one-story paint shop on upper Broadway last night, upset a stove and set fire to the place in which were two men. One of them, T. F. Reilly, 62 years old, was unable to escape from the shop because the horse blocked the doorway. He made his way to a door in the rear, but when he reached it he found it was locked. The horse backed out through the front door, but the fire was so flerce by this time that Reilly was unable to get out in time and lost his life.

BARGE CARDENAS SIGHTED.

New York, Feb. 12.-Steamer Kurdistan, which arrived yesterday, brought news of the four-masted barge Cardenas, of Taunton, Mass. Captain Todd of the Kurdistan says that on Feb. 7 the position of the Cardenas was about 300 miles southeast by east of Sandy Hook and about 200 miles from the place where she broke adrift from the tng Cuba, and that she is drifting in a southeasterly direction almost helplessly. The Cardenas was bound from Newport News to Providence.

JENNINGS DECLARED INSANE.

Boston, Feb. 12.-Albert Jennings, former town treasurer of Wellesley, was vesterday committed to the state bosnital for the insane at Worcester by Judge Richardson of the superior court. The indictment upon which he was tried for forgery and misappropriating town funds was placed on file, subject to the order of the court. Three phylcians testified to the prisoner's insanity and the prosecution made no objection to his commitment.

DISTRUSTS OPINION.

Hoar Wants Evidence That Filipinos No Doubt That British Sloop-of-War Enjoy American Freedom.

HIS OBSERVATION IS "WARPED"

In the Opinion of Platt of Connecticut.

Washington, Feb. 12 .- A stirring debate on the general Philippine question was precipitated in the senate late yesterday, the principal participants being Mr. Platt (Conn.) and Mr. Hoar (Mass). Mr. Teller had concluded his argument against the enactment of the pending Philippine tariff bill for the day. In controverting some statements he made, Mr. Platt directed the senate's attention to the situation in the islands, as he viewed it, maintaining that great progress was being made by the government in subduing the insurrection. He referred to the election for municipal officers in various cities of the Islands and to the establishment of schools for the education of Filipino children.

Mr. Hoar ridiculed the elections to which Mr. Platt had referred, declaring that under the sedition laws enacted by the Philippine commission it was a penitentiary offense for any body in the islands to advocate a political policy. He referred in a facetious vein to the schools established in the Islands by the American authorities, asserting 8 a.m. | D First 15 a.m. that in not one of them could the Declaration of Independence be read or a patriotic speech be delivered in safety. He hoped that the rosente views of Mr. Platt might obtain very soon in the Philippines, but of that he entertained

In the 22 years of his service in the senate, he said, he had seen many things, but never anything like the reading of the so-called enactments of the were a compendium of tyranny and in-

In speaking of the petitions for independence presented to congress a year ago, to which Mr. Hoar had referred, Mr. Platt said they were paraded here now, as they had been at the time of their petition, as positive proof that all the Filipino people wanted independence and freedom from American control. He intimated that they had been prepared by the Filipino junta, "either in Hong Kong or in Boston," and asserted that they bear on their face evidence of being "machine made."

Mr. Platt paid a high tribute to Governor Taft and his associates on the Philippine commission and inquired: "Is what these men say about the Philippine islands to be whistled down the wind by our friends on the other side re-enforced by the senator from Massachusetts? Personally, I propose to trust the Philippine commission."

That commission, he said, had presented remarkable evidence of the a happy solution of the situation there. Civil government had been established in 34 provinces and that government was being operated to the entire satisfaction of the people.

Mr. Hoar interrupted Mr. Platt to inquire if he thought the Filipinos would have adopted the treason law enacted by the Philippine commission had it been submitted to them.

The Connecticut senator replied that he could not say, but Connecticut had a law which the people of that state had never found inconsistent with their rights and liberties. He read the law, which proved to be not dissimilar from that which had been enacted in the Phil-

He pointed out as one of the benefient results of American occupation of the Philippines that schools had been established in the islands and that nearly 1000 American teachers had gone to the archipelago to educate the Filipino children. Prior to the arrival of these teachers in the islands, he said, private soldiers from the American army had been detailed as teachers in many of the schools. Against this effort of the American government to educate and elevate the people of the Philippines, he said, the senator from Massachusetts was directing "his sneers and his denunciations." Mr. Platt then read the treason law referred to by Mr. Hoar to show that it was directed against the formation of secret societies, the purpose of which, in whole, or in part, was the promotion of sedition, rebellion and treason.

"It seems strange," said he, "that human observation can be so warped as to draw such conclusions from the enactment of this law as had been drawn by the senator from Massachusetts."

It was a statute, he said, aimed at secret plotting, such plotting as at one time resulted nearly in inducing a massacre of our troops and friends in the ence in the schools of the island or in declared. It simply prevented plotting in the dark.

HOPE ABANDONED.

Succumbed to Gale. Victoria, B. C., Feb. 12.-All hope for the missing sloop-of-war Condor, which left here on Dec. 2, just before the big storm which wrecked the collier Mattewan off Cape Flattery, was abandoned upon the arrival of the survey ship Egeria from a trip along the west coast of Vancouver. The Egeria went as far north as the Scott islands, off the north end of Vancouver island. At Claycquot, on the west coast, her officers found wreckage from the Condor which shows that she must have gone down or was smashed to pieces by the heavy seas. This wreckage included a deck grating marked with the broad arrow of the British navy, a signal box recognized as one from a British warship, sheathing and part of a topmast.

It is hardly probable that the ship could have withstood a storm which would wash these articles from her deck. The crew of the Condor numhered 130 officers and men.

WATCHMAN FATALLY SHOT.

Chicago, Feb. 12.-During a fight with rifles last evening between the followers of rival claimants to property lying along the lake shore drive, Frank Kirk, a watchman for one of the claimants, was fatally shot. Captain Streeter has erected several small shantles upon this ground and claims that, inasmuch as it was not originally included in the government surveys of the state of Illinois, it does not belong to the state and is public property open to settlement. Between Streeter and his men and the watchmen employed by the property owners along the lake shore drive there have been frequent

CHATTED IN ENGLISH.

Berlin, Feb. 12.-At the farewell dinner given last night by Emperor William to Prince Henry, Ambassador White occupied a seat on the right of his majesty. During the dinner English was the only language used. Mr. White showed the emperor a cable saying that the son of President Roosevelt was better. After dinner the party spent an hour in the library smoking. Emperor William, Mr. White and all the others then accompanied Prince Henry to the railroad station, the train leaving for Kiel a few minutes after midnight. Prince Henry sails for the United States on Saturday.

"Valentine confessed her condition to her mother, who took her to England, where she provided for her daughter's secret accouchement under the care of a physician and a maid, Mihonne. A son was born, which the countess immediately sent away to be adopted by a farmer. Subsequently Mme. de la Verberie pursuaded her daughter to attempt to forget the past, to consider it buried in oblivion and to marry. A young engineer, M. Andre Fauvel, spent some time at Beaucaire, where they lived, and fell in love with Valentine, who, urged by her mother, accepted his attentions and finally married him. M. Fauvel afterward became the famous Paris banker. The countess died in 1859. "Louis de Clameran, after an absence from home of eighteen years, returned, sold his horse because it was and from Mihonne, the maid who had been with Valentine at the time of her confinement, learned that his brother he saw a fine looking horse he had not been drowned, that Valentine had had a son by Gaston and that she wanted to buy. UNITED STATES' VIEWS

Embodied In Treaty Between England and Japan

THIS COUNTRY'S PURPOSES

All Relate to the Commercial and Industrial Phases of the Manchurian Question-New Alliance Will Maintain the Status Quo In Far East

Washington, Feb. 13 .- Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister to Washington, yesterday called at the state department and notified Secretary Hay of the signature of the treaty between Great Britain and Japan, made public in England, bindng the two nations to joint action to maintain the integrity of China and Korea

The assent of the United States is not necessary to this agreement, but if it were it probably would not be withheld, for it is pointed out that the treaty is precisely in line with the aims of the state department, as fully disclosed in the notes published by it from time to

It is again stated that there has been no joint action as between the United States and the two powers named, yet it is a fact that the preamble to the new treaty might be regarded as almost a paraphrase of the position of the United States toward the Manchurian question as enunciated in Secretary Hay's note to the Russian ambassador

It is made very clear here by the official statements that the purposes of the United States all relate to commercial and industrial phases of the Manchurian question. With the political phase we have little concern. The sovereignty of Russia or China over Manchuria would be to us an immaterial issue so long as American ships are free to sail into Manchurian ports on even terms with Russian ships, so long as American products may be entered in Manchuria at the same tariff rates as Russia, and so long as American railroad and mining projectors may operate in Manchurla as freely as hose of any other nation.

In other words, the United States is contendnig for the "open door" in Manchuria and it recognizes in this new treaty a valuable support in its contention. It is understood that the Japanese minister and the British and Russian ambassadors here are fully acquainted with this attitude of the United States.

Manchuria Within Its Scope London, Feb. 13 .- In the house of commons yesterday Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman invited A J. Balfour to make a statement relative to the Anglo-Japanese treaty. Mr. Balfour promised to see if any papers relating thereto could be presented to the house, but he thought no further statement was re-

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister here, who signed the treaty in behalf of Japan, declares that the treaty was not directed especially against Russia, but, undoubtedly, Manchuria was within its scope. It was solely meant to maintain the status quo. The present treaty has collaterals in the shape of treaties between Japan and other powers, but it does not exclude the possibility of a similar treaty between Japan and Russia, of course with the full knowledge of Great Britain.

Knocks Out Manchurian Treaty Pekin, Feb. 13 .- The news of the signing of the Anglo-Japanese treaty of alliance became known to a few diplomats here yesterday and was an absolute surprise. The treaty is regarded as the most important move made in far eastern policies of recent years. It is not doubted among the diplomats here that the new alliance will effectually veto the signing of the Manchurian treaty. The foreign ministers have recently been pressing Prince Ching to postpone signing the Manchurian treaty and obtained a promise to defer so doing until fresh representations could be made, which representations were made resterday in the form of a copy of the Anglo-Japanese treaty.

The French Feeling

Paris, Feb. 13.-The view taken in diplomatic circles here is that the Anglo-Japanese alliance, being purely defensive, is nowise a disquieting element in the eastern situation. The alliance is taken to indicate that Creat Britain has abandoned her opportunist and vacillating attitude of recent years in the far east for a fixed policy, and that the result will certainly make for the peace of the world. The question

Upon Products Imitating Butter

Washington, Feb. 13.-The house yesterday passed the oleomargarine bill. There was no division on the final passage. The provision to require the inspection and branding of renovated butter was retained yesterday on an aye and no vote. As finally passed, the bill makes oleomargarine or imitation butter or cheese transported into any state or territory for use, sale or consumption therein, subject to the laws of such state or territory, notwithstanding that it may be introduced in original packages, and imposes a tax of 10 cents a pound on oleomargarine made in imitation of "butter of any shade of yellow." When not made in such imitation the tax is reduced to 1-4 of 1 cent a pound. The second section is intended to prevent dealers, hotel proprietors, restaurant and boarding house keepers from coloring the un or furnishes it to others, a manufacturer within the meaning of the act. War claims occupied the attention of the house after the passage of the oleomargarine bill and the first bill for the payments of claims of United States citizens arising out of the Spanish war was passed. It carried over $55, 000 for the payment of 202 claims for property taken within the United States for the use of the army. An omnibus bill carrying claims aggregating $2.114. 552 for stores and supplies taken from loyal citizens during the Civil war also

Humbert,s Death Plotted at Gotham New York, Feb. 13 .- In a report by the police of this city to the Italian ambassador in Washington and the Italian consul in New York, the direct assertion is made, The Herald says, that the killing of King Humbert was planned here. The police have named the men who have conspired with Gaetano Bresci. Many of them are still at liberty. Just four months to a day before the assassination of King Hum bert, according to this report, a meet ing of anarchists was held at a hotel here, owned by an Italian who has since died. Incendiary speeches were made, and it was shouted that King Humbert must die. Just at the close of the meeting Bresci volunteered his services and they were accepted.

COX OUT OF IT

Tax of Ten Cents a Pound Imposed Head of Union No Longer Affected by Brine Injunction Proceedings

Boston, Feb. 13.-President Cox of the Allied Freight Transportation council is relieved from further defense in the Brine injunction proceedings, Judge Braley stating yesterday afternoon that counsel need make no argument for him, and that at the proper time he would dissolve the temporary injune tion so far as it pertained to him.

The evidence was finished yesterday and the court appointed Tuesday next as the time for hearing arguments. The defense put in evidence yesterday mem oranda from the police records to the effect that of 35 persons arrested in connection wth strike disorders, only six were identified as belonging to the Teamsters' union, 22 were under the age of 22, 23 were charged with violation of city ordinances (blocking streets) but only one for "intimidation." Police Commissioner Clark and Su erintendent of Police Pierce were two of the principal witnesses called by the efense. Commissioner Clark testified that the Brine Transportation company asked for a special detail of polce and read its letter "earnestly requesting the protection of the law that summary end to mob violence be brought." He considered his department competent to preserve the peace. Superintendent Pierce read from nemoranda to show the details made each day, number of arrests made, etc Details were made to protect Brine teams against "a certain disturbing element," and to preserve the peace. He had no knowledge of any alleged strike. More evidence was introduced to show that the Brine company's representatives were present at the master teamsters' meeting when a committee was manimously appointed to draw up an agreement with the union

Settlement Checked

Providence, Feb. 13 .- The failure of the American Woolen company to recognize the textile union was the stum oling block which yesterday set at naught all plans for a complete and early settlement of the strike of weavers, of whom about 1000 are now out. The break in negotiations came as a result of the refusal by Treasurer Wood of the American Woolen company to receive a committee of union officials, who were not employes of the company, and a counter refusal by the union to withdraw and permit a committee of actual weavers to meet him. The Plant and Its Work Interestingly Told.

A large number accepted the invitation of the Brotherhood of Bethany church on Wednesday evening, and now have a much better idea of the work being done at the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. and the magnitude of everything connected therewith

Mr. H. P. Jones, a prominent official of the company was the lecturer, and the views were thrown by Melville P. Hayward. Rev. E. N. Hardy introduced the speaker, who made no attempt at oratory, but in a modest way told of the establishment of the plant and what it was doing.

It was in 1884 he said, that the Fore River Engine Co. was established at 127, A. O. U. W. The installing East Braintree, and the original room officers included: G.M.W., McConoghy was only 25 by 25. This led up to the still larger vessels now under construction. The company had outgrown its plant at Braintree and to handle warships more water frontage proprietor has required his waiters to looking over the whole Massachusetts coast, and beyond, an ideal site was found near home at Quincy.

In a little over a year the Quincy plant had been built up, and the cruiser Des Moines was now approaching completion, a seven-masted steel schooner was well underway and the battleships Rhode Island and New Jersey were taking shape.

By the aid of the stereopticon views the audience was taken through the plant, exterior and interior views being shown and described. Interest was taken in the mammoth shed to cover the two battleships, the schooner, and another vessel at one time, which covin the country; the mammoth tool shop the marine railway and at the wharf; the power plant; the use of electricity,

UNEXPECTED ARRIVAL

Day Ahead of Scheduled Time New York, Feb. 13.-The imperial German yacht Hohenzollern, sent here for the use of Prince Henry of Prussia during his forthcoming visit, arrived yesterday from Kiel. She was not expected, for she came by the southern circle, and it was calculated that the run would take at least one day more than it did. It had also been thought that she would touch at Bermuda, and that place had reported her as two days overdue. The weather she encountered was unfavorable for a call at Bermuda and at sea Admiral Von Baudissin shaped his course for New York. The yacht hove in sight off Sandy Hook a few minutes before noon, and an hour later was in quarantine. She got the courtesy of the port from federal officials and came on through the narrows and up into North river without delay. Passing craft gave her a noisy welcome with their whistles and the man at her jackstaff was kept busy dipping her big naval flag. She stood high out of water and looked impressive beyond her real size. She was painted white all over, save for a great black eagle at her figure head, some touches that showed below her waterline. She has a ram-bow and in general type reembles a modern man of war.

At 4 o'clock she hove her anchors and, guided by two tugs, was carefully warped into the North German Lloyd pier at Hoboken.

"I will endeavor to tell you of the many benefits I have derived from taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. B. E. Robertson, of Medicine Lodge, Barber Co., Kans. "In the fall of 1890 I was expecting to become a mother and suffered terribly with pains in the back of head; in fact I ached all over. Suffered with awful bearing-down pains; I was threatened for weeks with mishap. A lady friend told me to use Dr. Pierce's medicines. She had taken them and felt like a new woman. I began using the 'Favorite Prescription' and took four bottles before my baby came and two afterwards. I suffered almost death with my other two children, but hardly realized that I was sick when this baby was born and she weighed twelve and one-quarter pounds. She is now eleven months old and has never known an hour's sickness; at present she weighs thirty-seven pounds. I owe it all to Dr. P'erce's Favorite Prescription."

MEMORIAL OF FEDERALISTS

Declares That Making of a Colony or Granting Independence Would Lead to Destruction of Law and Order-Amnesty Asked For Filipinos

Washington, Feb. 13.-The memorial of the Federal party of the Philipipne islands was transmitted to the senate yesterday afternoon by the secretary of war, together with a letter of transmittal by Governor Taft, in whose charge the document was given. The memorial was adopted by the Federal party in November. The memorial makes a presentation of the deduction of the Federal party that congress should proceed to carry of gold astern, and a long streak of red | into effect its intention of defining the future of the Philippines in their relations to the United States, and asserts that there is no reason for not replacing the military regime "by a civil rule of a popular character in conformity with the decisive words of President McKinley."

The memorial proper is divided into two parts. The first of these is a petition for annexation and a presentation of the form of government desired. In this sub-division the Federal party concludes that from the mass of data collected it is the intention of the Filipians never be disunited."

The memorial announces as principles for this union the formation of "a more perfect union, establishment of justice, the insurance of domestic tranquility, promotion of the general welfare and the securing of the blessings of liberty." The memorial then proceeds:

"To make of the Philippines a colony of the United States, or to grant independence to the Philippines, would be to anarchy, to destruction and to chaos. kind now 33 cents. sequent abuses and injustices, of all the Spanish government, and for this reason we reject everything which tends towards a colony.

The memorialists then "praya declaration by the congress of the United States to the effect that the Philippine islands as they are described in the treaty of Paris, and the subsequent convention with Spain, are an integral part of the United States, the said Philipp islands constituting a territory with the rights and privileges which the constitution of the United States grants to the other territories."

A preliminary form of government similar to that of the territories of the United States is outlined as suitable for the Philippines. The second part of the memorial sets forth the aspirations of a social and economical character, the principal of which the memorial represents to be the securing of a remedy of the "ancient evil known as the friar." Under this designation the memorial includes all the religious orders now existing in the islands. The memorial says of the latter that "they constitute an element which are visibly opposed to the Filipino people securing the noble ends guaranteed by the constitution of the United States."

Complete and general amnesty to the Philippine people is asked. In the pacified portions of the islands, the memorial says, there are thousands of persecutions brought against the revolutionists who have surrendered to American sovereignty for acts of violence committed while they were in the ful man says field and prior to their surrender.

PRESIDENT LEAVES GROTON

After Visiting Sick Boys and Paying Respects to Newspaper Men-Alice Roosevelt to Leave Washington Today For the Bedside of Her Brother

Groton, Mass., Feb. 14.-The most eventful day at the Groton school durng all the time Theodore Roosevelt, Ir., has been ill closed with the departure of President Roosevelt for Washington late yesterday afternoon. Before that, the president, in homely phrase: "Ted has improved with such apid jumps that I am sure he is out of he woods," had told to the world of the oad lifted from his mind.

The day was full of happiness for President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and in fact for all who in line of duty were at he infirmary or near the school grounds. The first report from the bedside of young Roosevelt showed that he had passed a good night and after the morning examination it was announced hat the boy's condition was progressing favorably. The report said that the ungs were clearing weil, although the atient was still in the second stage of pleuro-pneumonia, known to medical men as the stage of exudation.

Later in the day Dr. Warren stated hat the patient's temperature, respiration and pulse were normal, a decided contrast to his condition the past few lays. The boy rested well all day, alhough his pulse was somewhat acellerated for a short period in the afternoon by reason of the departure of

The president passed a very quiet day. After visiting his son in the morning, he spent most of his time at the Gardner mansion transacting official business. Before lunch he called on the other patients, the Gammell and Potter boys, and cheered them up with aindly greetings. Then he proceeded to the Powell cottage and held a brief eception with the newspaper men who id made that place their headquarters. The president feelingly thanked them or a gift of flowers to Mrs. Roosevelt and for their courtesy to him and his family during the trying days that have stay was with Mrs. Roosevelt and his

Promises Made at Beginning of War Have Not Been Fulfilled

Chicago, Feb. 14 .- "Since our occupation of Cuba we have not done one thing to repair the ravages of war. We bave re-established no families in their homesteads nor attempted to restock barren farms and plantations. We have not taken a single step to extend the commerce of the country so as to enable the island to recover from the devastation of recent war."

In these words, in a speech delivered last night at the Union League club, General James H. Wilson, late governor of Matanzas, and recent appointee as delegate to King Edward's coronation to represent the United States army. charged neglect of Cuba.

He continued: "We pledged ourselves at the beginning of the war against the intention of exerting any sovereignty over the island and promised to withdraw our army as soon as peace was restored. In spite of this pledge we have absolutely controlled the domestic affairs of the people and although perfect order has existed for two years, our army is still in possession of the country."

The remedy proposed by General Wilson is immediate reciprocity with Cuba. Annexation, he maintained, is sure to come, but to meet the emergency he proposed removing the duty on Cuban importations and at the same time surrounding the island with our own protective tariff on foreign importations

An Exchange of Civilities

New York, Feb. 14.-Rear Admiral Von Baudissin, commander of the German imperial yacht Hohenzollern, accompanied by his chief of staff, Lieutenant Fritz Rebensburg, and K. Buenz, the German consul general at this city, made official calls yesterday. The first visit was to Rear Admiral Barker, commandant of the navy yard. This was followed by formal calls on Major General Brooke, commanding the department of the east, and on the mayor of New York. The rear admiral was in full uniform. He wore a number of decorations.

Is Thus Prevented, and Her Markets Left Open to Commerce of the World -Russia's Language In Pledging Withdrawal From Manchuria

Washington, Feb. 14.-Secretary Hay, under the direction of President Roosevelt, as under the direction of President McKinley, has maintained our strong diplomacy in the Chinese affair, and has scored a great gain of support in the very important new treaty between Great Britain and Japan, formally announced to the state depart-

While, of course, the United States could not be in any sense a party to the treaty, it is so directly in the line of our policy and is of such great value to us that it assumed that it was concluded with our knowledge and approval, and Secretary Hay was congratulated upon it with this understanding. The view taken of it by the administration is also taken of it by Republican senators. It was reflected in this authorized statement by Senator Lodge, who has a double interest in it as member of the committee on foreign relations and chairman of the committee on the Philippines:

"The treaty between England and Japan from the point of view of the United States is most excellent and admirable. In that treaty England and Japan agree to sustain jointly the policy of which the United States has been the champion from the beginning of the Chinese troubles and during all the Pekin negotiations. It is in complete accord with our recent attitude in regard to Manchuria and with the position so firmly and ably maintained by Mr. Hay on the Manchurian question. Our policy and the policy of the treaty between England and Japan is to prevent the partition of China, preserve her autonomy and maintain the open door. We had at Pekin the strong support of Japan in this arrangement, and now the union of Eugland and Japan for that purpose strengthens enormously our position and will assure the complete triumph of our policy, which seeks to preserve China from partition and leave her markets open to our commerce on equal terms with the rest of the world." In making her piedge to the United States government to withdraw from Manchuria, Russia used this language: "As soon as lasting order shall have been established in Manchuria, and when the necessary measures shall from Wetumka, in the Creek nation, have been taken to safeguard the railway, the construction of which has been guaranteed by a formal agreement with China, in connection with the concession granted to the Eastern Railway Chinese company, Russia will not fail to withdraw her troops from within the boundaries of the adjacent empire, provided, however, that the action of other powers shall not stand in the way."

The question at issue is whether this proviso may be regarded by Russia as having been violated by the making of the new treaty, thus justifying her in remaining in Manchuria. The answer to that question is expected soon and in the shape of a response to Mr. Tower at St. Petersburg in connection with his protest against the Russo-Chinese bank agreement

The Feeling at Pekin

Pekin, Feb. 14 .- The Anglo-Japanese alliance has created a profound sensation here. British and Japanese residents of Pekin believe the alliance insures peace and will effectually check | Like the John F. Randall, she is greatthe dismemberment schemes of the ly overdue. other powers. The chief objection raised by the diplomats of opposing interests is found in the clause of the alliance which contemplates possible intervention in the event of internal disturbances in China or Corea. These diplomats are telling the Chinese officials that the new treaty amounts to an attempt to establish an Anglo-Japanese protectorate, which threatens China's independence.

End of "Splendid Isolation

Yokohama, Feb. 14.-The press here gives vent to unmixed pleasure at the conclusion of the agreement with Great Britain which secures for Japan admission to the comity of great nations. The press also recognizes that the agreement imposes heavy responsibilities, and that Japan must not fall into the error of supposing that peace will be assured without further effort. Several of the papers comment upon the extraordinary fact that the leading world power abandons its policy of splendid isolation openly to clasp ands with Japan.

Germany Did Not Participate Berlin, Feb. 14.-The foreign office officials here deny that Germany was in negotiation to participate in the British-Japanese treaty of alliance. All Anxious For Our Friendship

London, Feb. 14.-The statement of Lord Cranborne in the house of commons yesterday that the substance of the Anglo-Japanese agreement was communicated to he United States governmen before publication has excited renewed discussion as to the attitude of the United States. It seems to be thought in many sources that Great Britain and Japan formally invited the United States to join he alliance and that Washington delined so to do on the plea that it desired to keep a free hand. These speculations are reflective of the anxiety shown among the European powers to be on good terms with the United States.

"You shall have proofs," replied M. Verduret. "But first listen." And rapidly, with his wonderful talent for exposition, he related the principal points of the plot he had discovered. The true state of the case was terribly distressing to M. Fauvel, but nothing compared with what be had suspected. His throbbing, yearning beart told him that he still loved his wife. Why should he punish a fault committed so many years ago and atoned for by twenty years of devotion and suffering? For some moments after M. Verduret had finished his explanation M. Fauvel remained silent. So many strange events had happened in the last few days, culminating in the scene which had just taken place, that M. Fauvel was incapable of thinking. If his heart counseled pardon and forgetfulness, wounded pride and self respect demanded vengeance. If Raoul, the baleful witness, the living proof of a faroff sin, were not in existence, M. POLICE WITHOUT CLUES Butcher Knife and Axe Used In Killing an Old Man

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 14.-Peleg Cornell, 70 years old, who lived alone in a house near Adamsville, R. I., about 18 miles from Fall River, was found dead in his house yesterday with his throat cut and with his head pounded in with an axe. Cornell worked on the farm of George E. Davol, a neighbor. When he did not appear for work yesterday his employer called at the house, and found the body of the old man lying on the floor in a pool of blood. Beside the body was a large butcher knife, covered with blood, with which the injury to the throat had been inflicted. Constable Pearce made a search ,of the house and grounds and in bushes near the house found a blood-stained axe, which is supposed to have been used to crush in the victim's head. The. axe and the knife both belonged to Cornell. The only motive known at present is robbery. The man was supposed to have considerable money in his nouse, but none was found. The police have found no clues.

Foxboro Folks Made Happy

Foxboro, Mass., Feb. 14.-The townsseople were so elated over their victory in the Dedham court yesterday that last night there was music by a band, red fire was burned, church bells were rung and there was jollification in abundance. The case decided in favor of Foxboro has been pending for several years, it being claimed by Hollingsworth & Vose that Foxboro had taken water belonging to them in driving

Another Rise In Cloth Prices Fall River, Mass., Feb. 14.-M. C. D. Borden's brokers advanced their bid for regulars again yesterday, the price now being 31-4 cents. This made a total advance of 3-16 of a cent in the market price within 48 hours. Manufacturers are generally willing to meet the demand as far as they are able to do so, though some of them are holding off, probably considering that they may be offered something better.

For More Pay and Shorter Hours Boston, Feb. 14.-To obtain an advance of from 10 to 12 percent over their present wages and a 10-hour work day the 350 men employed in the making of pantaloons here struck yesterthe intention to strike after they had said they could not grant the requests. Held on Charge of Arson Taunton, Mass., Feb. 14.-Gavin G. Derrick, employed as a hostler for May Walker, is under arrest on the charge of arson, it being claimed that he set fire to the residence of Maude Lorraine yesterday. The Lorraine house was destroyed at an early hour, and the inmates were obliged to leave the burning building in their night clothing. The loss on the building was about $4000.

Judges Elected For Life

Providence, Feb. 14.—That appellate court judges are elected for life in this state was definitely decided in an opinion handed down yesterday, and the question as to whether Chief Justice Stiness and Justice Blodgett, who were elected to fill vacancies at a time other than the annual session, shall stand for re-election, is thereby dismissed.

Stabbed Husband to Death

Taunton, Mass., Feb. 14.-Mrs. Elizabeth M. Mowbray of New Bedford pleaded guilty of manslaughter in causing the death of her husband, John A. Mowbray, in that city last fall. The plea was accepted by the government. New York, Feb. 14.—The first meeting Mrs. Mowbray quarreled with her husband and stabbed him to death.

Dixon Won on Points

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 14.-George Dixon, ex-champion feather-weight of the world, got the decision on points last night over "Chie" Tucker in at 20round bout here. Both men were in good condition and put up an excellent fight. Both were strong at the finish.

M. Fauvel listened without understanding.

"Into what dark depths of shame have we fallen!" he groaned.

He then told how Louis Clameran had concocted his plot to palm off Raoul as Mme. Fauvel's son with a view to extort money from her. "Can this be possible?" cried Mme.

Fauvel. "Impossible!" cried the banker. "An infamous plot like this could not be ex-

"Lord Murray, who was very indulgent, pardoned many grave faults, but one fine morning he discovered that his adopted son had been imitating his sigmature upon some checks. He indigmantly dismissed him.

"James Spencer had been living in London about four years, managing to support himself by gambling and swindling, when he met Clameran, who offered him 25,000 francs to play a part in a little role which he had arranged." "You are a detective!" interrupted

Raoul. The fat man smiled grimly.

Evening Wear.

[Special Correspondence.] NEW YORK, Feb. 4.-Now, ladies, I hope you will agree with me that I deserve a vote of thanks for paving one can use that word in connection with a design for a fine gown. The elegant evening gown represented here is some when made up for a day dress M. Verduret, with a shudder, turned and in quite simple materials. The to leave the prefecture, saying to Fan- gown in question is of chiffon and eolienne. These are two very perishable materials, yet it is not necessary to make it of these when the beautiful new washable fabrics are so soon to take the place of all other things in the room generally given over to the dressn ker. This dress is made decollete, and the sleeves are short, but the neck can extend to the throat and the sleeve reach from elbow to shoulder or from wrist to the same place.

There is an underslip of pale pink silk, and over this the chiffon is gathered very closely and is edged with narrow ruchings at the extreme edge. Some might prefer silk mull to chiffon, but if this is used it should be accordion plaited. Over this is then put a sort of cross between a plaited peplum and an overskirt, with the preference in favor of the skirt. To obtain this effect it is necessary to have a square three yards each way. Hem this and applique a fine piece of white lace insertion all along. There is then a large hole cut in the center of the piece, and this is passed over the head to the hips and there draped and the folds laid in. It is not so difficult as it seems. The plaits at the top are very shallow, and as they fall they take the width of the square corner. There are four points, one for the front and two for the sides and one for the back. The effect is certainly unique and beautiful. Wash goods made up in this way should have the overskirt made separate that it may be ironed easily. The pretty waist is stitched into plaits like the overskirt and brought to a point at the front. Lace is imployed to simulate a bolero effect, and the sleeves are but ruffles. The bolero being still in high favor, anything can be trimmed in that style with propriety. Embroidery should be substituted for lace in making up wash goods. Some of the embroidery is so fine and open that it might well be called lace. There are dresses, all sent ready to sew up, the bottoms of the skirts being wrought in colors, sometimes like the Bulgarian work. Most of it, though, is in quite open design. It is all pretty. Some of the dress patterns have the embroidery wrought along the sides so that it can be cut off and sewed to the rest in

Among the very smartest of the new garian embroidery; also with the coarse Arab lace set on as applique. Aside from these are the Oxford In 1638 the opening of Inigo Jones' | which so many handsome shirt waists are now being manufactured for late. wear. Brown ducks and brown linenare among the good things, and so are the very novel figured linens and the crossbarred linens, which come in all the pretty shades and colors. Pineapple cloth in a dark ecru shade is one of the novelties. This and some of the ecru batistes and swisses are forty-five inches wide. Many of the ecru goods are of flax and silk mix tures. They are rather expensive, but are not expected to be washed. They are appropriately trimmed with lace and ribbon and also embroidery.

Printed liberty silk is one of the pretty things, and it is used for everything, it seems to me, on the list.

Quite a new fad is the capeline which we shall soon see. There is a short cape back, but the fronts form tabs and hang nearly to the feet. They will be embroidered and braided. Braid has but just begun to be understood, and scarcely a garment but has some some where. A rounding white braid is used with much effect to trim some of the summer suits, particularly the piques and bedford cords.

In a Vigorous Speech by Kentucky Representative

WOULD HAVE HAY BOUNCED

Advocates Shipping Home of Pauncefote If He Sought to Circumvent Us During Recent War-"Little German Prince" No Better Than Anyone Else

Washington, Feb. 15 .- The monotony of a private pension day of the house was enlivened yesterday by a very sensational speech from Mr. Wheeler (Ky.) in denunciation of what he denominated "flunkeyism" toward foreign countries. He took the recent statements emanating from continental cabinets regarding the attitude of Great Britain during the Spanish war as a text for a wholesale attack upon the trend of our recent diplomacy.

"Until the inauguration of the president in 1897," said Mr. Wheeler, "there never was any division of sentiment upon one great question, and that was the splendid isolation of the repulic and its fixed determination to hold aloof from all entangling alliances with foreign powers. Then the belief and fixed judgment of well nigh every patriotic citizen was overturned and for the first time we witnessed a president of the United States, aided and egged on by a pitiable flunkey in the state depart ment, stretching his arms across the water to embrace the historic enemies of the American people. From that hour until now we have made ourselves a laughing stock at every court in Eu rope because of our flunkeyism, our truculency and the disgraceful sycophancy of the representatives of the re public at the feet of Great Britain, and now when it serves the purpose of some other great nation, the pitiable spectacle is presented that we have been hugging to our bosom during the last five years a nation that has systematically and per sistently attempted to destroy the lib erties of the American people since the battle of Yorktown.

"I have respect for the present occupant of the White House, I frankly avow; I think he is too he st to be palatable to the average hapublican partisan. A little quixotic, it is true hasty tempered, full blooded, and not exactly desirable to many of our citizens; and I indulge the hope that that lingering element of Americanism will induce him at the first opportunity to boot out that man in the state depart ment who, in my judgment has brought us to this humiliating condition.

"It may be well enough to treat the representatives of the foreign powers with courtesy and consideration. I do declare that if the publication in the press is true, this man Pauncefote ought to be ordered to take the first ship and cross the waters. We want no such man in the republic. 'If he comes here to represent his government, weil and good, but if he comes here to hatch conspiracies, to attempt to force his wishes and his ideas upor the American people, the sooner we are rid of him the better it will be.

the president for his reported intention of King Edward and protested against the official reception of Prince Henry.

"One other matter I wish to advert to. In the next few days we are to have a brother of a ruler come over to this coun try and take charge of a little tug, ship. vessel, or yacht, built by some people up in New York. We are appropriating thousands of dollars, and the anglomaniaes and the European maniaes are falling over each other to get to see a little Dutchman come over and take charge of a little ship. What difference does it make whether he is a Prince Henry or not? There are thousands of citizens of this republic following the plow as noble, as honest, as intelligent as Prince Henry or Prince anybody

Mr. Wheeler's speech aroused the house to a high pitch of excitement and elicited from Mr. Boutelle (Ills.) a spirited defense of Secretary Hay, whom he eulogized in high terms. Sev eral other members on the Republican side took a hand in the debate.

There was a sequel to Mr. Wheeler's speech later in the day when Mr. Grosvenor secured the floor and replied at length to what the Kentuckian had said. He denominated Mr. Wheeler's remarks about the forthcoming visit of Prince Henry as a "bitter attack upon the President of the United States, the house and senate and incidentally upon all with whom the prince would come in contact."

Just at the time when the American people were to be put to the test as to whether they were gentlemen, he said. it was most unfortunate that this protest should come against the reception of Prince Henry. The speech of the gentleman from Kentucky would be exploited in Europe on the eve of the prince's departure as the message of the American people to their guest.

On the conclusion of Mr. Grosvenor's reply, Mr. Wheeler secured five minutes in which to answer him. "I protest in the name of Democracy and Republicanism," he said, "to the republic playing the flunkey at the feet of a little German prince; and I object to the United States sending emissaries abroad to whistle their fingers and dance attendance at the ante-chamber of some Britisher because he is going to wear the crown."

The house then proceeded with the consideration of pension bills, 125 of which were passed in 37 minutes, which is the record since the 51st congress for

ADMIRAL'S BUSY DAY

Von Baudissin Receives Callers and Makes Visits at New York

New York, Feb. 15,-Admiral Von Baudissin, commander of the Hohenzo!ern, was kept busy yesterday receivin; and returning calls. In the morning, wearing full uniform with many decorations, and accompanied by Lieutenant Von Wuedtemburg, he called upon Mayor Lanker of Hoboken and the admiral was introduced to so ne of the city officials before he returned to the yacht. Mjaor General Brooke called on the admiral, and was received with much ceremony. He spent some time with the admiral in his private cabin. Admiral Barker returned the call Von Baudissin made on Thursday. After the American admiral took his departure the German admiral left for New York in citizens' attire, to make calls on several New York families he met in Kiel. Last night he was the guest at dinner of his brother-in-low, Alfred C. Johnson of this city. Mayor Low visited the Hohenzollern late in the afternoon, but as the commander was absent the mayor remained only a few minutes President Heisor of the Hoboken board of health held a conference with Surgeon General Uthemann of the Hohenzollern, relative to smallpox. It was decided to vaccinate all of the crew of the yacht who needed it, and this was immediately begun. In all about

Washington, Feb. 15.-In the senate yesterday, resolutions for the employment of extra clerks and messengers were favorably reported by the committee on expenses. These called out a vigorous protest from Mr. Clay. He pointed out that during the past 30 days more than 20 extra messengers; and clerks had been employed at a salary of $1440 each per year. He bad! been informed, he said, that nine of these employes were for committees that had not had a meeting in eight or ten years. The statement by Mr. Clay started quite a lengthy discussion of the subject of senate employes. The resolution was recommitted with instructions to investigate the clerical

BRIGANDS GET THE RANSOM

Miss Stone and Mme Tsilka Have Been In Captivity Sirce Sept. 3-Abduction May Have Been For the Purpose of Provoking Trouble

Constantinople, Feb. 15 .- The ransom of Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka has been paid. The limit of time allowed for the release of the captives has not yet expired, but their delivery to the American agents is expected hourly.

Sofia, Feb. 15.—Bulgaria, an official newspaper, declares that as the result of an energetic note from the United States government Turkey has permitted the opening of direct negotiations with the brigands for the liberation of Miss Stone on Turkish territory.

Miss Stone was abducted by brigands on Sept. 3 last, while travelling in the mountainous country lying between Turkey and Bulgaria. There were 18 in her party, but the brigands detained only Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka. The death of the latter while in the brigands' hands has been frequently reported and as often denied. A report of Miss Stone's death about a month ago caused great anxiety, and was not proved false until several days had passed.

The American Board laid the matter of the abduction before President Roosevelt, who set on foot plans for Miss Stone's release. The diplomatic side of the matter was not neglected. Direct efforts looking toward Miss Stone's release were entrusted to the hands of Consul General Dickinson, at Constantinople, who as a diplomatic agent went to Sofia and conducted negotiations from there.

On Sept. 27 Miss Stone got a letter through to Consul General Dickinson, saying that the brigands demanded a ransom of $110,000.

The American board adhered to its determination not to pay a ransom for its missionary's release until the early part of October. On Oct, 2 the brigands let it be known that they had fixed Oct. 8 as the last day on which a ransom would be received, and on Oct. 4 the American Board issued an appeal "to Christian America" for contributions. Three days later $52,000 had been contributed, which was sent to the state de partment and cabled thence to Consul Dickinson. Since that time the bandits have spent the time in haggling over the amount of ransom.

It was broadly hinted in the dispatches that the kidnapping was not the work of brigands at all, but was done at the instigation of the Macedonian Revolutionary committee, with the double purpose of involving Turkey with the United States, and providing the revolutionary movement with

The Turks harried the frontier in an effort to solve the question and took many prisoners, some of whom were put to torture to make them reveal the identity of the outlaws, but the efforts were vain, as far as became known.

In the latter part of January it was cabled that Mr. Dickinson had gone to Samakov with as much money as had been raised, that the bandits had finally agreed to accept this amount, and after that the country expected day by day to receive the news of Miss Stone's release, but there was some hitch.

Miss Stone's American home is in Chelsea, Mass., where her mother and a brother are still residing. She has four brothers in business in Boston. Miss Stone has been engaged in missionary work in Turkey since 1878. Mme. Tsilka, the companion of Miss Stone in captivity, is a Macedonian. About five years ago she and Rev. George Tsilka, an Albanian, came to this country to educate themselves for missionary work. Mr. Tsilka took the course at the Union Theological seminary, in New York city, and was graduated with the class of 1900. Mile. Stepanode had already graduated from the American college at Samakov, and while in this country took a regular course as a trained nurse. She had a place in the Presbyterian hospital. New York city, two years ago, when Mr. Tsilka, after being graduated from the seminary, was ordained as a Congregational minister. They were then married, and sailed for Europe to engage in missionary work, Mme. Tsilka becoming a teacher in Miss Stone's school. RAPID IMPROVEMENT

thown In the Condition of Young

Roosevelt and Sick Schoolmates Groton, Mass., Feb. 15.-Yesterday was an absolutely uneventful day at the Groton school. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., improved very rapidly, and his convalescence assumed rapid progress. For the first time since his illness he partook of solid food, meat forming one of the articles of his diet. The Gammell and Potter boys also partook of meat. The boys all rested comfortably all day.

Dr. Shattuck of Boston has disconinued his visits, leaving Dr. Warren of Groton in charge. At each taking of the chart yesterday, the respiration, pulse and temperature of the patients were normal, and from all appearances the convalescence was uninterrupted. It is hoped that the boys will be able to sit up by Monday. Young Roosevelt's lungs are rapidly clearing, with the possibility of resolution being completed in a very few days. Priest Stricken With Smallpox

Weymouth, Mass., Feb. 15 .- Rev. J. J. Murphy, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, who has been sick for several days, and whose case was yesterday diagnosed as that of smallpox, was last night taken to the town hall, which is being utilized as a pest house. The church was fumigated yesterday and will remain closed for at least two weeks. The parochial residence is quarantined. On Ash Wednesday at least 500 people were exposed to the disease. Father Murphy came in contact with all present at church.

Wouldn't Have Secret Ballot

Providence, Feb. 15 .- A mass meetng of the striking weavers of the Amercan Woolen company at Olneyville yes terday refused to have a secret ballot on a suggestion that one be taken to de cide whether another committee should he appointed to confer with the corporation officials. It was declared that the motion was not seconded and that not even the man who offered it would vote for it on a show of hands. There is no material change in the situation.

Creditors Getting Their Money Springfield, Mass., Feb. 15.-James Q Doyle, who has in the past week been visiting old creditors in this city of Lawrie Marks, the bookmaker, who was supposed to have committed suicide, admits having been furnished with a list of Marks' creditors and money to pay them in full. He refused to say where he received the money. Friends of Marks in this city say that he is alive.

Malden Man Missing

Malden, Mass., Feb. 15.-The apbearance of three trustees of Reliance Lodge, N. E. O. P., with Chief of Police Emmerton before the grand jury yesterday is believed to have connec tion with the disappearance from Malden of Frank F. Hussey, formerly financial secretary of the lodge. Hussey has not been seen here since early in January and his family have left town.

Fined For Indignity to Old Glory Beston, Feb. 15.-In the municipal ourt, Myer Ratzman, for using an American flag as as ragbag, was fined $10. Ratzman is a ragpicker, a Russian Jew, and he narrowly escaped being mobbed on Hanover street because the bag which he had slung over his shoulder was made out of the Stars and He was charged with mutilating and defacing the American flag.

One Killed, Twelve Injured Lawrence, Mass., Feb. 15.-The exlosion of a dynamite cartridge in North Andover yesterday caused the death of one man and the injuring of about a dozen. The dead man and the injured ones are mostly Italians. The accident occurred at a point where the Boston and Northern Railway company is cutting through a hill.

MRS. PRIESTMAN.

A Philadelphia Society Woman Who

Has Made a Success In Trade. There is a shop on Walnut street that is unique in trade in Philadelphia. Its director is a woman of high social standing whose love of art prompted her to go into trade and who since she put out her sign has been called in to decorate some of the handsomest homes in this city.

The woman is Mrs. Priestman, and she is the first woman in the city to take up the art of house decorating and by following her profession on the principle of art first and money making second has gained a reputation and success hitherto undreamed of and has raised the work of interior decorating

Some Mistakes of Women.

One of the mistakes of women is in not knowing how to eat. If a man is not to be fed when she is, she thinks a cup of tea or anything handy is good enough. If she needs to save money, she does it at the butcher's cost. If she is busy, she will not waste time in eating. If she is unhappy, she goes without food. A man eats if the sheriff is at the door, if his work drives, if the undertaker interrupts, and he is right. A woman will choose ice cream instead of beefsteak, and a man will

Another of her mistakes is in not knowing how to rest. If she is tired, she may sit down, but she will darn stockings, crochet shawls, embroider

She doesn't know that hard work cut through the flour, not rubbed.

If she is exhausted she will write letters, figure her accounts or read up for some circle or club. She Allow a cough to run until it get would kingh at you if you hinted that reach of medicine. They offer reading or writing could fail to rest will wear away," but in most creating or writing could fail to rest will wear away. Could they be in her. All over the country women's hospitals flourish because women do which is sold on a positive not know how to rest.

Another mistake on the list is their constant worrying. Worry and hurry are their enemies, and yet they hug them to their bosoms. Women cross bridges before they come to them and even build bridges.

Women are not jolly enough. They make too serious a business of life and laugh at its little humors too seldom. Men stop in the midst of perplexities and have a hearty laugh, and it keeps them young. Women cannot, and that is one reason why they fade so early.

Welcome Broom Cure.

Young women who are bemoaning the possession of arms not plump enough to be pleasing may accept the following suggestion, if only on trial. It is said that Clara Louise Kellogg, the singer, when a young girl was much annoyed by the attenuated appearance of her arms when she began to don evening dress at her crowded concerts. Some one recommended a brisk use of the broom, which advice she followed and soon had round, plump arms as the reward of her laplump listless girl can by any means be persuaded to try the "broom cure," she will be astonished to find what a beautifier it surely is.

Mending China.

In mending china and bric-a-brac the very best cements will fail unless they are carefully and properly applied. In the first place, make sure that the at 10.30 o'clock A. The broken edges should be thoroughly washed in a strong solution of lye or soap and care be taken not to touch them with the hands afterward. The cement should be put on very sparingly, and the edges should be held together until it is solid. For this purpose a piece of copper wire is better than string, as it can be tightened by twist- law in its application to certain veterans all ing and holds the parts more firmly.

It was soon noticed, however, that instead of maintaining its usual equilibrium, the balloon rose and pitched in a way that created considerable anxiety among the spectators. The aeronaut, however, continued his flight, and pointing his ship to the left continued to ascend until the long guide rope was 20 feet out of the water. In turning the balloon the guide rope caught in the screw, and this, with the erratic working of the airship, created a situation of great danger. At the same time a squall burst and Santos-Dumont tilted the head of his balloon upwards in order to disengage the guide rope.

In so doing the ballast shifted, and the oil used to run the motor began to spread. Fearing an explosion, the inventor pulled the emergency cord. This rips the envelope of the balloon, which at once began to descend.

Santos-Dumont did not lose his head. He could distinctly be seen from the shore watching the various parts of the airship. At this time the balloon had slightly righted itself, and the lower part having become empty, the airship dropped slantingly towards the pigeon shooting grounds which border the bay. In front of these grounds there lies a reef of sharp rocks, and the excitement | And if we trust Him He will keep us | in his face. arose that Santos-Dumont would drift keep us from them. on these rocks and be dashed to pieces.

"I am not discouraged. My trip to Cape Martin is only postponed. I will start again as soon as I can get ready. This accident was due to the entanglement of the guide rope with the screw and wires of the balloon. The balloon was not fully inflated when I started. Seeing that an accident was inevitable, I pulled the emergency cord, but pulled it harder than I intended. This made a bigger rent than I wanted. Consequently, the airship collapsed too quickly, and for a moment there seemed to be danger of the casing falling on me. But luckily this danger was averted. I shall try again."

Green Mountaineers at Banquet

Washington, Feb. 15.—Senator Proctor of Vermont gave a dinner last night, the guest of honor being Secretary of the Treasury Shaw. Those invited to meet him included a number of well known persons who were born in Nermont. The dinner was informal and there were no speeches. But one toast was drunk, that of "Vermont, the state we love." Secretary Shaw is also a Vermonter by birth.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 16-Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle. Topic .- Tempted and tried .- I Cor. x. 13

There are two dangers against which Christians must guard themselves in reference to the temptations' and trials of life. 1. They may be treated too COLLAPSED OVER THE SEA and magnify our own abilities to resist lightly. We may belittle temptation it and may, as a consequence, be in danger of falling through overconfidence. 2. When the true character and power of sin are realized, we may Daring Inventor's Narrow Escape grow discouraged and give up without an effort. The phase of the subject presented in the topical references is the letter one. Paul, having warned the Corinthians against falling through overconfidence, next warns them against discouragement. To accomplish this he points out the ercourage ing side of resistance to temptation. The references from Hebrews continue tered wreck, while his motor lies at the same phase of the subject by presenting Christ's relation to temptation and trial

1. Human experience encourages us ing about the bay with the intention of to resist temptation. "There hath no following the balloon. Cheers greeted temptation taken you but such as is common to man," except such as is human or such as man can bear. Our temptations are no fiercer than those which have assailed others and against which they have successfully stood. If others have resisted the temptations common to us, then we also can resist them. If tempted to intemperance, to lust, to anger, to unbelief, to sin in any form, let us remember that other men have resisted these temptations, which assures us that we can if we will.

2. The faithfulness of God encourages us to resist temptation. "God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ve are able, but will with the temptation also make a way to escape that ye may be able to bear it." The power against us is great, but the power for us is still greater. God permits us to be tempted for our good. Certain phases of human character can only be developed or perfected under temptation and trial. "The trial of your faith worketh patience." But if when the temptations come we trust in God and look to Him for strength He will provide a way of escape. He tried the faith of Abraham, but provided a way of escape. He tried the character of Jeron shore was intense as apprehension | in temptation and trial if He does not

A Lesson to Learn.

If one lesson, and only one, were to be chosen, which each Christian would learn by heart, the one which would mean most for the future of the church as well as for those who had learned it would be that of individual responsibility to God for what is done and what is left undone—the distinctness with which all stand before God as individual men and women and are responsible both for their own lives and for their influence. With that lesson thoroughly learned everything comprised in Christian duty would follow naturally.-Lutheran Observer.

Utterly Wrecks a House at West Brookfield

TWO ARE KILLED OUTRIGHT

While a Third Succumbs Later In a Hospital-Shock Felt In Neighboring Towns and Report of Explosion Heard Twenty-Five Miles Away

West Brookfield, Mass., Feb. 17.-A errible explosion of gas at the house f T. Elmer Gould on Cottage street, aturday night, utterly wrecked the ouse and killed two persons. The body of one, Mrs. Gould, was soon taken from the bottom of a heap of debris at the back of the house, burned almost beyond recognition. The remains of Mrs. John R. Tomblin were found under the northeast corner of the building and terribly burned. The shock was terrible; it shook the buildings here and at Brookfield. The noxious fumes that poured out were suffocating to those who first reached the spot. Boards, furniture and debris of all kinds were hurled for rods. The whole town was filled with consternation. It is the most terrible tragedy that ever occurred in the Brookfields.

He found the bodies burned almost beyond recognition, but they were identified by their clothes. He considers that they were killed at once by the explosion and burned afterwards. He does not deem an inquest necessary.

The shock was felt in neighboring towns and the report of the explosion was heard 25 miles away. The residence was one of the handsomest in the town.

The medical examiner has sent in his report of the explosion in which he states it was due to acetylene gas. He holds no one responsible and says there is no necessity for an inquest. Both the victims, Mrs. Fanny Gould and Mrs. Tomblin, were killed outright, although their bodies were badly burned afterwards. Worcester, Mass., Feb. 17.-Miss Margaret Leahy, the domestic who was badly injured in the acetylene gas explosion at Mr. Gould's home Saturday night, died here last night at St. Vincent's hospital. Miss Leahy suffered intense pain from burns on her lower limbs and body and was not moved immediately after the accident for fear of death. She was brought to Worcester yesterday and lived but a few hours after the transfer.

Disastrous For Them Pretoria, Feb. 17.-One hundred and fifty mounted infantry, while patrolling the Klip river south of Johannesburg, Feb. 12, surrounded a farmhouse where they suspected Boers were in hiding. A ingle Boer broke away from the house and the British started to pursue him. The Boer climbed a kopje, the British ollowing.

Immediately a heavy fire was opened apon them from three sides. The Britsh found themselves in a trap and in a position where they were unable to nake any defense. Eight of the British officers made a gallant effort and de fended the ridge with carbines and revolvers until they were overpowered. The British had two officers and 10 men killed and several officers and 40 men wounded before the force was able to fall back under cover of a blockhouse. Lord Kitchener, in addition to re porting the Klip river affair says: "A party from the South African constabulary line on the Watervaal river, encountered, Feb. 10, a superior force of the enemy near Vantondershbek and was driven back with loss."

Seamen's Sufferings Galveston, Tex., Feb. 17.-The Head Line steamer Torrhead arrrived in port esterday with a shipwrecked crew of 18 men of the ship Helene, which went to pieces in a hurricane on Feb. 3. The Helene left New York for Liverpool on Jan. 19 with a cargo of naphtha valued at $30,000. On the morning of Jan. 31 the ship encountered the hurricane and for three days the crew struggled to keep the ship affoat. Five of the crew accounted to exhaustion before the end of the second day. For 38 hours the 18 men aboard worked without food, oumping the water from the hold. The food that escaped the water was saturated with naphtha.

Prince Henry Starts on Journey to America

A STOP AT SOUTHAMPTON

Where the Dock Swarmed With Policemen and Detectives-Wireless Message Ninety Miles From Shore- which have been temporarily patched. Due at New York Saturday Morning

Southampton, Feb. 17.-The Kron Prinz Wilhelm arrived here yesterday. Prince Henry's voyage to England was uneventful. The Kron Prinz Wilhelm proceeded slowly from Bremerhaven down the Weser, under a cloudless sky, followed by cheers from the people lining the shore. The prince and his suite walked upon the upper deck with some of the other passengers. Later Prince Henry proceeded to the bridge, where he held a ong conversation with the captain of the steamer. The prince, with his suite, occupied a table in an alcove of the general saloon at dinner. During the meal the band played German and American airs. The prince was up early yesterday norning, walking the deck. In the course of a conversation he again expressed the pleasure he feels at visiting the United States and added: 'Why the last man I shook hands with on German ground was an American, the Berlin representative of The Associated Press.

At about 10:30 the Isle of Wight and the forts of Portsmouth were sighted. It was a glorious day of sunshine. With the band playing and with flags flying, the steamer made her way up Southampton water to the dock. Here the North German Lloyd Steamship company had taken the most elaborate precautions. The special train from London, carrying passengers for the Kron Prinz Wilhelm, arrived at Southhampton at 11:30 but was not allowed to proceed to the dock until the steamship bearing the prince had been made fast. At 1 o'clock the dock swarmed with poicemen and detectives and the steamship tickets of the Southampton passengers were repeatedly scrutinized.

Sunday night at 8.55 Box 28 was pulled, and was for a slight fire in the house occupied by Walter Flint on Hancock street opposite Merrymount road. The fire was caused by the lamp n an oil stove. Mr. Flint was carrying the stove upstairs when the lamp fell out spilling the oil over the stairs and setting it on fire. When the department arrived at the box there was no fire in sight and no one there to tell where it was. The firemen thought it a false alarm and were about to return when they were informed where the fire was. A chemical stream quickly extinguished the fire, although the house was filled with smoke and the floor damaged somewhat. The loss will be small.

An Odd Use For the Pin. An odd use that the pin was put to ria. long ago was that of checking the intemperate habits of the English. St. Dunstan conceived the idea of dividing the tankards out of which the liquor was drunk into eight equal parts, each part marked with a silver pin. The cups were generous affairs, holding two quarts. Consequently the quantity from pin to pin was half a pint, and the regulation was that the drinker

"stop at a pin." Roisterers, however, prevented the purpose of good St. Dunstan and established the rule of "good fellowship," by which the drinker was to stop only at a pin. If he drank beyond, he had to go on to the next mark. As it was difficult to stop exactly at a pin the vain efforts always excited much mirth, and the trial usually ended with now attributed to Chinese experience, the draining of the tankard.

BUTTER AS A MEDICINE.

It Is Good For Consumptives and For Thin, Weak People.

Butter is so common a commodity and that without its aid the table would be bare of its thinly rolled bread uses the value of butter is a thing only vaguely thought of.

But this delicate fat is as valuable as the dearer cod liver oil for weakly, thin people, and doctors have frequently recommended the eating of many butter as a means of pleasantly taking cannibals fled, leaving 32 dead. How a Diamond Cuts Glass.

It has been ascertained by a series of experiments that a diamond does not cut out the glass, file fashion, but forces the particles apart, so that a continuous crack is formed along the line of the intended cut. The crack once begun, very small force is necessary to carry it through the glass, and thus the piece is easily broken off. The superficial crack or cut need not be deep. A depth, according to fine measurements, of a two-hundredth part of one inch is quite sufficient to accomplish the purpose, so that the application of much force in using the diamond only wears out the gem without doing the work any better.

Numerous stones, such as quartz and other minerals, when ground into tain between this city and Chilapa, proper form, will cut glass like a diamond, but are not so valuable for that | feared that the city is in danger of purpose, lacking the requisite hardness greater peril than recently experienced. and soon losing the sharp edge necessary to make the operation a success.

NEW GUINEA CANNIBALS

Treacherously Lured French Scientists to Their Death

Survivors Would Have Met a Like Fate but For the Arrival of Assistance-One Man Devoured-Corpses Subjected to Horrible Atrocities

Paris, Feb. 17.-La Patrie publishes a letter received from its correspondent, bals at Siledaka, New Guinea, Jan. 1. M. Rouyer relates that the yacht Salvatti, with the mission on board, had anchored off the coast of New Guinea and that a number of the explorers landed. After an apparently friendly reception from the natives, the latter treacherously attacked them during the night, murdering 25 of the party, including Baron Vilars, Count De Saint Romy and M. Hagenbock and Vries, and wounding 33, including the writer of the letter, the chief of the mission and another Frenchman named Reimer.

M. Rouyer writes: "We were all

EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY Extended In Time to Allow a Man to Die Outside State Prison Somerville, Mass., Feb. 17 .- After serving seven years of a life sentence in the state prison at Charlestown, Patrick Foley was on Saturday pardoned from there by Governor Crane only to die a few hours after at the home of TWENTY-FIVE ARE SLAIN friends in this city from consumption.

The crime for which Foley was serving his life was the murder of Constable Foster of Burlington in September, 1894. Foley, with two companions, Sullivan and Nagle, were out in Burlington on a foraging expedition when the murder occurred. All three were sent to state prison for the rest of their ratural lives. Frequent efforts have been made by friends of Nagle to have him pardoned on the ground that he M. Rouyer, a survivor of the massacre | was innocent of what the real object of of a French scientific mission by canni- the other two were in bringing him to Burlington, but so far they have been unsuccessful. About a year ago Foley's health began to fail. A petition was sent to Governor Crane asking for the pardon of Foley, but it was only granted when he was assured that the latter's recovery was out of the question. It was the wish of Foley's friends that he die outside the state prison. On Saturday the governor affixed his name to the pardon and Foley was only a few hours out when he passed away.

THIS WEEK IN CONGRESS Measures of Importance Will Probably Be Disposed Of

Washington, Feb. 17.-The greater part of today will be devoted by the senate to an effort to ratify the treaty with Denmark for the cession of the Danish West Indies. This proceeding will be in executive session and there is no certainty as to whether one day will be sufficient for the purpose or

If the consideration of the treaty is not concluded today its final disposition probably will be postponed for several days, as Senator Lodge has agreed to side track the Philippine bill only for the one day. With reference to the Philippine bill it is altogether probable that a vote will be reached during the latter part of the week. The Democrats have decided that they will be able to conclude their presentation of their opposition to the bill in a few more speeches.

By unanimous consent the census bill will be disposed of after the Danish treaty, and before the debate on the Philippine bill is taken up.

The coming week promises to be one of unusual activity in the house. Beginning today the war revenue reduction bill will be taken up, with two days for debate, and a stringent special rule bringing the bill to a vote at 3 p. m. tomorrow without intervening motion to recommit or amendments other than those of a verbal character proposed by the committee. There promises to be a spirited contest on the adoption of the special rule, as the minority will protest against the cutting off of amendments and the motion to recommit.

The passage of the bill is a foregone concluson, as the minority members as well as the majority favor it, the only difference being as to the amount of reduction and the extent to which the tariff changes should go.

Aside from the tariff issue, it would be no surprise if the sensational speech of Representative Wheeler of Kentucky on Prince Henry's visit and other foreign matters figure in the discussion, as much feeling has been aroused by the speech.

Besides the work on the floor of the house it is expected that the week may see some progress in the ways and means committee on the subject of Cuban reciprocity, which was deferred until after the war revenue measure had been passed.

In Memory of Honored Dead

Boston, Feb. 17.—The first annual memorial service for those who lost their lives on the battleship Maine in Havana harbor was held in Faneuil hall last evening under the direction of the League of Spanish War Veterans. Two survivors of the disaster occupied places upon the platform. There were in attendance representatives of many patriotic societies. The colors were brought in by a guard of honor, the entire audience standing as the bug! s saluted them. At the close of the s :vice, with the color bearers all lined up on the platform, taps were played by a bugler on the platform in honor of the Maine heroes, and when the bugler in the hall finished, from outside, sounding faint and far away, the notes of an echoing bugle could be heard.

microbes! That is what Scott's Emulsion does in consumption.

We can't expect to understand all about these germs and microbes the doctors talk of. They say that one kind causes consumption. Consumption microbes feed on weak lungs. Perhaps that's so.

At any rate we know that Scott's Emulsion has a peculiar action on the lungs which gives the lungs new life and vigor, Healthy lungs starve the microbes out.

ONE OF WOMAN'S WAYS. the Hates to Pay Out Bills That Are Clean and Crisp.

Chinese Honesty.

As for the honesty of these people, I appeal to every English merchant or banker from Peking to Hongkong to answer if he ever heard of a dishonest Chinese merchant or banker. So far from that, not only has every English bank two Chinamen to receive and hand out money, but every bank in Japan has the same. The English will tell you, half in jest, that the Japanese is an oriental Yankee and does not trust his own people, and they will tell you, half in earnest, that the English bankers employ Chinese to handle their money because they never make mistakes.

These people of China have never had anything like a bankrupt law. If a man cannot pay his debts or some one does not secretly come forward and pay them at the end of each year, he has "lost his face," and so he dies by his own hand. Yet, with all their piteous poverty, they have no such words as "hard times," for everything must be settled up at the end of the year. There can be no extension of time. Confucius forbade it .- Joaquin Miller in North American Review.

Champagne and Cancer. There is a remarkable coincidence be tween the spread of cancer and the largely increased daily consumption of effervescent wines and waters among the wealthy classes. Prior to the sixties champagne as a drink was, even in higher circles, partaken of but occasionally, nor were aerated waters consumed in anything like the quantity nor with the frequency that they now are. These beverages, and indeed all effervescing drinks, owe their sparkle to the carbonic acid gas which they contain. My contention is that the upper classes by their habit of constantly imbibing effervescent beverages, which are solutions of carbonic acid of greater or less strength, so prepare their mucous tisbe.-London Medical Times.

Leather Eating Ants.

It is said that in Rhodesia white ants destroy boots and articles of clothing left on tables or hanging on nails. The following is from a letter received re cently from South Africa: "On awaking in the morning you are astonished to see a cone shaped object on the brick floor a short distance from your bed with two holes at the top. On before. They have given form and proportion to an ant heap, and nothing is town, left of them except the nails, eyelets and maybe part of the heels."

The Three Meal Habit. Our three meal habit is a fearful tax on our working capacity. It trebles the temptation to overeating. Our champions stagger under the weight of a physiological handicap. One-half the functional energy of the system is dimuch to make us a generation of dyspeptics as the custom of after dinner work. Bill to Repeal War Revenue Taxes Is Passed

NOT A WORD OF DEBATE ON IT

But Few Democrats and None of the Republicans Had Knowledge of the Contemplated Coup of the Minority -General Surprise All Around

Washington, Feb. 18.-The unexpected happened in the house yesterday when the bill to repeal the war revenue taxes was passed unanimously without word of debate. This action was the utcome of a challenge thrown down by Mr. Richardson (Tenn.), the minority leader, after the adoption, by a strict party vote, of a special order for the consideration of the bill, which pernitted debate upon it until 4 o'clock this afternoon, but cut off all opportunity of offering amendments except such as had been agreed upon by the ways and means committee. The adoption of the rule had been preceded by a stormy debate, in the course of which the Democrats protested against the application of the "gag," which Mr. Hay (Va.) charged was meant to prevent a free expression not only by the Democrats, but by some of the Republicans, attention being especially directed toward Mr. Babcock, the father of the bill to amend the steel schedule of the present tariff law. They also charged that such a method of procedure was minimizing the influence of the house and making it simply a machine to register the decrees of the few men in control.

After some minor business had been eleared away Mr. Dalzell, from the comnittee on rules, presented the special order agreed upon by that committee. Mr. Dalzell explained the effect of the rule. This measure, he said, was presented to redeem a pledge made when the war revenue tax+, were imposed that when the necessity for them ceased they would be repealed.

This was a measure on which, he took it, there was practically unanimity of sentiment on both sides of the house. It was a simple repeal measure, and it was deemed wise that it should be brought to vote without complication on the extreme issues.

At the conclusion of this brief statement Mr. Dalzell yielded 30 minutes to Mr. Underwood, also of the committee on rules. The Alabama member proested against the addition of the rule, because it prevented individual members from exercising their own judgment or carrying out the wishes of their constituents as to what portion of the excessive taxes should be repealed.

Mr. Ball (Tex.) denounced the rule as but another step in the parliamentary evolution by which individualism in the house was being crushed and a few men were enthroned as the autocrats to dominate its will.

Mr. Babcock (Wis.) said he did not believe in complicating the repeal bill with other tariff matters, but at the first opportunity he would press his measure to amend the steel schedule. Mr. Dalzell, closing the debate, said that in 1894 the Democrats of the house, then in majority, under a rule swallowed 694 amendments to the Wilson tariff bill after two hours' debate. Upon his demand the previous question was ordered. Mr. Richardson offered a motion to recommit the rule. The speaker sustained a point of order against the motion. Mr. Richardson appealed from the decision and upon a rollcall the chair was sustained-165 to 128.

The rule was adopted-158 to 120. Thereupon Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, arose. "I rise to make a request for unanimous consent," said "In view of the fact that we are not permitted to amend the pending bill and in view of the fact that the two days' debate is absolutely fruitless under this rule, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be put upon its passage

Members looked at each other in amazement. Only a few of the Democrats had knowledge of the contemplated coup and none of the Republicans had any wind of it. The speaker put the request and raised his gavel.

40,000 men have struck at Barcelona "Is there objection?" he asked. He and serious rioting is reported there towaited a moment. Not a sound was day. The mob attempted to sack the heard. "The chair hears none," said market buildings and stopped all street the speaker, as he brought his gavel traffic. The factories and shops in the down. Then spontaneously from both city have been closed. Women ar sides applause rang out. All debate taking a prominent part in the dis was wiped out and by the direction of turbances. Several battalions of troops the speaker the clerk read the bill. are clearing the streets.

The verbal amendments were agreed to in grosse. Mr. Payne, the majority leader, demanded the yeas and nays up on the final passage of the bill. The bill was passed unanimously, 287 members voting "aye." The announcement of the result was applauded on both sides of the house.

Boston, Feb. 18.-After an unprecedented stretch of clear weather, dating practically back to Candlemas day, New England was blanketed with over a foot of wet snow and swept by a northeast gale, the severity of which ranks well above anything ever experienced so far this winter. As a result of this meteorological onslaught, traffic was greatly impeded, telegraph and telephone wires so badly damaged that a number of principal news points were almost entirely cut off from communication with the outside world, and in fact nearly all business was more or less stagnated.

Fortunately there was not a large amount of shipping off the coast, so that nothing in the way of a marine disaster has yet been reported. The storm centre was directly over Boston last night, with an unusually low barometer of 28.78, which is nearly the record at this station.

The storm, which came directly from the south, first gave warning of its approach Sunday afternoon, when the sky gradually became cloudy, a large ring appeared about the sun, and the wind which for two weeks had blown from the northwest, died suddenly away and then began to puff up from the east. As the night wore on the wind increased and backed into the northeast, but it forgery. Meyer Tractenburg, a fur bound and gagged. A municipal electric light plant has been urged in Quincy, but it is doubtful if the city would be lighted for less money. It might be more extensively lighted, but at greatly increased cost. Under progressive management like the Electric Light Company is at present, the city is better off than it would be with a municipal plant.

But water and electric light are monopolies which have franchises which keep out competitors. Not so in printing and other lines of business. When a city can get good printing from local firms at less cost than at munici pal plants, it makes a mistake to establish such plants. The total loss to the Boston municipal printing plant in five years has been $30,128.83, exclusive of charges for interest upon capital, and it has charged what it pleased for work and had no competi-

He went back 6,000 years to prove that widows had always been objects of public sympathy and had been given more latitude than other folks, and he took the early history of Egypt to prove that hogs had been allowed to run at large without protestation. The carriages of queens and gar!" empresses had turned aside for hogs lying in the roads, and kings and em alarms of fire during the year 1901 was perors had stumbled over them as they lay stretched out on the sidewalks. It ion wavered again. The value of property at risk was Ebenezer Schoolcraft had ranged $281,165; insurance, $199,750; loss, himself with the antihog-antiwidow party. He had resurrected a political speech he made when General Grant was a candidate for a second- term, and when Philetus sat down Ebenezer rose up. Everybody was wondering how he could swing the hog into the speech, but he did it as handsome as you please and made it tell. It was over half hog, and had there been campaign on it would have elected whole county ticket. When he had con cluded and sat down with a broker suspender; there was a general feeling that the widow's hog would never emerge from the public pound until the fees had been paid in cash.

It was then that the prohogs pu forth their last card. They had got hold of a barbed wire fence man who could talk the top off a liberty pole, and he rose up with his ears working. His speech was a happy combination of Napoleon, Washington, Judas Isca riot, American independence, the Mis souri compromise and the widow's hog, and he didn't give anybody time to rest. He was as gentle as a baby and as savage as a meat ax by turns, and some of his thunderbolts made the shingles rattle. He was being paid $5 in cash for his speech, and he wanted

As to Form of Government For the Philippines

Legislature-Absolute Oligarchy If Islands Are Turned Over to Natives a-America Should Retain Control

Washington, Feb. 18.-Governor Taft, WOLLASTON PARK-C. E. Hosmer, cor in his testimony before the senate ommittee on the Philippines yesterday, stated more succinctly than he has heretofore done his theory-which is, he said, also the theory of the Philippine commission-as to what congress should pine people with a form of government. His plan is first to give the people a qualified suffrage, with a gradual growth in popular government, which should be enlarged through education in the English language and in American institutions. Second, to institute within a reasonably short time a local legislature, to consist of two bodies, one to be chosen by vote and the other to be appointive; third, to permit the islands to send two or three representatives to Washington.

Such a pronouncement by this country would be welcomed by many and would do much good. Many of the common people do not, he said, know the difference between independence and dependence, and many of the better informed have not followed the agitation of the principle of independence to its last analysis. Some of the agitators seem, he said, to count upon a protectorate by the United States. If the government of the islands should now be turned over to the islanders themselves there would be nothing less than an absolute oligarchy; for they have no idea of civil government.

He thought all the difficulties gallon of rinsing water, and the silk of race and limate might be overcome, but held that it would take some time and require much patience in the matter of training on our part. He anticipated some trouble on account of undue or illegal exploitation of the islands, and When ironing starched clothes with corruption in case of continued Amerjean occupation, but he would not turn ter, dip in the fringe, wring dry and the islands back to the fate of an oligarchy on account of this danger co long as there was a probability of sucess as there was in this case.

"I did not originally favor the acquisition of the Philippines and I was sorry at the time that we got them, but way than to go on and carry out the plan I have suggested, I may be a Mark Tapley in this matter," he con- He also has some stomach trouble, due tinued, "but if I didn't believe we could fact that the feat we propose is to an extent unprecedented-if I did not believe we should succeed in doing what we are undertaking to do, I should resign immediately and come home."

In proceeding he said that his idea was to unite example and actual practice in the American control of the islands. He believed, he said, that the result would be the uplifting and the edueation of the people to a point which would put them on a plane far above that which they at present occupy. He believed that they would find the association with the United States so profitable and agreeable that they would not want to sever the relationship and possibly the relationship might continue perpetually.

A Charming and Artistic Method of Ornamenting a Wall.

A very charming and artistic way of decorating a wall is that called "shadow ornamentation," and it is one which can be successfully carried out by any one having taste, no special training being needed. Supposing you would like to decorate a room with a fresco in red, yellow or other color, begin by providing yourself with a pot of paint of the right hue and a brush. Now darken your room, light a lamp and proceed to study the outlines of the fresco work you propose carrying out on your wall.

In order to do this place a plant in front of the lamp so that its shadow is cast on that part of the wall you mean to decorate and turn it about until you have a shadow that is pleasing to your artistic sense. If one plant does not throw a pretty shadow, try another, or if none of your plants is satisfactory try the effect of some branches cut from a tree or shrub.

For "shadowing" it is necessary to use those plants which throw a large and many branched outline in order to obtain the best effect when the filling in is done. The more delicate the tracery work the better, and therefore ferns, palms and branches of hors chestnut are admirable, but there ar plenty of others equally good, which may be chosen by the decorator. Have ing arranged the shadows to your like ing, the next thing to do is to outlin them carefully and methodically. This is the most important part of the work and on the way it is done depends the success or failure of the fresco. The filling in is comparatively easy. Go carefully round the outlines of the leaves and branches, following the veins and tracing the flowers and buds When this is finished, the rest of th work had better be done in daylight as it is far less trying to the eyes than artificial light.

In painting in the outlines great carmust be used to follow the lines co. rectly. This warning is the more nec essary since the shadow of the plant now no longer falls on the wall, and therefore the outlines which appeared quite clear during the first process are likely to now seem somewhat meaning less. But only a little care is needed. and following the lines will be an east

Some idea of the decorative effect of this fresco painting may be obtained rom the accompanying sketch. Th walls in this case were first colored pink, and the design upon it was of a good bronze green.-Home Notes.

Danger of Overstudy.

A timely note of warning is sounded by The Medical Record in regard to the danger of rushing young children too rapidly through their studies. I declares that our modern educational system is greatly at fault in laving to nuch stress upon examinations and in developing the minds of children to often at the expense of their vitality and health. The stress of modern edu cation, it says, has enormously taxed the brains of children by the multiplic ity of studies. Children cannot assimilate the ideas in widely differing departments of knowledge at one and the same time. The effort to do so deranges in many instances the entire nervous system of the child. The so called nervous child is not only not normal, but may be the victim of the education methods of the present day.

The Modern Woman. Lady Warwick has made a very brave defense of the modern woman in a contemporary. The modern woman is always being railed at and compared to her disadvantage with her grandmother, whereas in many respects she is vastly superior to the woman of, say, half a century ago. She may have less agreeable manners, and she may indulge in pastimes and tastes that are not altogether feminine; but, as Lady Warwick points out, she is certainly far more capable person all around. She does not shirk work. She is generally pretty thorough about it. She is not affected, and her mind is altogether better trained and more logical than that of her predecessors, who were really incapable, from no fault of their own, of doing half the useful work in which their sex now engages.

Paris, Feb. 19.—The emps publishes a dispatch from Constantinople which unnounces that Miss Ellen M. Stone has been released by the brigands who have held her captive since Sept. 3 last and has been handed over in good health to the dragoman of the American lega-

MISS ELLEN M. STONE. The dispatch adds that "Reverend Tsilka" has been arrested on the charge of complicity in the kideapping of Miss

MRS. GREGORY TSILKA. London, Feb. 19. -Rev. Mr. Tsilka who, according to the Constantinople correspondent of the Paris Temps, has been arrested on the charge of complicity in the kidnapping of the missionary, is the husband of Mme Tsilka, Miss Stone's companion.

It was announced recently that the Turkish authorities suspected Mr. Tsilka with complicity in the abduction of the missionaries.

No Hindrance to Canal Project San Jose, C. R., Feb. 19.-It is known here that President Iglesias has agreed to co-operate with President Zelaya of Nicaragua in affecting a satisfactory arrangement for the legal jurisdiction of the territory desired by the government of the United States in the district to be traversed by the proposed Nicaragua canal, and that all minor points in this matter can easily be Rutherford-Morton Nuptials New York, Feb. 19.-Miss Alice Moron, fourth daughter of ex-Vice Presilent Morton, and Winthrop Rutherford were married yesterday in Grace Episcopal church. The wedding was simple in the extreme, there being no bridesmaids and no decorations in the church, except two bouquets of ascension lilies that filled the vases on the altar.

MANAGEMENT OF BANKS Legislation Favoring Separate Officers

For National and State Institutions Boston, Feb. 19 .- One of the most mportant measures before the legislature for many years, a bill dissolving the relation between savings and national banks or trust companies, was passed by the house yesterday, without division and with less than two hours' debate. The bill is in conformity with the recommendations of Governor Crane in his inaugural address, and if passed by the senate will compel savings and national banks to occupy separate buildings and be managed by separate officials after Jan. 1, 1904. There fected by this legislation, affecting about 120 institutions. During the debate numerous amendments were offered, a number seeking to practically annul the important features of the bill. The opposition was led by Mr. Hayes of Lowell, who at a recent Republican caucus came out strong against a number of the governor's recommendations. Mr Roads of Marblehead, a Democrat, made a are eight different classes of cases af-telling speech in favor of the bill. The opponents of the bill were unable to obtain a rollcall either on the amendments or the bill itself.

Inquest Not Completed

Greenfield, Mass., Feb. 19.-Judge Lyman yesterday held an inquest to determine the cause of the death of Miss Ida Columbe and Louis M. Bitzer, it being alleged that Louis Bitzer caused their death by shooting. The inquest was private. Twelve witnesses were examined and adjournment was taken until Friday. Nothing has as yet reached the public to show that Bitzer's story of the tragedy is not true. His claim was that he accidentally killed Miss Columbe, which crazed him to such an extent that he did the other

The Lynn Carpenters' Fight

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 19.-The first victory in the controversy between the Lynn Central Labor union and the Independent Carpenters' union of this city was scored yesterday by the former body, when C. B. Magrane, a prominent real estate operator, notified all carpenters in his employ that they must belong to the Central Labor union, whether they were members of the Independent Carpenters' union or not.

Want All Treated Alike

Boston, Feb. 19 .- At a meeting of the olored citizens of Boston, held yesterday to consider the question of negro disenfranchisement, a resolution was adopted condemning the "open violation of the 14th amendment by Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and North and South Carolina, and declaring that "we are in favor of an educational or property qualification, if it be enforced on all alike."

State Prison Sentences

WHEELER'S CRITICISMS

Draw the Fire of Gillett of Massachusetts

AN AFFRONT TO FOREIGNERS

Which He Considers Ill-Timed-Kentuckian Reaffirms What He Had Said and Stands by His Words, Whether Discreet or Not

Washington, Feb. 19 .- The speech of

Mr. Wheeler of Kentucky in the house last Friday, when he bitterly assailed Secretary Hay and Lord Pauncefote and criticized the official preparations for the reception of Prince Henry, had a sequel in the house yesterday during the debate on the Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Gillett of Massachusetts declared in a half-hour's speech that the intemperance of Mr. Wheeler's language carried its own condemnation. The more disgraceful such utterances were the more notoriety they achieved, Mr. Gillett said. Such remarks addressed to a foreign country naturally made an impression abroad. People there knew nothing of the man who gave utterance to them. They only knew of his official position as a member of the American house of representatives. On that account, he said, the stigma of the speech attached to all of the members here.

At this point Mr. Robinson (Dem. Ind.) declared that the Democratic party should not be held responsible for his statements.

"I have made no such charge," observed Mr. Gillett, "but if gentlemen on the other side do not agree with Mr. Wheeler they should say so." This brought Mr. Thayer (Dem. Mass.)

Mr. Wheeler spoke only for himself. It it was understood that Mr. Gage would was unjust and unfair, he declared, to be elected. charge the Democracy with being in sympathy with his utterances. Then Mr. Talbert (Dem. S. C.) jumped up. "I want to say," he cried, "that I desire to take my share of the responsibility for that speech. I endorse every word he said and am sorry he did not go farther. I think those who believe as he does should say so and not be total loss is about $8000. infernal cowards about it."

In continuing Mr. Gillett said the good will of every nation was valuable to the United States and it was exceedingly unwise to fling a taunt in the face of a great people. Personally, he said, he himself was not in sympathy with the worship of royalty. But he believed that the visit of Prince Henry was a proper occasion for a suitable demonstration of good will. Our relations time, he believed, it was proper to send embassies to England and to Spain to attend their respective coronations, although he was not in full sympathy, generally speaking, with such displays.

Mr. Wheeler answered Mr. Gillett. His disclaimed any idea that he spoke for any one last Friday except himself, though he believed that many people believed as he did. He said he had for breach of promise against the Duke and innumerable letters and telegrams from different parts of the country conaining unstinted praise of his speech.

For himself, he said, he preferred to tell the truth, no matter how unpalat- of the greater number of points in the able it might be. Adverting to the state- gymnastic contest. ments made by Mr. Grosvenor and Mr. Gillett last Friday about the visit of the Prince of Wales during Buchanan's administration, Mr. Wheeler declared that those statements were absolutely incorrect. He said President Buchanan received the prince as a private in- gentle, easy to take and pleasant in effect use own pocket. He said that he had never | Price, 25 cents. Every box guaranteed. For objected to receiving a distinguished sale by all druggists.

What he objected to was to the spirit of trueulency and sycophancy which characterized this and the preceding administration, especially in the conduct of the state department. Referring to the communications he had received. he said that nine-tenths of them were from northern states and a great majority of them from Republicans. "Before the American people," he declared, "I say unhesitatingly that I have not a word to retract. I sincerely believe we are drifting to a position hostile to Republicanism. I do not believe to occupy a great position in the world it is necessary for us to sacrifice out traditional principles. I am the son of a foreigner and my love of the re-

been charged in the press with being an 'ignorant agriculturist.' I am proud of being the son of a farmer and the son of a foreigner, but I am ashamed of the boot-licking that characterizes the official class in the republic today." Mr. Wheeler then read a number of letters and telegrams and a cablegram from London commending his utterance. He said that he had heard that his speech of last Friday was to be circulated as a Republican campaign document. He declared that if the Republicans thought they could make campaign capital out of it he would circulate it in their districts at his own expense together with a copy of the speech the question on the hustings with any Republican who desired. In conclusion he said that he had meant no disrespect to Prince Henry or to the German people, nor did he see how what he said could be tortured into such an interpretation. The incident closed with a few remarks from Mr. Boreing (Ky.), who, on behalf of the people of his state, disavowed any sympathy with Mr. Wheeler's position.

QUINCY PLEASED

Fisrt Given at Wollaston.

First church chapel was crowded Tuesday evening by people eager to see the much talked of Old Testament tableaux, which were given in the Wollaston Unitarian church a few evenings ago, and made such a hit.

The tableaux lost nothing by repetition and many came from Wollaston subscription Price, $6.00 per year. to enjoy them again, while the Quincy people who went to Wollaston, were in Tuesday night's audience.

These tableaux were arranged by Rev. and Mrs. Frank Wright Pratt of Wollaston, and they have put much careful thought and time into the preparation. The success at Wollasto Braintree Observer and Reporter and Quincy is due to them and the able assistants. Mr. James F. Harlow presided at th > organ and played selections from Haydn's Creation, while the audience was gathering. Miss Loud and Mrs. Chandler W Smith of Wollaston played for the sin

ing and during the tableaux. Miss Hastings of Wollaston san Ruth's song, "Entreat me not to leav thee," and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Y Follett sang the duet from Elijah 'What have I to do with thee?'

The tableaux were all beautiful some more so than others. They we copies of old masters and looked like Emerson the original, except perhaps they Welch, were fresher. The colorings, arrangements of lights and color effects were most artistic. Each picture was shown twice, and each time was enthusiastically applauded. As there were over thirty tableaux it was after ten when the curtain was drawn on the last one.

Much of the success was due to the lelightful reading before each tableau by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, the ex positor, of the evening, and the .w charming little girls in costume wh

Will Be Acceptable Speed for Torpedo Boat Destroyers.

As Washington dispatch of Feb. 18 to the Herald says: In order that the 16 torpedo boat destroyers under construction may be transferred to the government Secretary Long has practically decided to accept them if they make a minimum speed trial of 26 knots an hour, to waive penalties accuring from delay and delivery, to make more speedy payments, and to ask Congress to reimburse the contractors for half the sum spent by them in excess of the contract price of the boats. This sum will amount to more than $1,000,

In the opinion of the four members of the naval board on construction, this action is absolutely necessary if the government is to acquire possession of the destroyers, not one of which will be an entirely satisfactory vessel. Rear Admiral Bradford is the only member of the board on construction who opposes the reduction of the requirements under which the boats shall be accepted.

Rear Admiral Bowles has consulted the contractors, and finds that some of them are in rather a bad financial situation, and that all of the boats had cost the contractors more than the government had agreed to pay for them.

It is said that the English have com to appreciate that it is impossible for destroyers to maintain the high speeds heretofore sought, and a contract just let provides for vessels which will make 26 knots on trial.

Dr. Todd in a very brief speech told how many friends, and neighbors admired her quiet and in may was heroid life, and that they had come to give expression of their esteem for her. Sometimes there was bravery in the battlefield, and in the fire brigade; but, nowhere was it more genuine or more clearly exemplified than in an honest, pleasant, and uncomplaining widow rearing her little family for God and the country, as she was doing. This they all appreciated and as a tangible token he in the name of her friends asmbled (and some absent) present her with a purse containing $27.00.

Mrs. McDonald replied, "thank you much" with her heart filling the words. A very enjoyable time was spent in song and story. Mrs. Donald, Miss Flora McLeod, Messrs. M. A. McLeod, F. Craig, and George Bowman being among those who sang.

Refreshments were served and when 'elders hour'' struck, the company broke up, pleased and profited by a happy social evening.

Keep a Fire Bucket.

There is a measure of added safety in our homes nowadays because we have running water on each floor. Any slight fire, if discovered in time, might be put out by a pail or so of water from the bathroom faucet. But our bathrooms have now become so daintily pretty that in hundreds of them one would search in vain for any portable vessel larger than a mug. The tiny blaze might become formidable while one sped to the first floor or even to the basement for a pail. Now, this is all wrong. One ought to have in every bathroom some pail which could at any instant be used as a fire bucket.

In a home proverbial for its immaculate neatness the bathroom contains a genuine leather fire bucket. What an excellent idea this is! While not a "thing of beauty," it must be a "joy been?" asked Dr. De Amezaga. Beforever," for not even the reckless maid can spoil the tub with a leather tion, "no attempts were made to rebucket. In case of fire what a boon it store them from the effects of the shocks would be! The most timid might plead | they had received in the electric chair." that the pail be not only at hand, but ready, filled with water, especially at night.-Philadelphia Ledger.

Women Should Learn to Laugh. Laughter is a good, healthy, muscle making, lung developing exercise, and it is as good for girls as boys. And humor can be cultivated in a girl's mind without any abatement of the dignity and modesty and charm of her womanhood: not the unpleasant and constant frivolity evidenced in "smart" speech or quickness of repartee, but the humor if those remedies are applied properly that looks at the world with a twinkle in the eye and sees its absurdities, its smallnesses and its fun. It should be part of every woman's mental equipment, for women are called upon to bear so many of life's small worries as well as its greater ones. The bringing up of children the care of servants and the many social duties that become a burden-all are made easy and possible to put up with by the woman with an unfailing sense of the bright side of life. It is a sense that lasts through life, through its many hour, or perhaps more, but in the end, I ills, its distilusions, its tribulations, even its tragedies. - Woman's Home Companion.

Boston Doctor Believes Restoration Is Possible

ELECTRICITY PARALYZES

Life Which Slowly Fades Away Can Be Restored If Proper Remedies Are Applied Within Two Hours-Theory Credited by Harvard Professor

Boston, Feb. 19 .- If the theory adthis city, a graduate of the University of Genoa, one of the leading medical colleges of Italy, and credited by John Trowbridge, S. D., Rumford professor and lecturer in the application of science to the useful arts, and director of the Jefferson physical laboratory at Harvard university, can be proved, electrocution, as an instantaneous method of painlessly disposing of murderers, is a failure. Electrocution, according to the doctor's theory, simply causes an entire paralysis of the victim's vital forces. Could Dr. De Amezaga secure the body of a person who has been legally killed in the electric chair at Charlestown state prison within two hours after the current has done its work, he is satisfied that he could restore life.

Had Warden Bridges permitted an experiment to be tried on the body of Luigi Storti, who was electrocuted in the Charlestown prison on Dec. 17, Dr. De Amezaga believes Storti would have been alive today. The doctor knew, hewever, that he could not obtain permission from the warden to make his experiment, and he said nothing of his

In France some years ago, Dr. De Amezaga says, a man received 10,000 volts of electricity and was restored to life. Storti and Umilian, the two victims of the chair in Massachusetts state prison, received a little more than 1700 volts each.

"If the Frenchman was restored, why could Storti and Umilian not have cause," he said, answering his own ques-

"Death, in my opinion, came to the men who were electrocuted in Charlestown prison undoubtedly from the effects of the electricity sent into them, but not immediately, their lives fading away, I believe, as they would have from the effects of many of the powerful drugs which will cause death if some means are not taken to counteract them. "And," concluded the doctor, "I am satisfied that it takes at least two hours for the electricity to accomplish its

Without the Spanish war, he said, Cuba might have been free, might have enjoyed, indeed, a larger measure of freedom and independence than she was enjoying now or would enjoy in the future. The only thing Cuba had been taught was how a postal official could embezzle a half million dollars. Mr. Wellington spoke of the sea battle off Santiago and said Admiral Schley was in command of the vessels of the American squadron, but the administration had been as unjust to him as it had been to the Cubans and Filipinos. Schley had not received the credit due him, but an effort had been made to besmirch him and detract from his character and bravery. The mention of Schley's name caused applause in the tax offices and a convent.

Mr. Stewart made a brief legal and constitutional argument in support of the authority of congress to hold the Philippines and to provide a proper government for their inhabitants.

COLORADO'S FIRST GOLD. flow the Discovery of the Precious

Metal Was Made. On May 8, 1859, as stated in Fossett's "Colorado" (1876), John Gregory, a prospector, climbed the hill into what is still known as Gregor, gulch (midway between the present Central City and Black Hawk), scraped away the grass and leaves, filled his pan with dirt and took it down to the stream.

Upon panning (washing) it down, there was about $4 worth of gold in it. This was followed by a stampede to the Gregory diggings, as they were afterward called. Gregory employed five men from the new arrivals and by means of a sluice took out $972 in one week. Other rich strikes were made almost daily, and large amounts of gold were taken out in a short time.

The Bates, Bobtail, Mammoth, Gunnell, Gurroughs, Illinois and hundreds of other lodes were found, and thousands of claims were taken up. As the summer of 1859 advanced the wealth of the gold veins and gulches of what is now Gilpin county became more and more apparent. Over 15,000 men were congregated in Gregory, Russell and tributary gulches, and many of them were accumulating wealth rapidly, but everything valuable was soon preempted, and large numbers were forced to hunt their fortunes elsewhere .- Engineering Magazine.

A Fastidious Dog.

"Yes," said the manager of the defunct "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, "it was our dog that broke up the show."

"The dog, eh? What was the matter with him?"

"Too fastidious. You never saw such a hound in your life. You know the play, of course. We tie a piece of meat in the folds of Eliza's frock, and that's what draws the dogs after her when she runs across the blocks of ice. Well, what do you thing this dog demanded?" "Can't imagine."

"Porterhouse beefsteak, sir, and with the tenderloin left in! Yes, sir. How's that? And you couldn't fool him. He wouldn't chase Eliza a foot unless the meat was a choice cut. No. sir. And, by gum, sir, our company had to live on liver and bacon so that blamed dog could have his steak. Yes, sir." "The demand was too much for you

APPEAL NOT SUSTAINED

President Finds That Schley Erred at Santiago

"LOOP" A GRAVE MISTAKE

Was a Captain's Fight, With Nothing Done to Warrant Any Unusual Reward For Either Sampson or Schley -Hope That Agitation Will Cease

Washington, Feb. 20.-President Roosevelt yesterday filed his nemoranda on the appeal of Admiral Schley from the finding of the court of inquiry. An abstract follows:

I have received the appeal of Admiral Schley and the answer thereto from the navy department. I have examined both, as well as the preceding appeal to the secretary of the navy. I have read all the testimony and statement of the counsel; have examined all the official reports of every kind in reference to the Santiago naval campaign, copies of the logbooks and signal books and the testimony before the court of claims, and have had before me the four surviving captains of the five ships, aside from those of the two admirals, which were actively engaged at Santiago.

It appears that the court of inquiry vas unanimous in its findings. No appeal is made to me from the verdict of the court. I am satisfied that on the whole the court did substantial justice. It should have specifically condemned the failure to enforce an efficient night blockade at Santiago while Admiral Schley was in command. On the other hand. I feel that there is a reasonable doubt whether he did not move his squadron with sufficient expedition from port to port.

The court is a unit in condemning Adniral Schley's action on the point where it seems to me he most gravely erred; his "retrograde movement" when he abandoned the blockade and his disobedience of orders and misstatements of facts thereto.

It should be remembered, however, that the majority of these actions which the court censures occurred five weeks or more before the fight itself; and it certainly seems that if Admiral Schley's actions were censurable he should not have been left as second in command under Admiral Sampson.

We can therefore dismiss the conrefers to anything except the battle. As regards this, the point raised in the appeal is between Admiral Sampson and Admiral Schley, as to which was in command, and as to which was entitled to credit, if either of them was really entitled to any unusual and pre-eminent credit for any special exhibition of genius, skill and courage. It is the point upon which Admiral Schley in his appeal lays most stress, and which he especially asks me to consider. I have, therefore, carefully investigated the matter also, and have informed myself upon it from the best sources of in-ormation at my command. The appeal of Admiral Schley to me is in effect an appeal from the action of President McKinley three years ago, when he sent in the recommendations for promotion for the various officers connected with the Santiago squadron, basing these recommendations upon the estimate of credit to which the officers were respectively entitled to. From the statements of the captains engaged, from the official reports and from testimony before the court of inquiry, the fight can be plotted with absolute certainty in its important outline, though there is conflict as to minor pect to thrive upon them, but the wise points. Admiral Sampson's ship, the New York, was seen at the outset of the fight from all of the other ships except strength, and are the most economical the Brooklyn. Four of these five ship captains have testified that they regarded him as present and in command. In short, the question as to which of the two men, Admiral Sampson or Admiral Schley, was in command, is of merely nominal character. Technically, Sampson commanded the fleet, and Schley, as usual, the western division. The important fact is that after the battle was joined not a helm was shifted, not a gun was fired, not a pound of steam was put on in the engine room aboard any ship actively engaged, in obedience to the order of either Sampson or Schley, save on their own two vessels. It was a captain's fight so far as the fight was concerned; neither one or the other in fact exercised any command. Sampson was hardly more than technically in the fight. His real claim for credit rests upon his work as commander-in-chief; upon the excellence of the blockade; upon the preparedness of the squadron; upon the arrangement of the ships; and the standing orders in accordance with which they instantly moved to the attack of the Spaniards when the latter appeared. For all these things the credit is his.

narred the Brooklyn's otherwise excellent record, being in fact the one grave mistake made by any American ship that day. Under such circumstances it seems to me that the recommendations of President McKinley were eminently proper, and that so far as Admirals Sampson and Schley were concerned it would have been unjust for him to have made ther recommendations. Personally. I feel that it would have been well to have given Captain Clark of the Oregon the same advancement that was given Wainwright, but waiving this, it is evident that Wainwright was entitled to receive more than any of the other commanders; and that it was just to Admiral Sampson that he should receive greater advance in numbers than Admiral Schley-there was nothing done in the battle that warranted any unisual reward for either. Both Admiral Sampson and Admiral Schley are now on the retired list. In oncluding their report, the members of the court of inquiry unite in recommend ing that no further action be had in the matter. With this recommendation I most heartily concur. There is no exuse whatever from either side for any further agitation of this unhappy conroversy. To keep it alive would merely do damage to the navy and to the

STILL A CAPTIVE

But the Release of Missionary Stone Is Looked For "Momentarily"

Constantinople, Feb. 20.—The reports of the release of Miss Stone are absolutely without foundation, although her liberation is expected momentarily.

London, Feb. 20 .- A dispatch to The Daily Graphic from Seres, European Turkey, dated Feb. 18, says that W. W. Peet, M. Garguilo and Dr. House, who are still at Seres, are growing very anxious at the delay in the release of the captive missionaries, which was expected a week ago. The Turkish government declines responsibility in the matter, as the transaction with the brigands was made without its knowledge.

A Pugnacious Nova Scotian Ottawa, Feb. 20.-There was an exiting debate in the house yesterday on he Alaska boundary question. It was brought up by Henri Bourassa, who moved for all papers and correspondence onnected with the Clayton-Bulwer reaty and the Alaska boundary. The remier said that the correspondence ould not be brought down while negotiations were going on. Mr. Gourlay of Pictou, N. S., accused Great Britain of always sacrificing Canada in its negotiations with the United States. "If it is necessary," he said, "to fight the Yankees, we will fight within 24 hours and after six months we will capture their capital and annex their country to Canada." Mr. Bourassa finally withdrew his motion.

Federation Seeking Peace

New York, Feb. 20 .- The executive council of the American Federation of Labor met yesterday in this city to discuss local trade affairs. A great deal of lissatisfaction exists and an attempt was made to induce the discontented factions to come to terms with the federation. Afterfully considering the matter Chairman Gompers was instructed to appoint a sub-committee to report on ways and means for the settling of disputes.

Distinguished Guests at Banquet Washington, Feb. 20.-The annual banquet of the department of the Potomac commandery, G. A. R., was given at the New Willard hotel last night. President Roosevelt, Secretary Wilson and Commander-inChief Torrance of the Grand Army were among the guests. The president reached the banquet hall shortly before 10 o'clock and was given a hearty reception. Later in the evening he made an address. The principal ddress of the evening was made by General Torrance.

Ocean Flyers Racing London, Feb. 20.-The Daily Mail asserts that the Cunard Line steamer Campania and the American liner St. Louis are racing the North German Lloyd Kron Prinz Wilhelm in an international contest to New York. To equal their best previous westward records the Campania should arrive at Sandy Hook lightship at 11:16 p. m., on Feb. 21. The St. Louis should arrive there at 2:20 a.m. of Feb. 22, while the Kron Prinz Wilhelm should reach the lightship at 7:45 a. m., also on Feb. 22.

Foss Owns Challenge Trophy New York, Feb. 20.-Wilson P. successfully defended his title of nmateur billiard champion of America in his match last night with Charles S. Norris. Foss now owns the challenge trophy, having won it three years in succession.

WHACK AT DEMOCRATS

Boutell Digs Up History In sentatives." Reply to Wheeler

ic Presidents Bowed Before Royalty

-Good-Natured and Witty Criticism

Washington, Feb. 20.-Again yesterday the general debate on the Indian ap- that they would strike unless their depropriation bill was devoted almost entirely to extraneous topics. As on Tuesday, the issue raised by Mr. Wheeler a few days ago came in for considerable attention and was the feature of the session. Mr. Bromwell. an Ohio Republican, Mr. Kern, an Illinois Democrat, and Mr. Fleming, a Georgia Democrat, added their views to the subject, but it was Mr. Boutell, an Illinois Republican, who entertained the house most.

Mr. Boutell proceeded, with delicate humor, to trace the origin of what Mr. Wheeler called "truculent sycophancy." First he read a letter written by Thomas Jefferson in 1771, in which he authorized the purchase of a coat of arms for himself, and from another written four years later in which he said he would rather be dependent on Great Britain "than any other country or than none." Then he passed down to the days of Martin Van Buren and told of the visit of his son John to the court of St. James, which earned for him the sobriquet of "Prince John," by which he was known afterward. Mr. Boutell said he felt sure that when the daughter of the president returned from the coronation of Edward VII she would not be known as "Princess Alice." Mr. Boutell dilated upon the coronation of the Czar of Russia in 1896 and of the appearance there of the Democratic American ambassador, Mr. Breckenridge, in full court costume, knee breeches and all. Mr. Boutell here referred to the fact that Mr. Breckenridge was a native of Lexington, Ky. This was greeted with laughter.

Mr. Boutell produced the cablegrams and correspondence which passed between Mr. Breckenridge and the state department relative to the costume the ambassador should wear at the corona-

Mr. Sims (Tenn.) interrupted him to ask where this correspondence had been "They are the originals from the state department," replied Mr. Boutell. "Could not the diligence of the state department be better employed in helping the suffering Boers than in unearthing this correspondence?" inquired Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, amid Democratic applause. "I leave that to the experts on 'trucu lent sycophancy," replied Mr. Boutell, who then described the visit of the Queen of Hawaii to Washington and the honor shown her by President Cleveland. He read a graphic account of the dinner given at the White House, where the queen occupied the seat of honor on the right of the president. "Thus we see," he added, when he had finished the reading, "we have traced the origin of 'truculent sycophaney' from the day when the first Demperatic president purchased a bogus coat of arms to the entertainment of a queen at the White House by the last Democratic president." (Republican ap-

details of his visit to Kentucky, where he was received "officially" and with great state. With extraordinary good temper he concluded his remarks by expressing the hope that what had oc- druggists.

Maine's Spoon Found In Sweden. A curious find has just been made at Samrishamn, in Sweden, says the London Daily Mail. At low water a sailor discovered among the stones on the beach of Massakasbay there a teaspoon of brass. After cleaning it he found engraved on the inside the picture of a man-of-war, with the words "Maine" and "6,600 tons," The spoon would therefore appear to have belonged to the ill fated Maine, sunk in Havana harbor in the spring of 1898, and it needed four years for the ocean currents to wash this tiny object ashore on the coast of southern Swe-

SEVERAL PLANS PROPOSED

to Find Favor With Ways and Means Philippines as a Sugar Rival

Washington, Feb. 20 .- "The Republicans are up against the bardest proposition I ever knew them to have to face," said Representative McClellan. a Democratic member of the ways and means committee, in speaking of the conferences which his Republican associates begean yesterday afternoon tariff problem

Each man has a plan of his own. The latest to be suggested is by Metcalf of California, a member of the committee, and a devoted adherent of the beet interests. He says that in the extraction of beet sugar a certain amount of alcohol can be made. If the governnent would remit the internal revenue tax on such alcohol as is produced in this way, or greatly lower it, as an offset to the beet growers for what they would lose through Cuban competition ae should be willing to agree to a reasonable cut in favor of the island.

This plan would involve such comolications, however, that there is no probability of its finding favor in the committee. Neither is the plan of Russell of Connecticut, for a gradual reduction of the concession, beginning at the 25 or 30 percent and dropping by 5 percent a year, until the concession is wholly abolished, finding much favor. It would merely postpone the real setlement of the Cuban question and while in operation would afford actual relief so slight as to be almost meaningless.

beet sugar people in their inxiety over Cuban concessions have seemingly neglected the importance of the Philippines as a sugar rival. Mr. King of San Francisco, a sugar maker long experience, particularly in Hawaii, is quoted as saying that the island of Mindanao alone could raise profitably all the sugar which the United States now imports, and that a refinery for the handling the growth of that is being established and will be soon in operation in San Francisco.

Because the industry there is not on its feet to the same extent as in Cuba arrest, a lot of furniture was seized, the beet growers have been comparatively indifferent to the proposed cut of ers were arraigned in court yesterday 25 percent on Philippine imports. This and were fined $15 each, the aggregate concession Senator Foraker and others amount of the fines being $1695. are trying to have raised still higher. But if the senate should accept 50 percent or some other compromise rate, it is predicted that the house, at the instance of the awakened beet sugar interests, will in conference try to hold the concession down to the 25 percent which the senate committee bill, to be voted on next Monday, now carries.

LABOR CONTROVERSIES How National Civic Federation Proposes to Use Good Offices New York, Feb. 20 .- The first meeting of the executive committee of 36, appointed through the National Civic Federation to arbitrate labor troubles, was held here yesterday, with Senator Hanna in the chair. The object of the gathering was to receive a report on the working plan and means by which strikes, lockouts and other forms of disputes between capitalists and the laboring class may be settled.

This plan was presented by a subcommittee in the form of a set of bylaws, which provide that the chairman of the executive committee of the federation shall appoint a committee on conciliation to consist of nine members, three of whom shall be selected from each group of the executive committee, representing capital, labor and the general public, whose duty it shall be, upon information of threatened strike or lockout of more than local magnitude, to use its good offices in restoring harnonious relations, reporting its action to the executive committee. Should the efforts of the conciliation committee prove ineffective, and should bothparties to the dispute desire the service of the executive committee, it is directed that they may be invited to select two employers and two wage earners from the executive committee to serve as an arbitration board. Should the four find it necessary to appoint an umpire to finally decide the disputs they may select a fifth member from the division representing the public.

Should a controversy seem of such magnitude as to justify such action, the officers of the executive committee shall be authorized to call a meeting of the entire executive committee to consider the situation, and take such action as may, in its judgment, be required. The executive committee may appoint auxiliary committees to deal with local disturbances, the rules governing the same to be in harmony with the general purpose of the industrial department.

Campbell-Bannerman's Stand

London, Feb. 20.-If any question remained as to the unlikelihood of a working agreement between Lord Rosebery and the Liberal party machine, it was answered in the negative last night in an address delivered by Mr. Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the house of commons, at Leicester. After strictures on the government in failing to conclude an honorable truce with the Boers, he said flatly that he declined to wipe his slate of the liberal principles and strongly reaffirmed his adhesion to of Arkansas, the chairman of the Demoratic national committee, who has ome here for a conference with Mr. Bryan, is quoted as saying that he believes the Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1904 will come from the east. The next candidate, he says, will doubtless be some man who as a candidate for governor will sweep his state between now and 1904, and raise himself as did Cleveland in 1882.

No Light on Mystery

New York, Feb. 2.- The preliminary xamination of Florence Burns, who is charged with the murder of Walter S. Brooks on Friday last, was postponed again yesterday. Two details of detectives and several of the legal assistants of District Attorney Jerome are striving to clear mystery from the cirumstances under which Brooks died. but apparently have developed no additional evidence.

Rebels Yield In Batangas Manila, Feb. 20.-What is believed to have been the largest existing band of insurgents in Batangas province surrendered to Lieutenant Rhodes of the Sixth cavalry, at Banan, Major Amaranto, 2 captains, 6 lieutenants and 98 Filipino soldiers gave themselves up. Rhodes had been hunting the insurgents from place to place for three weeks. They were virtually starved into surrender.

"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried many medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure."

It is undoubtedly true that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery holds the record for the perfect and permanent cure of indigestion and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a palliative. It cures the cause of disease and builds up the body with solid healthy flesh, not flabby fat.

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets' have done for me," writes Mrs. T. M. Palmer, of Peede, Kaufman Co., Texas. "Two years ago I was taken with stomach and bowel trouble. Everything I ate would put me in distress. I lived two weeks on milk and even that gave me pain. I felt as though I would starve to death. Three doctors attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarrh of the stomach and bowels. They attended me (one at a time) for one year. I stopped taking their medicine and tried other patent medicine; got no better, and I grew so weak and nervous my heart would flutter. I could not do any kind of work. Now I can do my house work very well; am gaining in flesh and strength, and can eat anything I want."

Years In Washington.

The friends of Alexander R. Shepherd, more familiarly known in the annals of Washington as "Boss Shepherd," are delighted that he will make his home there for the rest of his days, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Governor Shepherd began life as a plumber in Washington in partnership with the late John W. Thompson, and both amassed fortunes at the business. Shepherd, developing political ability, got into the control of the District government and undertook the business of revamping Washington from the old provincial, semicolonia town that it was into a faint copy of the modern Paris. His methods were as direct and unsparing of those who got in the way of them as those of Louis Napoleon. He had only two or three years at it and in that time did his work so thoroughly well that it has gone on continuously since. Asphalt pavements, tree planting, strict building regulations, park improvements and many other schemes for the development of the city have worked a tre mendous change in the Washington known to millions who saw it before. during and after the civil war. Governor Shepherd's administration

dreds of men died before they could pay off the heavy load of taxes which his improvements placed on them, and there are hundreds more living in Washington today under the burden which he put on them. As a consequence of the feeling toward him Mr. Shepherd exiled himself in Mexico.

When he returned to Washington from Mexico ten years ago for a brief visit, his friends organized a pageant a mile or more long as a tribute to his personal work and a fitting expression of their regard for him. Mr. Shepherd has been in Mexico over twenty years, developing large silver mines at Batopilas. The mines of late, it is said, have become profitable, and Governor Shepherd will be able to spend his last years comfortably among his old friends. He has retained his residence, known as Bleak House, five miles north of Washington, a beautiful country place bordering on Rock Creek park, and there he will make his home.

Model Chicago Flat In Which Girls Will Learn to Keep House.

a model flat has been established by the Jewish Training school, and sev enty-two girls, most of them between the years of twelve and fourteen, will undertake a course in housekeeping. This novel enterprise has been established under the patronage of Mrs. Levy Mayer, who furnishes the means necessary to carry it on, says the New York Times. Mrs. Mayer has long appreciated the necessity for a better knowledge of the housekeeping arts among the poor families of the ghetto, and this project is the realization of a cherished dream. The model flat consists of four rooms on the top floor of Twelfth street, at the intersection of The day before Prince Henry sailed for the United States this dispatch was sent from Kiel: Prince and Princess good deal of fun over them. "But they knew," said a member of the household, "that every line they saw was kindly meant." In a bunch of newspaper elippings that came to the prince the other morning from Berlin was one which described the "Hohenzollern punch," invented by a Broadway bartender in New York. On the margin of the clipping the emperor had written, "Schrecklicher Katzenjammer am Morgen!" ("What a headache in the morn-

When the Woods Turn Green Again. There's a warm, warm wind comes from the south

With a promise and a song-A song that wells from a rose lipped mouth In cadence full and strong. It whispers, whispers through the day
To the hearts of longing men
That the time is coming on the way
When the woods turn green again.

When the woods turn green in the sunshine's kiss And dream o'er the lazy pool, Where the dappled shadows, hit and miss, Sway slowly, dark and cool And the long, long dawnings bring the tune Of the robin, thrush and wren Till they lullaby to the day held moon, When the woods turn green again. When the woods turn green, and the sky's

Takes a deeper, truer shade, And the blood red popples dot the view In a pattern God has made, Then the song the south wind sings so

Will live on the hill and glen, And its mellow notes into being grow When the woods turn green again.

JONES TELLS HIS STORY

Victim Was Not Failing Fast Enough to Suit Lawyer Patrick, So Mercury Was Resorted To-Object Finally Accomplished With Chloroform

New York, Feb. 21.-The dramatic point in the trial of Albert T. Patrick for the murder of the Texas millionaire, William Marsh Rice, was reached yesterday afternoon when Charles F. Jones, the valet, told the details surrounding the death of Mr. Rice.

"Some time in August," Jones said, Patrick asked me if I did not think Rice was living too long for our own welfare. He thought it would be a good thing if we could put him out of the way. He said if I'd tell him some night when Mr. Rice was sleeping soundly he'd come up and do it if I would not. Something was said about getting chloroform and Patrick said it was very hard to get; that one had to have all sorts of certificates before the druggists would sell it. I told Patrick he could leave that to me. I sent my brother $5 and he sent me chloroform in a four ounce bottle."

Jones wrote to his brother again, he said, this time at Patrick's suggestion, and got two ounces more of chloroform "Every time I saw Patrick," continued the witness, "he asked me if Rice was failing and seemed very much disappointed when I told him Rice was gui 1ing strength." Jones said he gave Rice mercurial pills to hasten the end, but they did not produce the desired re-

"On the wednesday or Thursday before his death," the witness went on, "he took another mercurial pill. The next day he was very sick and on Saturday he was delirious. Dr. Curry visited him and gave him some medicine.

I told Patrick over the telephone sll him at a restaurant, where we had had arrived from the oil mill. Patrick told me to get back to the house and if I wanted him later to call him up at the Y. M. C. A. I returned to the house. Dr. Curry was there and Mr. Rice was still asleep. Dr. Curry told me that Mr. Rice was very sick, but that he would pull through with good care. The next day, Sunday, Dr. Curry said Mr. Rice was getting along well, but must be careful as to his food. Patrick told me to let him know what Dr. Curry said and I did so. Patrick said he 'and some oxalic acid and that he would get it for me to give Rice. He took me to his room, where he took two bottles from his pocket and told me to give the acid to Rice in 20 parts of water. He told me to be careful of the mixture as it would corrode his throat, but in that proportion it would be tasteless and would paralyze his heart. I took it to Rice's room and made a mixture. Rice tasted the mixture, but did not like it. That was late in the afternoon of Sunday, the day Mr. Rice died. He fell once when he tried to leave his chair. picked him up and laid him on his bed and he went to sleep. "I wrote a telegram and went to send it. I telephoned Patrick and he met me at the telegraph office. Patrick said it was time to give Rice the chloroform. Now that the draft had arrived from Texas and Captain Baker was coming we should lose all we had gained if Rice was not put away at once. I objected that I had never agreed to do anything of that sort, but Patrick insisted and I yielded. I made a cone of a towel saturated with chloroform and went into Rice's room. He was still sleeping. I put the cone over his face and ran out of the room.

"There was a violent ring at the door bell just then and I looked out and saw someone. I think it was a woman, but I was too excited to be sure. I went back to Rice's room. He was lying just as I had left him. I took the towel off his face and burned it. Then I opened all the windows and telephoned to Pat-

Default Entered Against the Boston Attorney and Financier

Boston, Feb. 21 .- The initial litigation against Randolph C. Surbridge, the attorney whose flight from the city has produced chaos among creditors and clients, throws a sidelight on the means employed to further his schemes. In the suits brought to the attention of the court yesterday plaintiffs seek to get money which they claim Surbridge owes them.

In the equity session of the superior court counsel for the plaintiffs appeared before Judge Braley and moved that a default be entered against the granted the motion and the cases go to judgment by default.

Cora E. Clay alleges that Surbridge gave her four checks, each for $100, payable on the United States Trust company, and that when she presented them she ascertained that there were no funds in that institution standing in the name of R. C. Surbridge. She sues to recover on the checks.

Arthur L. Dean delivered to Surbridge a mortgage on certain real estate to the amount of $3500, with the mortgage note, for the purpose of having the latter sell the same and return the proceeds less the charges for services, which had been agreed upon as $50. The plaintiff alleges that Surbridge did not make the sale, but instead transferred the mortgage to another party, to secure a loan which he obtained for his own personal

Frequent demands were made by the plaintiff upon the defendant for the money, but invariably he would receive promise of payment "in a short time." Subsequent payments were made by Surbridge to the plaintiff, but there is a balance of $2100 due to the plaintiff, which he seeks to collect by this suit.

Two Children Burned to Death stroyed the Rose Petit orphanage in this city. A general alarm was sounded at 1:40 and the firemen arrived in time to rescue, with the aid of Mrs. Petit, eight children from the building. Mrs. Petit was burned about the face and hands during her effort to save the little ones. The fire started from the furnace, and catching in an air shaft, went to the second floor of the building where the children were asleep. The property loss is heavy.

MILTON.

It has been discovered that the nominations made to the Citizens' caucus last Monday evening were illegal, and as it is too late to hold another caucus the candidates for the several town offices are busy circulating nomination papers. Not only the successful ones at the caucus are circulating papers but a score of others as well for there are many who think they are called to transact the town's business. The result will be that the official ballot will have more names than usual.

The caucus was held under the provisions of the caucus act, but as the night was stormy it was but slimly attended. Those who did attend were anxious to get home early, so that when someone moved that the candidates be nominated by acclamation from the floor, the motion was carried and took but a few minutes to transact the business. The next day it was discovered that under the caucus act the nominations must be by ballot and that the polls shall remain open half an

CHINESE HATS.

Queer Head Coverings That Are Worn In the Celestial Empire. In China the retainers and guards wear special hats to indicate their office. The ensigns wear a wire structure resembling a sugar loaf and a rat-rap. It is a foot high and of no earthy protection against sun or rain. The hair coolies use a hat something like their employers', but flatter, cheaper and without button or feather. The poatmen have a storm hat made of ratan and bamboo, which is never less han a yard in diameter. A servant who is scribe and valet combined is marked by something that ooks like a two storied or three storied cook's cap of four sides. The prevailing color of the structure is vernilion. A mourner wears a turban nade by fastening a long cloth of grayish yellow hue around the head and allowing the ends to fall down behind to the small of the back. Another style covers the head, temple, ears and back of the neck and is a caricature upon the steel morions of the middle ages, descendant of those tall hats upon the heads of the captives that are drawn upon the papyri and tombs of the pharaohs. Still another funny shape is one which looks as if it were the remnant of a felt hat from which the brim had been irregularly

COMMISSION IS SCORED

TRUE SITUATION UNKNOWN

In the Opinion of Senator Patterson, Who Places Little Reliance on Statements of Governor Taft-Question of Sectarianism Brought Forward

Washington, Feb. 21 .-- With the exception of a few minutes given to routine business, the senate yesterday devoted its entire session to the Philippine question. Mr. Patterson, one of the minority members of the Philippine committee, delivered his first extended speech in the senate and was given a most attentive and careful hearing. He discussed principally the sedition laws enacted by the Philippine commission, vigorously attacking the authority of the commission to enact and enforce such laws. He maintained that congress alone had the power to put in force enactments of that character.

He declared that the Philippine commission had outraged every United States statute it had attempted to follow and had made its own enactments tyrannical because there had been evidently a deliberate purpose to make offenses where none had been defined by the United States statutes. He denounced the "devilish malagnity" the Philippine commission displayed when It attempted to copy the United States statutes and incorporated other and extraneous matters.

Mr. Patterson declared that only four of the 15 acts of the Philippine commission relating to conspiracy against the United States had any-resemblance to the statutes of the United States. The remainder, he held, were taken bodily from the statutes of Spain as enacted by the Spanish cortes. He declared, after analysing the enactments, that no greater outrage could be inflicted upon a people than the enforcement of the sedition laws enacted by the Philippine commission. Acts more tyrannical, more unconstitutional, and more inimical to the interests of the people, he asserted, never were enacted, and they ought to be repealed immediately by

He compared information furnished by the executive departments of the government with some of the statements of Governor Taft in his testimony before the Philippine commission with respect to the capabilities of the Philippine people, and declared, with some heat, his belief that Governor Taft misrepresented the true situation in the islands for motives unknown.

He asserted that if the six million of Christians in the Philippines were Protestant Christians the cruelties practiced on them by the American authorities would have to stop, and no member of congress would be able to withstand the wrath of the Methodists Baptists and Presbyterians of this coun-

Mr. McCumber urged that congress should not bind the future now by a declaration of a definite policy regarding the Philippines, and it was desirable that all possible information should be in hand before a permanent policy was determined upon.

The house spent the day working on amendments were adopted, but none of much importance. An amendment to strike out the appropriation for the Carlisle school became the text for a testing against working Saturday nights general onslaught on the practice of educating Indians in castern schools. The amendment was defeated. Just before the close of the session, Mr. Fitzgerald | hold the state convention in Bangor on (N. CLOSE OF SCHLEY CASE May Be Marked by Retirement of

Secretary Long From Office Washington, Feb. 21 .- Now that the Schley matter has been settled officially it is understood that Secretary Long feels he is at liberty to carry out the project cherished by him in the last year of President McKinley's administration to retire to private life. However, this is not expected to ensue at once, for there is no certain knowledge of what may follow in congress, notwithstanding a strong belief by the administration that the Schley case is settled beyond revival.

Secretry Long has received the following personal note from the White House, dated Feb. 19 and signed by Secretary Cortelyou, announcing the president's action in the case of Admiral Schley: "The president requests me to state that, after a full and most careful consideration of the appeal of Admiral Schley and of the answer submitted thereto by the navy department through you, he has made the enclosed memorandum on the case, which he directs shall be filed therewith, and the case treated as closed."

ADMINISTRATION'S VIEWS Regarding Cuban Reciprocity Put

Forth In Definite Proposition Washington, Feb. 21 .- The Republican members of the ways and means committee were in private conference for three house yesterday on the subject of Cuban reciprocity, and although the conference went over without action until today the members found themselves for the first time in possession of a proposition commanding considerable strength and understood to represent the attitude of the administration. This was brought forward by Representative Long of Kansas, and authorized the president, when Cuba was prepared to grant 40 percent reduction in duties on United States exports to the island, to grant to Cuba a similar reduction of 40 percent on all the products of the island coming to the United States.

Various suggestions were put forward and discussed, but none took definite form beyond that of Mr. Long. It is understood that the issue is likely to be made on this proposition, since it is believed to represent the concessions the administration believes should be granted on each side.

Says $122,000 Was Stolen

Havana, Feb. 21.—The fiscal began summing up for the prosecution yesterday in the case of the Cuban postal frauds. He withdrew the charges again Estes G. Rathbone of issuing duplicate warrants and charged the issuing of these warrants to Reeves and Neely. He maintained the charges of conspiracy and extravagance against Rathbone. He declared that there was no doubt that $122,000 had been stolen. He said that Rathbone must have known of these irregularities or stealings and showed that intimacy existed between Neely, Reeves and Rathbone.

Taft Pleads For Barracks

Washington, Feb. 21.-Governor Taft continued to discuss the climatic conditions in the Philippines yesterday before the senate Philippine commission. Reverting to what he had said concerning the health of the American troops in the Philippines, Governor Taft said that much of the sickness which does exist is due to exposure, and he incidentally made an appeal for liberal appropriations for the construction of barracks and for the protection of officers and men.

sway to warm sunshine and blue skies. The genius of Marconi had definitely located the belated liner and made certain the hour that she would reach Sandy Hook.

It was after 9 o'clock before the proaching liner. Rear Admiral Evans, honorary aide to the prince, left the naval tug Nina. With him were Captain Converse, his chief of staff, Flag Lieutenant Chapin, Ensign Evans, nide, and Captain Von Rebeur-Paschwitz, naval attache at the Washington embassy of the German government. They were all in full do as uniform. The Nina met the Kronprinz, and, ging around on the starboard side of the liner, steamed up the bay. Prince Henry, surrounded by his naval and military staff, stood on the bridge of the liner. As the two vessels with a flotilla of tugs and official craft moved in past Fort Wadsworth the first of the salutes of 21 guns was fired. alute. When that ceremony was over the Kronprinz was stopped and the Nina hauled around to her port side boarded her. The passengers were gathered on the main deck.

Admiral Evans was escorted forward at once and in the quarters of Captain Richer, master of the Kronprinz, he and the prince met. The prince came forward and shook the hand of the naval officer. "I am very glad to see you, sir," said Admiral Evans. "Everybody in the United States is waiting to welcome you. It is my pleasure, sir, to formally greet you in their behalf."

"I thank you, sir, and through you the people of your country," responded the prince. "I am very glad to be here and on this splendid day. The emperor directed me to convey his compliments to you, admiral, and I do so with great pleasure."

Admiral Evans presented the members of his staff and the prince gave each a handshake and a cordial word. The newspaper correspondents who are to accompany the prince on his tour through the country also were introduced by the admiral. After a brief halt the liner moved ahead and at 10:15 was abreast of the special squadron off Tompkinsville The German standard was run to the foretop of the Kronprinz and its appearance gave a signal to the Amer Ican fleet to salute. The San Francisco, Cincinnati, Olympia and Illinois lay in perfect alignment in the order named and made an attractive picture with their crews manning sides, turrets and tops. They raised the German naval standard and then opened blank fire. The prince stood at attention on the bridge and back of him were Admiral Evans and his staff and the numerous suite of the German visitor. As the Kronprinz cleared Tompkins ville the fleet of small craft around her ucreased and they kept their whistles counding. A crowded ferryboat joined the others and in response to the cheers of her passengers the prince went to the end of the bridge and touched his 15C. cap in salute. There was a rush to the side of the ferryboat that carried her over on a list that looked dangerous.

The prince boarded the tug Nina at 3:30 to repay his calls. He was accompanied by one aide and Admiral Evans and Ensigns Evans and Chapin. He visited the navy yard first, called on Admiral Barker, and then Governor's Island, where he called on General Brooke. From Governor's island the tug proceeded to the battleship Illinois, where he called on Admiral Evans and inpected the ship. He was received by the squadron with the honors due his rank. From the Illinois the prince returned to the pier at Thrity-fourth street and went on board the Hohenzollern for dinner.

Prince Henry last night attended a that organization. The telegram gives no details of the release. As Strumitza is near the Salonika-Uskub railroad Miss Stone will proceed to Salonika without delay.

London, Feb. 24.-Wiring from Constantinople, the correspondent of 'The Daily Chronicle says he understands Prince Henry disembarked at 12:15 | that, owing to the necessity of protecting the innocent persons who assisted them, the American delegates will never divulge where and how the ransom money for the release of Miss Stone was paid. The correspondent learns, however, that the ruse of filling the money bags with lead after the ransom had been paid, with a view of making it appear that the mission to pay the ransom had failed, was completely successful. It is practically certain that the ransom money goes to the "Macedonian committee."

Miss Stone, continues the correspondent, is completely innocent of any knowledge of the plot to kidnap her, but strong suspicions are entertained about some Bulgarians who accompanied her party, or remained behinds The London press this morning ex-

Boers Will Never Be Conquered

Washington, Feb. 24 .- An enthusiastic meeting of Boer sympathizers was held yesterday at the Lafayette Square theatre, and resolutions were adopted calling on President Roosevelt and congress to use all their power to prevent the further exportation of horses and mules to the English in South Africa. In addition to this, a collection was taken up for the benefit of the Boer widows and orphans. Commandant Krige, formerly with the Boer army, delivered an address. The Boeis will never be conquered, he said, while the last man stands.

FIGHT IN THE SENATE

Used Their Fists

Drew Blood From His Antagonistbut Are In Contempt of Senate

Washington, Feb. 24.-One of the wildest and most exciting scenes in the history of the senate occurred Saturday, when Senators Tillman and Mc-Laurin, both of South Carolina, engaged in a flerce fight.

They struck and struggled until actuthe battle the mark of Tillman's fist | fire broke out. was plainly visible over one of his

The senators were scandalized, and for long after the encounter a hush of horror hung over the assembly. The body went into executive session, and the tension was only relieved when the two belligerent senators humbly yielded to the demand to make an apology to the senate.

Senator Tillman brought on the row by a speech which was unusually bitter and sensational, even for him, al though he made no personal attacks except that upon his colleague, and that was really drawn by the cross-questioning of Senator Spooner, after Till- Waverly, disappeared from her home man had said that the Republicans got | yesterday during the temporary ab the Democratic votes that ratified the Spanish peace treaty by the use of im- | She was barefooted and very lightly roper influences, "Name the influences and the men who were subjected it is feared that she committed suicide to them," demanded Senator Spooner, by drowning. and then pressed his demand until Tillman said: "The patronage of one state was given to a Democrat who voted for the treaty."

"Name the state," said Senator Spooner, impressively, and Senator Tillman shouted, "the state of South Carolina," with every sign of anger. "Go fight it out with your colleague then," said Senator Spooner. "I am ready," yelled Senator Tillman. "So is he," said Senator Spooner. "He hasn't shown it," reiterated Senator Tillman, scornfully, and then be went on with his speech. After that Senator McLaurin came in, and, having been told what had been said, got the stenographic report of it, and then, as soon as Tilman finished, eplied to him and the fight followed.

The status of Senators Tillman and McLaurin is that they are still in conempt of the senate and only by a vote the senate can either be recognized. either to speak or to vote on any question whatever. The senate is operating under a clause of the constitution thirds expel a member. The senate has adopted a resolution declaring both Messrs, Tiliman and Mc Laurin in contempt. By a vote each was allowed to make a statement and each apologized for his actions. But lars Saturday night, the safe blow the senate took no further action and the resolution referring the matter to in stamps taken. As the section house the committee on privileges and elec- at this station was broken open and a tions is still in operation. Until the amittee shall be discharged or the senate shall purge the South Carolina senators of the contempt, they 1.us remain silent in the senate. This is the judgment of all senators who have considered the question and the presiding officer, it is said, will refuse to recognize their right to participate in the proceedings until the order of con-empt shall have been vacafed. It is understood the conferences among senators have shown the exis tence of a considerable sentiment that the apologies made by the South Caroina senators are not deemed sufficient and that the committee will ro to be submitted to it in writing, with the assurance that such apologies will be made to the senate before a report will be made to the effect that the sena tors have sufficiently 'purged them selves of the contempt of which the senate has adjudged them guilty.

The whole matter is wihout prece dent, and the senate is now to make a precedent in the matter of punishmen and in requiring sufficient apology. The conferences vesterday developed the fact that the senators intend to take such action as will prevent, if possible similar episodes in the future.

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.] When Binks had finished his apprenticeship in the machine shop, he was

"Boy, you have been industrious, respectful and ambitious, and I am free to say that we never had one like you in the shop before. You can take that bench over there and go to work at the highest wages paid in the shop."

But Binks had other plans. He had saved a few hundred dollars, and he opened a little shop of his own.

Binks had not been in his new shop a week when a policeman made an arrest in front of his door and displayed gong until the end it was Lammer and unnecessary brutality. Binks protested. He even gestured as he protested. He loudly declared it a shame to bang a man about in that fashion. In response he was warned to mind his own business and threatened with arrest, and later on in the day the officer called at the shop to say: "Now, young un, you take a pointer.

If you want to keep out of trouble keep your mouth shut. If we hear any more of your talk, we'll lay for you." Binks took the pointer, but he didn't keep to it. A week later and a block away he saw a drunken woman hauled about and flung into the patrol wagon in such a way that both sympathy and anger were aroused, and he protested. A crowd backed him up, and several newspapers backed the crowd, and the police commissioners reluctantly repr manded the patrolman. It was a vic tory for Binks, but he did not dream of what it was to cost him. In a day or two word went out that the captain of the precinct was down on Binks. He would be, of course. When the brutality of a patrolman is hooted by a crowd, denounced by the press and rep rimanded from headquarters, the cap tain feels that some of the mud stick to lfim. Yes, he was down on Binks and Binks soon had cause to know it. He had some junk in front of his shop and was ordered to remove it instanter A policeman loitered about his door and whispered "Suspicion!" when ask ed the reason of his presence. The landlord was "got at" and the rent raised. Repairs that had been promised were not made. In one way and another business was driven away, and Binks had to move. The police had plainly told him they were "laying for" him, and he was not idiot enough to think he could win a victory. He moved half a mile away in an effort to placate the enemy and be forgotten. Perhaps Binks might have been let alone had he not put his foot in it again. He found the patrolman on that beat drunk and asleep one night and was foolish enough to appeal to a pedestrian to help him save the help less man from frostbite. This pedestrian happened to be a reporter, and he held the case up to public view and wrung in Binks. The derelict officer was fined a month's pay, the captain sent out word anew, and Binks was soon in hot water again. Nothing was too petty and mean for the police to resort to, and they boasted to his face that within three months they would 209 Washington St., Boston, Mass harassed and hounded him till he was ready to give up when they put on the climax. They sent a man to him to have burglar tools made. Binks made them without knowing the use they were to be put to and was arrested as he was carrying them home. His good character ought to have counted at his trial, but the police found a way to smirch it. The open way in which he had made the tools ought to have counted, but the police called it a blind, They piled it on Binks until he wondered if he was not somebody else, and he got three years in Sing Sing and a lecture from the judge. Binks had de fied the police, and Binks was laid

When the young machinist came out of prison, he had changed. He had lost all sympathy for mankind. If the police slung a woman about like a bale of hay, battered a drunken man, crackhim any more. He might even laugh over the spectacle, as others did. Such sentiments as pity, mercy and sympathy had been weeded out of his composition, and he was prepared to bow to indifference and brutality. But Binks didn't have the chance. The smirened police captain and the drunken patrolman had not forgotten him. They would have taken him back at the old shop but for the police. They would have taken him into other shops but for the same power. When he could not find work at his trade, he sought it outside. Now and then he got a job, but when the word "convict" was whispered in the ears of the relt, Jr., continues to improve and he is boss Binks had to go. He was followprogressing steadily toward complete ed as bloodhounds keep a trail. He was even barred out of cheap eating houses and ten cent lodgings. An effective and new feature of the decorations was the electric light illumina tion. Several thousand little electric lights of all colors and arranged in fanciful designs supplemented illumination from the great chandeliers. The general effect of the decorations in the dining room was pink and white. This was especially characteristic of the immense table, which was formed in the shape of a crescent, with the concave side towards the east, where President Roosevelt had his seat. Music was furnished by the Marine band, which played a number of German and American patriotic airs. Shortly before 8 o'clock Prince Henry arrived with Admiral Evans. The prince repaired to the red room of the White House, where the guests assembled: The dinner was set for 8 o'clock and when that hour arrived the guests passed through the blue room, where the presentations were made, Roosevelt sat at the head of the table, with Prince Henry on his right. On his left was Lord Pauncerote, the British ambassador. During the dinner the president proposed the health of the German emperor and the German people, saying: We admire their great past and great present and we wish them all possible success in the future. May the bonds of friendship between the two peoples

I am now with the army of his excellency, General Braddock, encamped on the line of march leading from Ft. Cumberland to Ft. Necessity. While it is useless for an inexperienced officer like myself to dictate what an army should do, yet it behooves me to write you that I am sure from what I have seen that his majesty's forces are doomed to certain defeat. His excellency General Braddock is a brave man, but inexperienced in Indian warfare.

This wonderful country impresses me more and more each time I go through it. Not Proven Malt Liquor Concord, N. H., Feb. 25.-The legality of the sale under the state prohibitory law of beers containing a small percent of alcohol was tested in the local police court yesterday. The proprietor of a local hotel was charged with the sale of malt liquor. Dr. Barnard, state chemist, testified that analysis showed that the beer contained 1:96 percent of alcohol. He could not say whether it was a malt liquor or not. Judge Fletcher held that the liquor had not been proven to be malt liquor within the meaning of the statute and discharged the respondent.

State House Hearings-[Five]. Wanted-Room

Good Afternoon

The City Council was quick to adopt the very wise suggestion of Mayor Bryant in opposition to the "Greater Boston' scheme. The Legislature should this year give the petitioners leave to withdraw, instead of reference to the next General Court.

The extension of Maple place is again before the City Council, and is an imimprovement which would be appreciated by many. It is so planed that it would be in reality an extension of Granite street, and a convenience for teaming as well as pedestrians. The estimated expense may seem large, but the assessed value of land on Maple place and Washington street would be considerably enhanced, and the beauty of the Crane Public Library building shown from a new view point. It would be a short cut from Washington the business centre, and from Granite street and South Quincy to the library.

It will be a big problem for the City Council this year to reduce the estimates of the Mayor and School Committee to keep them within the $12 limit which can be assessed legally. There is still some question whether the City Council of 1901 did not appropriate above the limit, yet the Mayor's total this year for current expenses is $199,938.00, against estimates in 1901 of $183,132.00, and appropriations of $187,593.00. To the estimates of the Mayor must be added the estimates of the School Committee. which have not been made public, but which will probably be in excess of the $108,365.00 appropriated last year.

There have been a few reductions from the appropriation of 1901, viz-$1,000 from cemeteries, $1,000 from horses and harnesses in Fire department, $600 from hose, $500 from removal of snow, $1,000 from edgestone, $240 from police station, and $500 from miscellaneous city.

The increases are largely for salaries of city officers, the Fire department and the Police department. However, the estimates are larger for the Assessors, the Board of Health, the Tax Collector, the Grand Army, street lighting, repair of public building, and for parks.

Outside the $12 limit the estimate for maintenance of the Water department is increased $1,000, while that for the Sewer department is reduced

A letter received from Henry P. Kittredge, who is at Palm Beach, Florida, dated Feb. 22, says that Mr. and Mrs. John R. Graham have just arrived from Havana. Mr. Graham's health is much improved. Rowdyism.

The drunken fellows at Wollaston Park Monday afternoon who went toward Quincy may bless their lucky stars if they reached their homes. It is strange if they were not put in the lock up. At Wollaston Park they attacked two laborers returning from their work and to all appearances they got what they were looking for, "Trouble," for one of them was knocked down in the snow, severely Pale, weak, puny children are punched, and even received a few blows afflicted with it in nine cases out of with the shovel. Even this did not quell their shouts and rowdyism.

The Courier of the Czar By Jules Verne

THIS is the story of a courier whom the Czar sent on a dangerous mission of the highest importance. To its accomplishment the courier pledged his honor and his life. On its success depended the life of the Grand Duke, brother of the Czar. Following the courier on his perilous journey the reader gets many vivid pictures of the Russian Empire.

In a short time we will begin the publication of the story in our columns. Look for the first chapter.

LAUNCHING OF METEOR

In the Ceremony

Expressions of Good Will Between President and Prince-Latter Granted Freedom of City of New York-Ill-Behaved State Militiamen

New York, Feb. 26.-The all-important event in the itinerary of Prince Henry of Prussia yesterday was the launching of the schooner yacht Meteor. built at Shooter's island for the German emperor. The christening ceremony was performed by Miss Alice Roosevelt, in the presence of the president, the prince, Ambassador Von Holleben and a brilliant assemblage.

The Meteor moved down the ways at 10:39 a. m., amid a scene of great enthusiasm. The launching proper was without mishap and presented a graceful and beautiful picture, though it was accomplished in a drizzling rain and other inauspicious atmospheric conditions. The scene was one of animation and good humor, the cue for the latter spirit being taken from Prince Henry and Miss Roosevelt, who, standing on the platform near the Meteor, engaged in ively conversation, laughing and joking with democratic unceremony.

Precisely at 10:39 Miss Roosevelt raised the bottle of champagne, which had been encased in beautiful silver filigee, and which was suspended by a 35-foot silver chain. Dashing the bottle against the side of the vessel with vigorous and effective hand, the wine breaking into spray, Miss Roosevelt said in English: "In the name of the German emperor I christen thee Me-

Her voice was loud and clear and could be distinctly heard on an inrounding platform. Then she raised a silver axe and severed the rope holding the weight which kept the ship in the ways and the vessel went gracefully into the water.

Simultaneously cannon boomed, and the noise of the guns was lost in that resulting from the roar of human voices, aided by the Royal German band, the Naval Militia band and sevsels surrounding the island, where occupants were not privileged to land. Every hat was raised and then there was cheer after cheer for the president, the prince and Miss Roosevelt.

After the launching the president presented several persons to the prince. President Roosevelt, leaning over the railing, shook hands with many of the guests, who were old acquaintances. While this scene was going on the crowd remained, continually cheering and occasionally calling "Cheers for the prince," "Cheers for the president," or "Cheers for Miss Roosevelt." The latter had to repeatedly bow her acknowledgments.

The prince, immediately after the launching, sent the following cablegram to the German emperor: "Yacht just launched under brilliant auspices. Christened by Miss Roosevelt's hand. Beautiful craft. Great enthusiasm. I congratulate you with all my heart." Soon after the launching the presidential party and the prince proceeded to the hall where a luncheon had been prepared. The health of the prince was drunk and then Prince Henry said: "On this occasion I wish to call for three hearty cheers for the President stove blackings, brass and silver of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt. polish, Puty Cream and Electro Hip, hip, hurrah!"

As the prince spoke he waved his arms as a signal and the building shook with responsive cheers. Then President Roosevelt raised his hand and when there was silence, said:

"I ask three cheers for the guest who has already won our hearts, Henry of Prussia. Now, a good one. President Roosevelt's hip, hip, I urrah was drowned in the roar of applause that greeted the call for cheers. Then the prince and president shook hands and as the party started to leave the hall some one among the invited guests shouted, "Mr. President, I offer three heers for the young lady who has had the honor of launching the Meteor." The cheers were given. The presidential party and the prince and his suite then left for the Hohenzollern for

The arrangements at Shooter's island were miserable, and a situation of discomfort to the majority was accentuated by the first and second battalions of the New York state naval militia, who were brought to the island to keep the lines and to fire the presidential and royal salutes. Unable to keep the lines, especially after the launching, the militiamen lost their heads and took to roughly handling many persons, even women, refusing to recognize either Advertise It in the Ledger. badges or cards of invitation. Secretary of War Root, for instance, was forced back by a militiaman who shoved a gun against his breast and would have been unable to enter the building where the president, prince and party were to lunch had it not been for the timely arrival of Chief Wilkie of the secret service, who explained Mr.

Root's name and rank. There were many similar incidents. Two newspaper men with badges which admitted them within the ropes were threatened by one of the miitiamen, who grasped the trigger of his musket and pushed the butt of the weapon against one of the reporters. Accomplished Without a Hitch Order was not fully restored even when the presidential party appeared and their progress to the luncheon room was therefore slower. The hundreds of police present conducted themselves with the utmost good nature and acted so far as their duty was concerned, in a very efficient manner.

The arrangements at the island for the comfort of the guests were exceedingly bad. No attempt, it seemed, had been made to remove the thick coating of slush and dirty snow on the roadways. The arrangements for the press were never before so inadequate at an event of so much importance. Beyond a rude enclosure near the main platform, no consideration whatever was paid the reporters whose hardships in filing news were augmented by the illbehavior of the naval militia.

From Shooter's island the president and the prince went to the Hohenzollern, where luncheon was served. Prior to the luncheon a golden bracelet in which is set a small picture of Kaiser Wilhelm was presented to Miss Roosevelt by Prince Henry. The bracelet is studded with diamonds and other precious stones. It was the emperor's gift to the young woman as sponsor for the new yacht Meteor.

The presentation of the royal gift was an exceedingly simple function, Prince Henry acting on behalf of the emperor. Prince Henry made a very brief address in presenting the bracelete to Miss Roosevelt and she in turn accepted the gift in a few words in which she expressed her thanks and appreciation of the gift. .

"Mr. Roosevelt: "You are here on board as a guest of his majesty, the German Emperor, and I really believe that it is the first time that a President of the United States of America has ever been on board of one of his majesty's ships. Please God, may it not be the last time. I wish to thank you heartily for the reception I have had, from the first day I landed up to this moment, and it is my sincere and cerain impression that there is a strong feeling of personal friendship arising between us. May it extend to the benefit of our two great nations. I propose three cheers for Mr. Roosevelt.'

National anthem played). The president arose directly to answer, saying: "I wish to express my hearty thanks for the kind words your royal highness has expressed on my behalf, and I wish you to understand that it is no empty has already won a genuine place in our affections and good will. I highly appreciate that his majesty, the German emperor, has sent you to the American people, and I thank you personally and, what is, of course, of much higher importance, that you have taken a step which naturally must knit closer together the two great nations whose friendship means so much for the future welfare of the entire world. To express finally a personal wish of my own is to say that I have looked forward with great pleasure to the day on which I shall be your guest in your quality as admiral on board of one of your battleships." (Cheers for the

The prince expressed his thanks to Miss Roosevelt, in the first place for the truly graceful way in which she performed the ceremony of christening the yacht. "We sailors are said to be superstitous," continued the prince, and urning to Admiral Evans he said: "I believe, Evans, we are not, but however this may be, there will be a happy future to this craft from the fact alone that-turning to the builder of the yacht-she was built by hands of artists, and was at her first appearance on the water linked with the name of a lady. We sailors are used to speak of our ship as 'her' and we keep and treat our ships like our wives. I drink to the health of Miss Alice Roosevelt."

The luncheon was finished about 3 o'clock. At 3:10 President and Mrs. Roosevelt were driven to their special train, leaving Jersey City for Washington at 3:35 p. m.
Soon after the president left the ship,

Miss Roosevelt waiked down the gangway with Levi P. Morton and went to the Morton home. Prince Henry, with several of his officers, boarded the navy tug Vigilant and went to the battery, where he was to land to afterward receive the freedom of the city. Later in the day Prince Henry recceived the freedom of Greater New York tendered him by the municipal authorities. The ceremony took place at

tion, but it did not last much more than half an hour. Prince Henry and his suite reached the Hohenzollern at 5:30 o'clock. They had been tendered an ovation on the trip from the city hall to the yacht and had grown somewhat weary at looking at the handsomely decorated buildings. The American and the German colors were everywhere, though the decora-

LONG-SOUGHT BLONDIN

Captured In Police Headquarters at New York.

A WIDE-AWAKE ROUNDSMAN

Acted Promptly When Murder Suspect Applied For an Engineer's License-Admits His Identity, but Denies Killing His Wife

New York, Feb. 26.-Joseph Wilfred Blondin, who is charged with the murder of his wife by cutting off her head at Chelmsford, Mass., last June, was arrested here yesterday. He was identified by a detective from Boston while he was making an application for examination for an engineer's license. The prisoner admitted his identity, but professed to know nothing of the killing of his wife.

On Monday Blondin called at the bureau of boiler inspection at headquarters to apply for an engineer's license. He evidently did not notice his own picture posted on the wall, with the usual announcement of a reward for his apprehension. The similarity between the portrait and the face of the applicant caught the eye of a roundsman who slipped out and notified Captain Titus of the detective bureau. Captain Titus directed him to tell the man to call again on Tuesday morning and telegraphed to Boston for a detective who could identify the man. When Blondin returned yesterday morning he was instantly identified by the Boston detective, at a signal from whom four policemen threw themselves on him and secured him before he could offer any resistance.

In court the prisoner was remanded to await extradition papers. At headquarters he declared that he last saw his wife while he was seeing her off from the station at Boston. Hearing later of the discovery of her body he feared, he said, that he would be accused of the murder and fled to New York. He said that he had lived in Brooklyn, Mount Vernon and White Plains, and had made several trips as a coal passer on a North German Lloyd steamer. When arrested he said that he was endeavoring to obtain the position of engineer in a hotel in which he worked.

called to the Blondin murder case on June 9, 1901, when the headless body of a woman was found in a wooodlot in Chelmsford. Three days after the discovery of the body it was learned that the victim was Mrs. Joseph Blondin. She was last seen in a Green street lodging house late in April. She went to the room of her husband, so the landlord said, and was not seen thereafter. Next day her husband said she had gone to Canada. He disappeared shortly after. There had been considerable trouble between Blondin and his wife, according to Mrs. Blondin's relatives, who say that he was very jealous of her, besides treating her cruelly. The case was in the hands of the state police and Chief Wade and his men have been at work on it ever since last June. Two of the state police spent several weeks in Canada last summer when it was believed that traces of the missing man had been found. Suspects have been arrested in various parts of the country.

There will be no indictment against Blondin, simply a lower court complaint, so a requisition from Governor Crane will be necessary before the prisoner can be brought to Massachusetts. State Officer Proctor of Chief Wade's staff was in consultation with Chief Watts yesterday and was informed of all the facts in Watts' possession. Proctor went to Lowell to obtain an exemplified copy of the warrant. It is understood that the state police will take charge of the case. It probably will be some time before Blondin is actually back in Boston, as extradition papers must first be issued before he can be taken from New York state.

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 26.-Joseph W. Blondin, arrested in New York, will be brought to Lowell. William H. Proctor of the state police called at the poice court yesterday and obtained an affidavit to the effect that a warrant for Blondin's arrest was sworn out on June 17, 1901, charging him with murder. This is a necessary step in the process of bringing back the prisoner. Detective Proctor went to New York last night to get Blondin.

Pertaining to Women

Washington, Feb. 26.-The National Legislative league yesterday adopted resolutions urging legislation to secure to all native born persons, "without regard to sex," protection in American citizenship, protesting against the elimination of the citizenship of a woman who marries a foreigner, and advocating the trial of women accused of crime by juries composed wholly or in part of their own sex.

Four Men Burned to Death

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 26,-Four men lost their lives and a dozen others were injured, three probably fatally, in a fire of unknown origin which destroyed the boarding and bunk houses of the Standard mine at Mace, Idaho, yesterday. Sixty men were asleep in the two buildings when the fire was discovered.

Tiffany Left Over $2,000,000 New York, Feb. 26.-The will of the late Charles I. Tiffany was filed for probate yesterday. The estate is dirided between the widow and the children, with a few minor legacies to relatives. No schedule was filed, but the value of the estate will amount to more

Good Afternoon,

The extension of Brook street at Wollaston under the railroad is another improvement which will not down until obtained. This year, however, Salaries. is not an auspicious one, when there are so many demands which are more necessary.

The locations granted to the Old Colony Street Railway for a double track on Hancock street calls for the completion of the work before June 1, so that the prospects are good for better service next summer. It seems difficult to keep pace with the growth of the street railway traffic.

School Committee Not Permitted to Accept Offer.

Manual training will not be introduced into the Quincy public schools this year. This was decided at a meeting of the School Committee Tuesday mittee received a communication from the Home Science Association offering the use of its sloyd tools and benches if the School Board would provide a teacher. The matter was referred to the committee on special subjects. Dr. Peirce for this committee reported Many that while it appreciated the value of manual training, it was not advisable to incorporate it this year, owing to the expense, as the regular budget Braintree Observer and Reporter would be large. Dr. Peirce further said that it would cost $500 to fit out a a room, and as three rooms were talked Only a Few, However, Were Allowed of it would cost not less than $4000 to run the study one year. SHAM DIAMONDS.

Are More Common Than Is Generally Imagined.

A point in favor of the diamond is that its imitation is more or less easy part of the Blue Hills system. It was of detection. A real diamond cannot be touched with a file, and a false one. though it can be made to scratch glass, will not cut quartz. Its brilliany also fades, while the real diamond is absolutely permanent. It reflects all the light falling on its posterior surface at an angle of incidence greater than 24 degrees 13 minutes, but its counterfeit only reflects half this light

"THE HAND OF FATE"

[Original.]

Mr. Creswell had refused me his daughter because I had chosen literature for a profession. I left him dissatisfied, not only with him, but with my choice. Passing from the library to the drawing room, I informed Emma Creswell of her father's decision. Emma had no more confidence in the productiveness of literature than her father, but she loved me and wanted me, and me only, for her husband. She was wealthy in her own right, but I had no intention of marrying a girl who would feel when she married me that she would be obliged to support

"Abandon literature," she said to me, "take a position in father's office, and all will go well."

"I love literature, and so long as I have hopes of success I would not be satisfied to abandon it. You and I would both regret such a course." "Perhaps you are right," she replied thoughtfully. "You had better test your ability to please the public."

I went away wishing that Emma was hot so practical. Nevertheless I determined to abide by her wishes. I had finished a novel which I knew was as good a piece of work as I was capable of doing. It had the freshness of youth in it, and the plan afforded just such opportunities as my abilities most eeded. I determined to use every ef fort to secure its publication and stand or fall in literature on its success or failure. I tried half a dozen publish ers before my work, "The Hand of > of the publisher what the sales had been disposed of. My royalty on the proceeds was $225. I was very much encouraged. The second month the sales dropped to 500 copies. I was considerably cast down, but my publishers told me of a number of novels that had paid largely after lying on the shelves of bookstores for a year or more. Then came January and Feb-$1.50 and for the second 25 cents.

I went to Emma plunged in profound grief, admitted my failure and was ready to take to the ignoble calling of business. Emma's eyes filled with

I was ready to catch at a straw and concluded to take her advice. One day toward the end of March 1 was surprised to receive a note from porific black eigar and was inserting it my publishers that the sales of "The Hand of Fate" had suddenly picked up and a new edition had been order-In May I was informed that the second edition had been exhausted and a third was in press. I was delighted. "'The Hand of Fate' is working out a career for me," I exclaimed. "I shall follow the profession I love."

One thing, however, I could not understand-while one edition after an other was being sold and I was daily expecting to be pointed out in clubs and drawing rooms as the new literary ing the least attention. On the 1st of July I received a check for $1,243, being my royaltiès on 12,430 copies. I was wild with delight. Going to Emma, I waved the bit of paper over her head triumphantly.

Having done so well financially, I made up my mind to spend the summer in the moutains with Emma. After an enjoyable outing I returned to the city expecting to find some word from my publishers as to the sales of "The Hand of Fate." Among the numerous letters at my rooms there was nothing about the book. I called on the pub lishers, who looked the matter up for me and reported a sale of five copies

There have been no sales of "The Hand of Fate" since August. The very peculiar reception of this book by the public has puzzled us beyond measure. In the case of new novels we usually sell from one to two thousand copies when the work is sued. Then if the book gains in favor the sales are coincident with more or less talk about the book. In no case have we sold 12,000 copies of a novel without its becoming known and talked about by the

I took this letter to Emma. She read it and turned to me with a great deal of sympathy in her kind eyes. "I am at least glad that you tried the experiment. You will be the better fitted to work in another field."

I entered her father's counting room. That was fifteen years ago. He has retired, and I am at the head of the business. Recently my wife and I decided to move into a larger house. Making a preliminary tour over the house to see what could be disposed of I came upon a box of books. I called my wife. "My dear," I asked, "what is in that

"That is "The Hand of Fate' that made a prosperous man of you. I couldn't bear that it should be all disappointment with you, so I bought 10,-000 copies."

The dog can emit four or five different tones, each indicative of a special mental condition and each fully understood by its companions. The barn door fowl is credited with from nine to twelve distinct vocal sounds, each capable of a special interpretation by its fellows. The gestures of the lower animals are either facial, like the grimaces of the monkey, or changes of bodfly attitude, like those of a dog. After citing the above mentioned facts the president of the anthropological section of the British association in a recent address went on to say that he thought it might not unreasonably be inferred that the remote progenitors of man relied upon equally lowly means of communication and that from such humble beginnings speech has been slowly evolved. Even yet we find gestures, facial expressions and certain vocal sounds often more eloquent than words .- Youth's Companion.

Gratifying to German People, While Britishers Show Signs of Jealousy crowds stared at the portraits of Presi-Hent Roosevelt and Prince Henry which hung side by side in front of a newspaper office on "Unter den Linden." Part of the time this crowd was so dense that the police had to clear a way for traffic. Emperor William, who, with the empress, drove by the newspaper office in the afternoon, noticed the portraits and saluted a small American flag above them. Upon perceiving this the assembled crowd applauded. The Germans are slowly working up to animation over the reception to Prince Henry in the United States and are glowing with good feeling toward America. Newspapers which never before received special cablegrams from the United States are now publishing such messages. All the correspondents in the United States for German news-MacArthur, who was appointed to re- papers agree upon the warmth of the reception to Prince Henry.

British Comment

London, Feb. 26 .- A tinge of jealousy is observed in the comments of the morning papers on the success of Prince Henry's visit. The Daily Chronicle suggests that the remembrance of the attitude of Admiral Von Deidrich in Manila bay may account for the languid curiosity of the general public in the United States. The Standard finds nothing remarkable in the proceedings, but thinks it will be found that Germany and the United States are really better friends for the visit of Prince Henry. The Morning Post is almost alone in displaying enthusiasm. This paper says: "It is not given to everyone to win popularity in America, but Prince Henry conquered

CRAFTY REBEL LEADER

At Last Falls Into Clutches of American Soldiers

GENERAL LUCBAN IS TAKEN

One of the Most Influential Filipinos, Who Planned the Massacre of a Company of the Ninth Infantry-Capture May Pacify Samar

Washington, Feb. 27 .- General Chaffee has notified the war department that Lieutenant Stribler of the Philippine scouts captured General Lucban on the 22d inst. The prisoner is confined at Laguan. The officials of the war department regard the capture of Lucban as the most important military event since Aguinaldo's capture. He was run down on the island of Samar. The place of his confinement is a tiny island in the bay on the north coast of Another capture is reported in the same dispatch, that of William Dunston, said to be a deserter from Company C, Eighth infantry, who had in his possession a lot of arms and ammunition and all the tools necessary for the making of ammunition. He was captured at Caghayan, island of Samar. The Americans destoryed the Cuartel and the factory and killed 11 soldiers, besides capturing all of Dunston's correspondence.

Lucban, even among Filipinos, is something of a "character." He is a short, heavily built man, about 45 years of age, and wears a long, thick moustache, which is quite an impossibility with most of his countrymen. It is only reported that he was a clerk in Manila at the time of the breaking out of the last insurrection against the Spaniards. Whatever may have been his occupation, he is a member of a family of wealth and considerable prominence in southern Luzon. It is stated that both the father and the mother of Lucban were half Filipino and half Chinese. Up to the time of the withdrawal of the Spaniards from the Philippines there had been no insurrection in the Americans failed to put in an appearance, Lucban, bearing a commission as brigadier general from Aguinaldo, appeared at Cathologan with a force of about 100 riflemen and announced that he, as a representative of the Filipino republic, was governor of the island and general-in-chief.

He had been there in command but a year, when the Americans took possession, but the hold that he had gained upon the people was remarkable. Lucban announced to the peope that they must flee to the mountains, as the Americans were beasts with fierce countenances, who would ravish their women and rob their houses. Forced 2.50 into hiding in the mountains, Lucban was quiet for some time, and it was 1.50 rumored that he wished to surrender if he could do so without becoming liable ties. Soon, however, Lucban's linguistic abilities began to show themselves in proclamations that he issued to his 'oppressed people" and which were captured by the Americans. Everything inflammatory that he could conceive of he published. From time to ime he has held communication with the Americans, and has discussed surrender with them, but for the most part he had always maintained that he would hold out to the bitter end. His manner, notwithstanding the atrocities he has committed, has usualy been most gentlemanly. The craftiness of Lucban can be better appreciated when it is understood that as a Tagalog and an anti-Catholic he is a natural enemy of the Visayan people over whom he has exercised command.

His most famous military exploit was the virtual annihilation of Company C. Ninth infantry, at Balangiga, Samar, Sept. 29 last, the worst single disaster that has befallen the American arms in the Philippines. The company, in garrison, was surprised in the early morning, and out of a strength of 3 officers and 72 men 3 officers and 40 men were killed, 13 men wounded, 6 missing, and 13 escaped. This engagement resulted in heavy re-enforcement of the Amer ican troops in Samar and a determined effort to crush out rebellion in that isl-Fresh Troops For Philippines

Taft on Tariff

Washington, Feb. 27.-Governor Taft continued his statements yesterday before the insular committee of the house As to the Philippine tariff he advocated a reduction of 75 percent on tobacco, sugar and hemp. He emphasized the need of increasing the appropriation for permanent military ports. At times, he said, the officers took the best houses for their quarters and occasionally there were delays in paying the rent for native quarters.

NEVER LOST HOPE

Letter Written by Miss Stone While In Captivity Made Public

Boston, Feb. 27.-A letter written by Miss Ellen M. Stone on Oct. 29 has just reached her mother. It arrived almost simultaneously with the news of the release of the captive. In it, Miss Stone said that twice the time limit was set on the life of the captives. The letter is dated "Somewhere in Macedonia, Oct. 29, 1901." It says in part:

"To think that once more I am permitted to write to you is almost too great joy. This morning I have received a note from Mrs. Kasuroff in Sofia. It was the first word that has reached me from anywhere since we were captured, Sept. 3. We had almost begun to feel that the world had forgotten us, though well I know that my own will never forget. Twice the limi has been set for our lives, but as the plans laid by our captors have singular ly failed to result as they had antic pated-and they, as well as we, have waited for tidings from those to whom been prolonged until now, and we hope for our release.

"Mrs. Kasuroff writes me that friends, known and unknown to me per sonally, in Sofia, are working and praying day and night for us, and well I know that in America my friends are doing all they can. Yet the ransom de manded is such a terrible sum. Can it be raised? We are well still, in spite of our hardships. Our captors well know the need of keeping us as well as possible if they would get the ransom. The time seems terribly long-eight weeks today-since we were snatched away from the bright sunshine, and our happy, free life, to be dragged about by those fierce men, who care not a straw for us except as a means of gaining the money upon which they have set their nearts. Yet God has kept us, and our hope is steadfast in him, that he will deliver us, if that shall be his holy Asquith, Sir Henry Fowler and Sir Edward Gray as vice presidents, to act in conjunction with the rest of the Liberal opposition on the lines of the policy expressed in Lord Rosebery's speech at Chesterfield. This rather ambiguous announcement is probably Lord Rosebery's first practical move to test the strength of his following among the Liberals.

The two dozen caucus reform measures before the Legislature will be heard by the Committee on Election Laws next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday March 4,5, and 6, in the largest committee room at the State House, No. 240, beginning at 10.30 each day. The formal assignments put down the direct nomination measures for Tuesday, the party enrollment measures for Wednesday, and the primary election bills for Thursday but the whole subject is likely to be canvassed without strict regard to assignment. It is expected that these will be the most important committee hearings of the session and whoever takes an interest in the things political should attend one or all of them whether for the purpose of helping to enlighten the Committee as to public sentiment, or of 25-14. The Unity Club.

"Modern charities" is the subject of the next meeting of the Unity club, Friday evening, February 28; director, Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney.

This is the second of the group of evenings devoted to the study of social problems. It promises to be unusually interesting, because the subjects are those which are attracting the attention of all classes of people. A cordial invitation is extended to anyone who is interested in the subjects to attend the meeting.

At the Fair.

The second evening of the annual fair was given by Mr. Curtis Morse the popular reader, humorist and impersonator. Great expectation regarding the entertainment had been raised in the minds of those who attended and these expectations were not only realized but to a great extent exceeded, as Mr. Morse exceeded all expectations and fully demonstrated that he is an artist of first class calibre. Recent Prominence.

Two Years Ago a Pure Type of Quiet Country. Now a City in Embryo, Ever Changing and Bristling With Business Chances. Two years ago, almost all of the land around and about the Quincy part of Weymouth Fore river was as pretty and quiet a bit of country as was to be found in eastern Massachusetts Divided as it was into homesteads of ample size, and populated by some of the oldest and most respected residents, many of them, if not of large means still having sufficient for their needs for an unassuming and quiet life. The natural beauty of the whole section was unsurpassed, rolling land led everywhere to the river, or more properly rivers which make up into the country in the most picturesque fashion, fringed by crags with bits of marsh or pebble, beach interspersed now shaded by trees well down to the water's edge, making an ideal spot for a day's outing. Crabbing, claming and fishing offered great inducements to people thereabouts, when a day could The supper and entertainment given be had, sometimes "stolen," and many by W. R. C., No. 103, in G. A. This number is to be increased to at least three thousand within a few weeks and probably still another thousand will be insufficient before next autumn. Such is modern enterprise, and unless all signs fail the Fore River Ship and

Engine Co., although now only a lusty infant of eighten months, appears destined to become one of the greatest ship building companies of modern times, and the district in the vicinity to become a good sized city, as with a depth of thirty feet at low water the channel is navigable for the largest craft, and other large concerns are bound to see the advanatages: it may be positively stated that at the present time there are some big enterprises hovering over the section; just where they will alight is yet to be determined, but it is pretty safe to say that in a few years the country at Quincy Neck and adjoining will present a very different aspect from what it does to day and rows and streets of houses will take the place of the quiet country fields of two years ago. Building is now going on to a certain extent not in a measure calculated to house one tenth part of the workers, to be sure, and the aspect of the country is changing even now. As Quincy has a very large natural growth Prudential Life Ins. Co. it keeps our builders pretty busy to supply the natural demand, and here eems a wonderful chance for a builder or capitalist to jump in and make some big money. Three, four or five hundred medium priced houses would all be taken by the time they could be built, and in all probability a hundred houses of these bonds. could now be built there within a week. Prince Henry's Visit

THE NEWSPAPER OF TODAY

Which Should Not Be Neglected-Germany Wants to Promote Friend-Her Relations With United States

New York, Feb. 27.-Prince Henry dined last night with 1000 of the men who make the American newspapers. He was the special guest of Herman Ridder, proprietor of the New Yorker Staats Zeitung, who gathered at his table a majority of the leading figures in American journalism. They came from the four quarters of the country and made the most noteworthy gathering of their profession ever assembled United States. in the United States,

There was a felicitous exchange of greetings between Prince Henry and the men who spoke for the journalistic craft and the affair claims rank as one of the notable incidents of the American tour of the German prince.

The dinner was given in the hand some ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, but that immense apartment was not large enough to accommodate the numerous guests, and the Astor gallery was also used. The two rooms were splendidly decorated.

Prince Henry, attended by the mem bers of his suite, drove to the hotel under escort of cavalry and mounted police and the demonstration in the streets leading to the hotel was the most cordial of any that has so far marked his appearance in public.

The prince reached the hotel at 5:30 o'clock and was received by Mr. Ridder While they paused for a brief talk the members of the suite and the delegates of President Roosevelt filled up the ban quet hall. The band played the Amer ican national anthem as the first of the uniformed staff entered and the crowd of guests arose. There was a great theer as the prince apeared and another when he took his place at the side of Mr. Ridder at the special table.

As the prince took his seat the electric special brilliancy to an already attrac tive scene. Mr. Ridder called on Bishop Potte: who offered a brief grace. A small army of waiters quickly filled the aisles between tables and the banquet Excellently-moulded statuettes of Prince Henry were distributed |

At 10:25 o'clock Mr. Ridder proposed the health of the President of the United States and that of Kaiser Wil- his watch the train had 11 minutes Mr. Ridder followed Mr. Reid and then Prince Henry was introduced As he stood up the crowd burst into a German song. After that they sang 'For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The prince said "I am fully aware of the fact that I am the guest and in the presence of the representatives of the press of the United States, and in particular the guest of the New York Staats Zeitung, both of which I wish to thank for the kind invitation and reception I have met with tonight.

"Undoubtedy the press of our day is a factor, if not a power, which may not be neglected, and which I should like to compare with ever so many submarine mines, which blow up in many cases in the most unexpected manner; but your own naval history teaches us not to mind mines should they ever be in | law. our way. The language used on this memorable occasion was stronger than ever I would venture to reproduce here tonight. I need only mention the name of Farragut.

"Another comparison might be more to your taste, and is in fact more complimentary. It is one which the emperor used before I left. He said: 'You will meet many members of the press, and I wish you, therefore, to keep in mind that the press men in the United States rank almost with my generals in command.' "It will interest you, I know, to learn something about the nature of my mission to this country. The facts are as follows: The emperor has minutely studied the recent and rapid develop ment of the United States and his majesty is well aware of the fact that yours is a fast moving nation. His sending me to this country may therefore be looked upon as an act of friendship and courtesy with the one desire of promoting friendlier relations between Germany and the United States. Should you be willing to grasp a prof-Carlton club last night, condemned the fered hand you will find such an one on the other side of the Atlantic ocean." At the end of the speech Mr. Ridder introduced Charles Emory Smith, who was followed by Charles W. Knapp. The dinner was concluded at 11:45 o'clock and the prince immediately left, only course of dealing with the league accompanied by his suite. LIFE NEAR SOUTH POLE

Explorer Borchgrevink Tells of His Experience There.

EXCEEDED RECORD OF ALL OTHERS

In Spite of Many Hardships, He Is Anxious to Make Further Explorations of Unknown Land-Is Planning Return Trip to the "Farthest South."

Back from the frozen south, after getting nearer to the pole by full 500 miles than any other man, C. E. Borchgrevink, a Norwegian explorer, arrived in New York the other day on the Etruria of the Cunard line and expressed his satisfaction by declaring that it felt like getting home.

Although he and his associates have just returned from a year shut off from the rest of the world on a bleak continent, wind swept and devoid of vegetation and animal life, he is even now planning for a return to the far south, not to break a record, but to obtain information which he believes will e of great value to the scientific world.

When seen by a reporter of the New York Herald, Mr. Borchgrevink was comfortably at home at the Everett House. Although only a few hours ashore, he had unpacked his pictures and was surrounded by the trophies of United States, for the formation of his long trip. Gazing at a photograph of a limitless reach of snow and ice, he

"Not even those adventurous souls who have forced their way close to the north pole can conceive the dreariness of that great and unexplorable continent that stretches away through the solid seas of the far south. It is a fact that the cold is much greater in the south than in the north. I will not attempt to explain why, although I have a theory of my own.

"It was almost four years ago that I south. We arrived at the ice banks in States. February, 1899. Ten of us landed our stores and supplies and then sent the ship Southern Cross back to remain a year in the waters about Australia. When we took to our sledges we were 2,000 miles southeast of the Australian archipelago. The "Roaring Forties," the most terrible seas known to the mariner, had been safely navigated, and we had then the frozen sea to cross before reaching that mysterious continent that has been named South Victorialand. "Our party was made up of my sci entific staff of six, two Laplanders and a Norwagian sailor. Our linety sleage dogs were all in good condition, and we had food enough to last an indefinite period, so that I never thought of failure. There could be no failure, for the reason that I did not seek a record. No thought was given to previous efforts. We were after results, and it made no difference to us whether we went farther south than any other men had done or not. As it happened, we did beat all records, but that was the least of our achievements. We obtained information that more than paid for the hardships that attended the trip. "Of course it has been known for sixty years that a great continent is at the south pole, but of its physical characteristics not a thing is known. We verdict of guilty. Taylor furnished the found that no mammals live there and that the only form of vegetable life is a lichen of the same variety and species that is found in the far north.

Spring comes in October. Summer is at its best in December. At the end of February there is a return of winter, and the change is terribly sudden. "The warmest weather I saw brought the thermometer up to just freezing. In the winter it was 84 degrees below for days at a time. For seventy-one days we were in absolute darkness. A gale continued without intermission for almost that entire period, the wind attaining a velocity of more than 100 miles an hour. It was not only impossible to move about in the open air, but difficult to exist under the most favorable circumstances.

"We struck the continent at Cape Adare, traveled south and set up the hut which we had brought from England 500 miles farther south than was reached by the party under Commander Gerlach of the Belgica. More than that, we continued to the south until we reached 78 degrees 50 minutes, south latitude, and the pole was only 800 miles farther on. We spent our time during the dark days quarreling, and I believe in quarreling under such circumstances. I really fostered the quarrels. Our only other recreation critical. was reading. WAKEFIELD A PERJUROR May Also Have to Stand Trial on Charges of Larceny

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 27.-It required less than 30 minutes for the jury which has been sitting on the case of William C. Wakefield, who was charged with perjury, to report yesterday a verdict of guilty. The young defendant was arrested in this country on his return from Europe, where he had nterested many well known people in his copper and corporation schemes.

It has not been determined when to impose sentence. A conference will first be held to dispose of the question of whether Wakefield will be placed on trial on the second indictment, which charges larceny in 10 counts.

In his charge to the jury Judge Boud said it was proper for the jury to inquire what were the assets of the American company which Wakefield said he transferred. Mines were mentioned as assets, but no deed of such property had been presented by the defense. Also it was important to know whether such property had been properly transferred to the International company. It was for the jury to decide whether the commissioner of corporations told Wakefield that the property spoken of was a good equivalent for cash, of which the certificate said $250,000 had been paid in. If he did, and the defendant had had the property properly transferred, then the defendant was not guilty of perjury, but if he signed the certificate of incorporation intending to deceive the public, either with respect to the amount of cash paid in or the property delivered, then he was guilty

Looking Toward the Senate

Boston, Feb. 27.-The Journal, speak ing, as it says, authoritatively, says: Governor Crane will not be a candidate for a fourth term as governor under any circumstances, and he especially desires that no friend of his shall urge his name for a renomination to the seat he now holds. Upon leaving the state house it is not anticipated that he will return to political life, at least until the retirement of Senator Hoar, when his friends have him in mind, it is said, for the succession to the seat thus to be completed preparations for the voyage vacated in the senate of the United

Bookkeeper Stole From Bank

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 27.-Frederic R. Humpage, who has been a bookkeeper at the Chapin bank for about two years, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of embezzling $4000 of the deposits of the bank. Humpage made a full confession, stating that the stealing had covered the period since October, 1900. Humpage told the bank officials that part of the money was lost in investments.

Secretary Hay Pronounces Eulogy at the Capitol

PRINCE HENRY AN AUDITOR

Later Makes a Flying Trip to Pay Tribute to the Memory of Washington and Ends the Day as Guest of President at White House Dinner

Washington, Feb. 28.-Prince Henry. ecompanied by Ambassador Von folleben, dined at the White House ast night with President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The dinner was entirely unofficial and of a personal family character, and owing to the McKinley exercises having made yesterday a day of mourning, there were no formal toasts or exchanges. The purpose was to permit of a more intimate personal exchange than was possible during the formalities of official interchange last Monday. Others present at the dinner were General Von Plessen of the prince's staff, Miss Roosevelt, Miss Carew and Senator and Mrs. Lodge.

Yesterday in the hall of representatives, in the presence of President Roosevelt, Prince Henry, the members of the cabinet, the justices of the sureme court, the general of army and officers of the army and navy who have received the thanks of congress, the ambassadors and other diplomatic representatives of foreign countries, the senators and representatives in con gress and a large number of dis tinguished guests, Secretary of State

I lic ceremonial of sorrow for the la mented McKinley should take place in the forum which had echoed his voice n the arena where he won his spurs. By a strange coincidence this vas the 20th anniversary of that on which James G. Blaine in the same hall delivered his eulogy upon the martyred Garfield, and stranger still, the subject of this memorial service was the chairman of the committee eye. Then they shot into a blind alley and Mrs. Farley was shot in the ankle. hat had charge of the arrangements on that occasion. Who then should have dreamed that the man who escorted the then President of the United States and the orator of the day to their places was destined to be honored, like Garfield, with the highest place in the gift of the country, was to meet his sad fate and was himself to be the next martyred president above whose open grave the nation would bow its head.

Only one year ago, less five days, at the head of an imposing civic and military procession, McKinley passed triumphantly along Pennsylvania avenue for his second inaugural. Six onths later the tragedy occurred at Buffalo and another but different sort of procession bore his body through the streets to the rotunda of the Capitol, where the brief funeral oration was delivered over his coffin and the tributes of the nations of the earth about his dier bespoke the universal sorrow. Now once more with uncovered head the nation paid its last tribute of respect and publicly expressed its living

To one who has taught in both men's and women's medical schools the statement that the standard of scholarship is not so high among the women as among the men is absurd. The average medical girl student is older and correspondingly more mature than the average male medical student. She is thoroughly in earnest, fully realizes the value of her opportunities, and works hard-harder than the average young man, who has many more distractions and temptations, and is not too prone to continuous work at high pressure. With the girl, who is more conscientious, it is often a case of being able to "drive the willing horse to death." whereas the boy, if pushed, is apt to slight his work and trust to luck to see him through at critical moments. would cut off exit by way of the stairs, On Petition for a new Source of Supply.

> Some serious things were said Thursday at the State House during the hearing before the Committee on Water Supply on the petition of A. A. Brackett and other citizens of Milton that that town may be authorized to supply itself with pure water and that the charter of the Milton Water Combe repealed. Judge E. C. pany Bumpus appeared for the Citizens Committee and Judge James R. Dunbar for the Milton Water Company.

Judge Bumpus said that the town wants the privilege of operating its own water works. The company, he said, has never given satisfaction since it was organized. The water supply has been impure and the service unsatisfactory in many ways. There is a statute which provides a method by which the town may take the plant of the company but this would be unfair to the town, and its citizens ask this special act, which is the same as the bills passed for the benefit of Newburyport and Gloucester. The bill provides that the town must pay for the plant.

A. A. Brackett, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, stated that there had been numerous cases of lead poisoning in the town, which were ascribed to the use of this water. The water had been condemned by the State Board of Health as impure. He ing" is attested daily by the work of thought the town would have no difficulty in supplying itself with pure water if the bill was passed. Dr. F. A. Leslie of Milton said that the lead pipes leading from the houses in the town are connected directly with the street mains of the company. As a result of using this water in his -- marson had died, one is in an insane asylum and several are now in the pospitals. In answer to questions by Judge Dunbar, Dr. Leslie said that, according to the report of the State Board of Health, the use of water from the Metropoltan system would obviate the danger to health. He said the company has known of the impurity of the water since 1892, as in that year it was first condemned by the State Board of Health.

Dr. F. M. Robinson said had one patient with what he diagnosed as a case of chronic lead poison-

J. Walter Bradlee said he had heard of cases of lead poisoning in several sections of the town. One of his children had been taken sick with lead poisoning. He had then met with other citizens and decided to take action and a public mass meeting was persons. The question of the town taking the water works will be before the town meeting next Monday.

On suggestion of Judge Bumpus the hearing was adjourned to next Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

Must Quincy Pay One Instalment or Two This Year?

For four or five years Quincy and the other cities and towns in th Metropolitan park district have been threatened with large park assessment and now there is little doubt but on or two instalments must be paid this Boys' Golf Caps, year. The award of Messrs. Charles Francis Adams, Thomas M. Stetson and John C. Hammond apportioning to the 39 cities and towns of the Metropolitan Park system their respective share of the cost of maintenance and operation of the system for the first five years was accepted on Thursday by the full Bench of the Supreme Court in a decision handed down in the case of indicated with sufficient precision the rules by which they were governed, and that there does not appear any constitutional objection to their method. The court holds that whether there were any allowances to be made for benefit by reason of the local situation of parks or boulevards were questions of fact not reviewable. It is held further, that the Commissioners have apportioned the burden in such a manner as "they deem just and equitable," and that they do not seem to have violated any constitutional principle. The town of Brookline objected to the confirmation of the award because it was charged with an alleged unreasonable and extravagant proportion of the cost, because an alleged erroneous and unconstitutional method of apportionment had been adopted and because the Commissioners had rejected all consideration of special benefits received by various cities and me an account of the parks astablished by the system.

SHROVE TUESDAY JOKES. Peculiar Ideas of Humor Possessed by Two French Kings.

In all countries where Lent is keptexcept in Russia, where Ash Wednesday is not observed-Shrove Tuesday, penitential season, has been given over to mummings, sports and practical jokes. In both England and Scotland, in which latter place the day is known as Fastens een, it was in times past a great holiday for the apprentices and working classes generally.

A grewsome joke was played by Louis XI, one Shrove Tuesday when at night he ordered his guards to rouse the sleeping villagers near and bring them to the castle. From almost ev ery tree in the surrounding wood, it is said, a dead body dangled, and to the music of his fiddlers Louis compelled the villagers to take a gibbeted corpse for partner and dance before it till morning. Those who had husbands, sweethearts or relatives among the dead were forced to have them for partners.

Later Charles IX. enjoyed a practical ose that the interests of the city of joke at Shrovetide that was less grim who missed their jewels, swords, gir-

He Cornered Tilden.

Samuel J. Tilden had a touch of humor, at times querulous in its tone, and at other times he could be funny without meaning to be. He was an expert judge of wines, and his cellar was choicely stocked. When dining out, however, he had a little way of measuring by the taste of his guest and ordering accordingly. Colonel John R. Fellows noted this trait and once when dining with Mr. Tilden saw that, Price Poor, and in splendor of attire he vintage for himself. Mr. Tilden was the few hours he spent at home. Music In a Barber's Shop. If we go from the gentleman's parlor to the barber's shop of the sixteenth century, we find unmistakable evidences of the popularity of music. People would seem to have had more time in those days than now and do not appear to have minded waiting as much as brisker moderns, and so the barber provided means to amuse those who were waiting their turn. For this purpose he had the virginals in one corner, the virginal being a stringed Instrument, the precursor of our piano, in which by pressing keys like our piano keys the strings were struck not by a hammer, as in our piano, but by a quill or elastic piece of wood, of leather or of metal. A virginal of Elizabeth's time is still preserved in the South Kensington museum in England .- Lippincott's.

Government Clocks. Scattered throughout the various Washington departments are hundreds of clocks and chronometers, which cost the government annually thousands of dollars. The chronometers are the most expensive clocks in existence, and they are to be found on board every warship of the United States. These timepieces cost $400 each. The ones most consulted are those in the marble room of the senate and in the speaker's lobby of the house. Hundreds of people daily correct their watches by them.

OFFER OF MANUFACTURERS

Rejected as Being Too Small-Situation Complicated by Iron Works Company Voluntarily Granting Increased Wages to Its Employes

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 28.-The Textile Council last night voted to request the manufacturers to advance wages 10 percent, to take effect on March 17, and to further request that an answer be returned before March 10. The meeting considered the voluntary offer of 6 percent by the manufacturers and the general feeling was that the advance offered is too small.

The Textile Council is composed of delegates of four labor unions, and these delegates will report back to their respective organizations. In the event of a refusal of the manufacturers to grant the request the council will again meet and make such recommendations as it may deem expedient. None of the members would make any statement after the meeting. Several were asked what the operatives would do if the manufacturers refused to advance 10 percent. The opinion was that the operators would press the

Every Textile union in and out of the ouncil has now taken a preliminary step. The next step is now due from the manufacturers. Secretary Taylor of the Textile Council will deliver the equest as soon as possible and a meet ng of the manufacturers is looked for at an early date.

Notices were posted yesterday mo nng in the mills of the Fall River Iron Works company granting an advance of 10 percent in wages to go into effect March 17 and to continue until further notice. This complicates the local wage situation very much, as the advance is granted in the amount and at the time asked for by the Weavers' union at the meeting held Wednesday night.

When a signer of the manuacturers' agreement to advance 6 percent April was asked what the result would be ne said he presumed the signers would adhere to their decision. He was only one man, he said, but that would be his position and he thought a similar stand would be taken by all. He said Mr. Borden could well afford to pay the advance he had given in view of the facture and distribution. The old question of last fall is brought up again as to whether local manufacturers can make their own wage terms or must be compelled to do as Mr. Borden does, and it remains to be seen whether the local manufacturers will stand :s unitedly on the question as they did at

During the captivity of Miss St ne and Mrs. Tsilka they suffered greatly from want of occupation until Mrs. Tsilka's baby was born. During the entire time they were with the brigands the captives were in constant dread of the energtic military pursuit which kept them always on the move.

During the month of November the weather was very severe. After the failure of the negotiations at Sofia, the women were taken to huts deep in the snow on an almost inaccessible mountain. They had no communication with the outside world except on matters relating to their ransom.

The baby was born after Mrs. Tsilra had been riding horseback for 10 hours. The mother smothered the child's cries for fear the brigands would take it and kill it. Three days after the birth of the baby all were again on the move. ### May Not Go to Charleston

Washington, Feb. 28.-The action of Lieutenant Governor Tillman of South Carolina in withdrawing the invitation to President Roosevelt to present a sword to a South Carolina officer for volunteer services in the Spanish-Amercan war has caused considerable doubt as to whether President Roosevelt will visit the Charleston exposition, as he had intended to do. The telegram of Tillman has been received at the White House, but no attention whatever has been paid to it.

Gambler Recovers Damages

Vincennes, Ind., Feb. 28.—After six ours' deliberation yesterday the jury in the Richard Davis case returned a verdict in favor of Davis for $9000. Davis recently confessed having embezzled $75,000 of the funds of a Washington, Ind., bank of which he was cashier. He will be sentenced to prison in April. The $9000 was lost at gambling and Davis will push other suits before he is sentenced. He lost more than $30,000 at the gambling
